NAZI SEA-BORNE TROOPS LAND IN FRENCH SYRIA

ANKARA, Turkey, June 1 [Delayed] (AP).—A German infantry detachment geared for speed landed last Thursday [May 29] at the French Syrian port of Latakia just south of the Turkish border, highly authoritative sources said today.

Armored cars and mobile field guns were among the equipment unloaded from coastal steamers which apparently hugged the coast to avoid British naval interception en route from the Italian Dodecanese Islands.

The German units were believed to have moved on southward to Beirut, capital of Lebanon, more than 100 miles away. Military observers here saw a strong possibility of an imminent German attack on Palestine, timed to coincide with a new offensive by the axis into Egypt on the western approach to the Suez canal.

Expect Attacks on Cyprus.

Observers in Turkey expressed belief that any axis aerial assault on the British island of Cyprus in the eastern Mediterranean now that Crete has been conquered would spring from axis bases in Syria. Cyprus is 75 miles west of Latakia.

[The "Free French" Brazzaville radio in French Equatorial Africa said French army units in Syria had moved out of some of their barracks apparently to make way for German troops, that an important amount of shipping space had been assembled and placed under German control, and that German officials were organizing an additional distribution of food rations to the Syrians to win their sympathy.]

Aim to Bolster Turkey.

LONDON, June 2 (AP).—Quick British military action against French-mandated Syria, where seaborne German troops already are reported landing, was expected by authoritative observers tonight.

The conviction was expressed in informed quarters that imperial forces in the middle east were poised to strike at Syria to prevent the Nazis from getting a foothold there and also to bolster Turkey, Britain's nonbelligerent ally.

With Britons conceding the Mediterranean to be virtually an axis lake and the dangerous turn of events in Syria, British authorities on Cyprus began preparing for an anticipated German air assault. British women and children were removed from Cyprus, native families rushed to the hills, and ground defenses were placed in readiness.

Authoritative informants expressed confidence that Turkey would never yield to axis threats or promises.

A move into Syria, occupying a position between axis positions in the eastern Mediterranean and the middle east oil fields, would stiffen Turkish resistance, it was contended.

Pipeline Still Shut Off.

Qualified observers agreed, however, that Adolf Hitler already is in position to bring extreme pressure on Turkey thru his occupation of Crete and Greece's Aegean islands.

Despite the armistice ending the month-old conflict in Iraq and the flight of Premier Rashid Ali al Gailani, the main pipeline from Mosul to Haifa, Palestine, remains shut off and some Germans are believed to be still in the Kirkuk area, 100 miles to the southeast.

[A German radio broadcast heard in America reported that a fierce battle has been raging for three days between Arab nationalists and British forces near Aboutir, in Transjordan, a British mandate between Palestine and Iraq. The broadcast asserted that a British staff car was attacked on the road leading from Amman, the capital of Transjordan, to Jerusalem, and two British officers were captured.]

Syria Halts Wire Traffic.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 2 (AP).—Syria shut herself off from communication with Egypt suddenly and without explanation tonight.

Meanwhile, Syrian airports used by the Germans again were the targets of the British air force. The middle east air command announced its bombers yesterday destroyed one axis plane and damaged several others at Aleppo airdrome.

HEAR ROOSEVELT WEIGHS BRITAIN'S 'FIGHT NOW' PLEA

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ambassador. Winant.

Washington, D. C., June 2.—Persistent reports that Great Britain is demanding immediate entry of the United States into the European war stirred Congress today as John G. Winant, ambassador to Britain, returned to Washington for a conference with President Roosevelt tomorrow.

According to the reports circulating in well informed congressional quarters and apparently emanating from administration sources, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill is awaiting President Roosevelt's "yes or no" answer to the question of immediate American entry into the war before replying to a German peace ultimatum.

For about two weeks, as reported in THE TRIBUNE on May 23, informed congressional leaders with close state department connections have understood that Rudolph Hess, deputy fuehrer of the Nazi party, made his fantastic flight to Scotland as Adolf Hitler's emissary with a peace ultimatum.

Refusal Means Invasion.

The British were told, according to this story, that refusal to accept Hitler's peace proposals would result in a lightning attack on England with all the terrible forces at Hitler's command.

Prime Minister Churchill, it is understood, stalled for time, being in no position to answer the Germans until he learned whether Mr. Roosevelt was ready to take the United States into the war as a shooting belligerent.

President Roosevelt postponed his radio address to the world, originally scheduled to be delivered before the Pan-American union on May 14, until May 27. In the meantime, Ambassador Winant was summoned home, presumably to give Mr. Roosevelt first hand information and his best judgment as to Britain's ability to carry on the war without immediate American intervention.

Must Decide for Britain, Too.

If these reports are correct, Mr. Roosevelt thus faces the necessity of making the supreme decision not only of peace or war for the United States but of peace or continued war between Germany and Great Britain.

In a senate speech today Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] urged the administration to upset the strategy of the axis powers and eliminate the threat of a two ocean war for the United States by making an agreement with Japan which would "realistically assess the new situation in the far east."

Such a step today, the Michigan senator declared, "would do more to simplify and sustain our own defense prospectus, than literally months of effort in speeding up our production of guns and tanks and planes."

BILL TO CONFER WIDE AUTHORITY SENT CONGRESS

Proposal Aimed at Strikebreaking.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—The war department today transmitted to congress a new dictatorship bill, approved by President Roosevelt. It would give the President power, during any "national emergency" proclaimed by him, to commandeer property of any kind or character whatever, real or personal, tangible or intangible.

"This is the last straw," said Representative Dewey Short [R., Mo.]. "We're going to wake up in a socialist state."

"It sounds like communism to me," said Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.].

Representative Jesse P. Wolcott [R., Mich.] said the bill would "permit the seizure of wealth in the form of money, securities, or factories."

Reynolds Introduces Measure.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.], chairman of the military affairs committee, introduced the bill in the senate. In the house it was referred without formal introduction to the military affairs committee by Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas. Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson transmitted the drafted bill to congress, and a war department announcement said it had the approval of the President, the navy department, and the Office of Production Management.

Patterson's letter to Speaker Rayburn described authority conferred by existing law to requisition property of various kinds as cumbersome and "inadequate to meet conditions encountered as a result of the existing emergency." He enumerated sundry things which the proposed legislation would permit the government to do, but did not mention what is known to be a major, immediate objective of the legislation—authority to requisition plants to break strikes.

Plan Considered for Weeks.

For weeks the war and navy departments and the OPM have considered the expediency of putting a stop to strikes in armaments industries by taking over and operating the plants and saying to the strikers: "You cannot strike against the government of the United States."

What the government would do if John L. Lewis, dictator of the CIO, should insist workers could strike against the United States government, administration officials have not made clear. There is no law forbidding strikes against the United States. The government, of course, could employ strike breakers, pro-

Urges Britain Start Winning

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 3 [Tuesday].—The London press, departing from the optimistic formula which characterized the British defeats since Norway, was caustic today concerning official efforts to minimize the importance of the British withdrawal from Crete.

The sharpest press criticism of the British cabinet in weeks was delivered by the Daily Mail. It asked in an editorial:

"When are we really going to get down to the job of winning the war? When are we going to run machines, factories and shipyards to full capacity; when are we going to see an end of masterly retreats. . . ?"

Says Something Is Wrong.

"Churchill declined to believe there was any uneasiness about Greece. Perhaps he can be persuaded that the people are deeply disturbed about Crete.

"We have been surprised in Norway, France, Greece, and Crete. We have suffered from serious mistakes. The Germans seem to have made no mistakes.

"Something is wrong. Britain needs new ideas. She certainly needs a radical shakeup on the home front.

"Changes are needed and Churchill should not hesitate to make them. The fate of his government may well depend upon his prompt and vigorous action."

Refers to Bid for Rejoicing.

Yesterday two afternoon newspapers agreed with the Star that the "loss of Crete is a setback. It is folly to minimize it."

The Evening News said: "The whispering into our ears by official spokesmen can transform the withdrawal from Crete into the next thing to a resounding victory."

It referred to "whispers inviting us to rejoice over the enormous losses of the enemy—destruction of a few hundred German planes. . . ."

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard broke down the government communiques point by point. It said that no other fact equals this: "That an island we had sworn to defend and which authorities presumably thought our available forces were capable of defending has been successfully invaded."

The Standard, News, and Star agreed that direction of the war is at fault and that something must be done about it.

SWEDEN MOVES TO STRENGTHEN BILL OF RIGHTS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 2.—The commission appointed in 1938 to revise and bring up to date the Swedish "Magna Charta"—paragraph 16 of the Swedish constitution—published its report today. The paragraph guarantees freedom of speech, public meetings, publications, and communications, and guarantees citizens the rights of private property and the courts.

The commission stated these liberties had been given to the Swedish people for centuries and that the "parliamentary democracy could simply continue the old traditions All our political movements always have considered freedom of opinion the lifeline of Swedish society."

Th report further stated that the liberties mentioned in their proposal are so fundamental that they rightly belong to the fundamental law. They had been assumed for centuries but "in the present internal and external political situation an authoritative and firm establishment of those principles is necessary. It is important that in this and in other ways our irreplaceable fundamental values should be clarfied, proclaimed and as far as possble, insured against change and attack."

37 SENATORS ASK BRITISH LIFT BAN ON FOOD CARGOES

Washington, D. C., June 2 [Special].—Introduced in the senate today was a resolution, signed by 37 senators, urging support by the Roosevelt administration and the British government of former President Herbert Hoover's plan to feed the starving populations of German occupied countries.

The resolution, introduced by Senator Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.], was signed by 20 Republicans, 6 Democrats, and 1 Progressive—La Follette of Wisconsin. Other midwestern senators who signed the resolution are Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], Prentiss M. Brown [D., Mich.], Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.], and Raymond E. Willis [R., Ind.].

The British government, backed by the Roosevelt administration, has refused to lift the blockade to permit the passage of food stuffs for the occupied countries on the ground it would benefit Germany.

GoodTimeHad by All, All Over Daylight Time

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

La Salle, Ill., June 2.—Everybody won tonight in a riproaring battle in the La Salle city council over daylight saving time.

Mayor H. M. Orr vetoed the daylight saving ordinance passed by the council while he was out of town last Wednesday and shouted down the aldermen who wished to override him. But the citizens, already on daylight time since yesterday, are expected to continue on it. There is to be a public referendum and the mayor said he wasn't against daylight saving time as such. He just didn't like the way it was put over at what he called "a ganderback meeting."

Mayor Puts On a Show.

Mayor Orr opened the meeting before a cheering crowd of 600 by thumbing his nose at photographers. And if the opposition aldermen thought he was looking at them it was O. K. with him.

He smoked two black cigars. He took off his coat. He untied his flowing black tie. He unbuttoned his shirt when he got hot. He told the aldermen to shut up, and they shut up. It was a $4.40 show, with the mayor the leading man.

Daylight time aldermen came at 7:30 o'clock daylight time tonight to get their meeting over before the mayor could veto their measure. They found the council chamber door locked, and had to wait for the time the mayor had set—7:30 standard time.

Citizens had filled the halls and jammed the stairways to the council chamber, on the third floor, by that time. Most of them said they were for daylight time, but they were for Mayor Orr, too. And they had come to see him put on one of his shows for which he has become famous in 16 years as mayor.

Cheer and Boo Impartially.

So they cheered and booed impartially thruout the meeting, urging the aldermen to stick with him when they were taking a lambasting from the mayor and the mayor to sock back when he found an alderman with a voice as loud as his.

Mayor Orr—I haven't seen a crowd like this since the last war. I'll bear with you, provided you behave yourselves. If not, you're going to be thrown down stairs. Clerk, read my veto.

Alderman Ignatius Sera—Let's hear the minutes of the last meeting.

Mayor—No, it was a ganderback meeting.

Zera—We want our rights.

Mayor—What rights have you? Read the veto, call the roll, and sit down.

So It Isn't Congress.

Alderman Matt Bildhauer Jr.—Before I vote on the veto, I want to know if the daylight time ordinance was illegal.

City Attorney Michael J. Faletti—Yes. The mayor has the right to veto anything passed by congress.

Faletti—It's a congress of aldermen.

Bildhauer—I want to know if it was illegal.

Mayor—O, sit down.

Bildhauer—I've enjoyed your friendship——

Mayor—Cut out the bull.

Alderman Gus Traeger—Mr. Mayor.

Mayor—Gus, you won't get any place shooting the bull.

Traeger—I found that out from you.

Mayor—If I ever got into a bull throwing contest with you, I'd withdraw.

Traeger—Let's leave daylight time as it is.

Mayor—Like hell we will. Call the roll.

Something in a Smile.

When the roll was called, the aldermen voted 7 to 7. The opposition didn't have enough votes to override the veto. But the opposition aldermen saw in the mayor's triumphant smile ample reason for believing he won't do anything to keep daylight saving time from continuing, now that he's had his way.

Word came during the meeting that the neighboring town of Oglesby had deferred action on daylight time. Peru, the third of the tri-cities, already is on daylight time.

The crowd received the word from Oglesby with little concern, beamed approvingly as the mayor tucked his shirt back in and went home enchanted.

F. D. R. ACCEPTS JUSTICE'S PLEA TO QUIT JULY 1

Age, Health Reasons for Leaving Bench.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 2.—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes today submitted a request for retirement to President Roosevelt. He was 79 years old last April 11 and had been eligible for retirement since 1934.

The retirement of the grand old man of the Supreme court was made public tonight when the President released the text of the letter in which Hughes proposed to end his many years of public service.

President Approves Request.

The letter asked for permission to retire because "considerations of health and age make it necessary."

In accepting the resignation by telegram Mr. Roosevelt wrote that he was distressed by the retirement letter.

It is expected the President will nominate Attorney General Robert H. Jackson as the successor of Chief Justice Hughes. Jackson was mentioned as the successor some months ago when Hughes' retirement was rumored.

Text of Hughes' Letter.

The text of Chief Justice Hughes' letter to President Roosevelt follows:

"My dear Mr. President:

"Considerations of health and age make it necessary that I should be relieved of the duties that I have been discharging with increasing difficulty.

"For that reason I feel it incumbent upon me to avail myself of the right and privilege under the act of March 1, 1937 [28 United States Code, section 3758] and retire from regular active service on the bench as chief justice of the United States Supreme court, this retirement to be effective on and after July 1, 1941.

"I have the honor to remain,

"Respectfully yours,

"CHARLES EVANS HUGHES."

Mr. Roosevelt's Reply.

This was Mr. Roosevelt's telegram of reply:

"My Dear Mr. Chief Justice:

"I am deeply distressed by your letter of June 2 telling me of your retirement on July 1 from active service as chief justice of the United States. This comes to me, as I know it will to the whole nation, as a great shock, for all of us had counted on your continuing your splendid service for many years to come. My every inclination is to beg you to remain; but my deep concern for your health and strength must be paramount. I shall hope to see you this coming week in Washington.

"Sincerely and affectionately yours,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Mrs. Hughes Not Well.

It has been known that Mrs. Hughes for some time has been urging the chief justice to lay aside active work and devote his remaining days to rest and travel.

It is his present intention to remain in Washington during the remainder of the month. Mrs. Hughes has been under medical treatment for some time.

The chief justice has had a career so distinguished and versatile that it has few parallels in American statesmanship.

Governor of New York, secretary of state, Presidential candidate, member of the world arbitration tribunal, twice justice of the Supreme court—these have been the milestones along a luminous trail of achievement.

Known as Child Prodigy.

A child prodigy who had read all of Shakespeare before he was 8 and prepared for college at the age of 11, Hughes won quick eminence at the New York bar. Before he was 45 his state had called him to conduct a series of investigations of gas rates, insurance, and coal.

The fame growing out of these inquiries swept him to the governorship in 1907. He held that office for two strenuous terms. Then President Taft named him associate justice of the Supreme court and Hughes re-

Parents Get a Promise

President Roosevelt, on October 30, 1940, speaking to fathers and mothers on the selective service act:

¶ And while I am talking to you mothers and fathers, I give you one more assurance. ¶ I have said this before, but I shall say it again and again. Your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars.

¶ They are going into training to form a force so strong that, by its very existence, it will keep the threat of war far away from our shores. ¶ The purpose of our defense is defense.

SCHOOLS' DEBTS CUT 8 MILLIONS IN LAST 8 YEARS

Only $1,816,145 Now Owed by Board.

BY THOMAS MORROW.

Debts of the Chicago board of education have been reduced more than $8,000,000 since 1933. This figure was made public last night by Howard P. Savage, business manager of the board of education upon the completion of a survey of the schools' financial position as of June 1.

Current unpaid bills, Savage said, total $1,816,145, compared with outstanding debts of more than $10,000,000 eight years ago. Savage said that present school board debts include $573,734 from the 1940 building fund and $889,000 for the current year. The latter figure is made up of bills provided for in the present budget and will be paid as tax collections are received.

Position Strongest in 10 Years.

"The school board's financial position is stronger than it has been for the last 10 years," said Savage. "The accepted interest rate for school board tax anticipation warrants was more than six per cent in 1933, and there were no takers. Now the banks willingly purchase our warrants bearing interest rates as low as 1⅛ per cent.

"The $573,734 owing on the 1940 building fund is part of $9,000,000 put up by the board to obtain $16,000,000 worth of construction work thru PWA grants. This took cash which normally would have been distributed in old and current bills, but it was necessary in order that the board could take advantage of the free grant money and construct buildings at a cost of 55 cents on the dollar to local taxpayers."

Savage said the PWA money made possible the construction of 75 new schools and additions which were required to solve the school housing problem.

All Schools Now Accredited.

Building of these schools and additions, he added, removed objections of the accrediting agency of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools to weaknesses of the Chicago school system. As a result all Chicago high schools were placed on the accredited list for the first time in the city's educational history, and all pupils are accorded automatic entrance to universities and colleges on graduation.

"When the present school board took over," said Savage, "its members were confronted with $23,000,000 in unpaid teachers' salaries. Thru a loan arranged with the Reconstruction Finance corporation the board was able to pay teachers to date. Since the back pay was given teachers the present school board has met all pay rolls fully and one time."

Improved Credit Aids on Bids.

"In 1933," Savage said in his report, "it was almost impossible to get bidders for school projects and orders because of the condition of board of education credit. Now the number of bidders varies from five to 16 reputable concerns on all school board jobs. The board now numbers 5,000 companies on the list of bidders."

In citing improvements made by the present board Savage called attention to the recent report of investigators for the University of Illinois, the state superintendent of public instruction, and the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This report, he said, listed 17 major improvements in the school system brought about by the board since 1936.

BRITAIN TO USE A NEW PUBLICITY MAN IN THE U. S.

Washington, D. C., June 2 [Special].—Sir Gerald Campbell, British minister and second in rank to Ambassador Viscount Halifax, has been selected to reorganize and direct all British publicity in America, it was learned tonight.

Sir Gerald will be directly under the British Ministry of Information at London. The move is being taken because Lord Halifax believes existing British information services in this country are inadequate.

Sir Gerald is expected to reorganize the publicity service by establishing one information bureau in Washington to replace the uncoördinated offices here and in New York. Two additional bureaus are expected to be opened, one at Chicago and the other on the Pacific coast.

Fort Benning, Ga., June 2 [Special].—With expansion of the army parachute battalion into a four battalion group expected soon, tests are being conducted here on improved uniforms for the sky troopers. Capt. William P. Yarbrough, test officer, has recommended a new uniform made of tan cloth. The belt is worn under jacket during the jump and placed on outside after landing. The uniform now in use is made of a heavy silk like material that is difficult to obtain.

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES RESIGNS; RETIRES JULY 1

Age, Health Reasons for Quitting.

In June, 1916, 10 months before America's entrance into the world war, however, the Republican party persuaded him to oppose Wilson in a stormy Presidential campaign. By a narrow margin he was defeated and returned quietly to the practice of law.

Four years later President Harding selected him to head the first post-war cabinet. As secretary of state Hughes piloted the Washington naval conference, rebuilt America's foreign service, and wrestled with war debts and reparations. He resigned as secretary of state in March, 1925, and resumed law practice in New York.

Appointed Second Time.

Illness forced Chief Justice Taft to resign Feb. 3, 1930, and on the same day President Hoover asked Hughes to fill the vacancy. He accepted and has presided over the high court ever since.

Universally regarded as one of the most brilliant jurists ever to grace the nation's highest tribunal, Hughes long cherished the ambition of winning a place in history as a "great chief justice," one to be ranked with John Marshall. Such an opportunity presented itself it was believed in 1937 when the court passed thru the critical period occasioned by Mr. Roosevelt's demand for legislation permitting him to appoint six additional justices.

Justice Hughes was the star witness for the opposition when the senate judiciary committee conducted hearings on the court packing bill. A prime administration argument was that the court was overburdened and hopelessly behind with its work. Hughes wrote a letter to Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], leader of the opposition, demolishing this propaganda argument.

Will Name Two More Justices.

The retirement of Chief Justice Hughes gives President Roosevelt an opportunity to appoint two more justices to the Supreme court, which now has a vacancy created by the recent retirement of Justice James C. McReynolds. No other President since George Washington, who appointed the original court, has had the privilege of naming as many as seven justices.

Attorney General Jackson has been boomed in inner New Deal circles as the next chief justice since it was first reported just before the election last November that Hughes would retire at the end of the present term.

HOW BRITISH GET FIGHTING FORCES FROM DOMINIONS

BY GEORGE SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., June 2.—Conscription of Canadian youth for overseas military service has become a live issue in the dominion, with many service organizations and public leaders calling for an all out war effort.

The only compulsory service in Canada at present affects men 21 years of age who were unmarried as of last August when the national registry act went into effect. These men receive four months' training and then are absorbed into the coastal defense or internal security units for the duration of the war. They are not to be sent overseas unless they volunteer for units of the active army.

Recruiting Offices Open.

In addition, recruiting activities are proceeding in Canada for active overseas service. While there is nothing approaching the recruiting drive of the last war, recruiting offices are open in cities. Thirty thousand men in three months is the objective.

The compulsory home service plan for the 21 year olds is the outgrowth of an original scheme which called up three groups of unmarried men from 21 to 24 years of age for 30 days' training. There were three such calls, one in October of last year, another in November, and the third this January.

The scheme was criticized in parliament and thruout the country as being inadequate. As a result the government, which was pledged not to introduce compulsory conscription for overseas service, was compelled to shift to compulsory home service.

It is understood that the present draft and recruiting are not bringing in men in the expected numbers. The government is faced with increasing demands, particularly from the English speaking provinces, for conscription. French Canadians in Quebec, who were violently opposed to conscription in the last war, are just as bitterly opposed to it in the present conflict. A problem has arisen on how to increase Canadian contribution of man power without splitting Canada into two bitterly opposed camps.

RETAINS OLD SYSTEM

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, June 2.—Australia is retaining the compulsory service system it had in the last war. Home defense service is compulsory, while overseas duty is voluntary. The defense act provides that in time of war the government may enlist men between the ages of 18 and 60 years for military service within Australia and the territories of Australia.

The home army of compulsory trainees is designated as the militia and the voluntary guard is known as "Old Diggers." The militia is composed of single men and widowers without children who have reached the ages of 19 to 33 during the period from July 1, 1939, to June 30, 1940. However, the term has been repeated in some cases and some trainees have been enlisted for the duration of the war, the object being to maintain the home army at full strength.

The militia pay is 8 cents a day with allowances of 48 cents for a wife, 88 cents for a wife and child, and 16 cents for each additional child.

Many Volunteer to Fight.

Thousands of militiamen are enlisting for overseas duty. Voluntary recruiting to reënforce the overseas forces is brisk, and it is difficult to retain young skilled labor for war industry.

The government has no power to institute conscription for service overseas by decree. National sentiment strongly favors the Anzac [Australia and New Zealand army corps] voluntary enlistment. The only way the government could institute conscription overseas would be by an act passed thru both houses of parliament. Legally it is not necessary to hold a referendum, as was done twice in the last war. There have been assurances that the government will not raise the conscription issue.

NEW ZEALAND'S DRAFT

BY QUENTON POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, June 2.—New Zealand has a compulsory military service law.

New Zealand, still the only British dominion to apply the draft for foreign service, began the war with the intention of going thru it on a voluntary basis. Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg in France and the Low Countries led to adoption of compulsory service for both the home and foreign forces.

Army enlistments halted June 24, 1940. Since then New Zealanders have been able to volunteer only for the air force and navy.

Two Pools Created.

Two pools of manpower are being created for the army, one is for foreign service, drawn from men between the ages of 21 and 41. The second is for home defense from the 19-46 age group. In the early stages, this meant that men whose names were in the draft for home defense service were later drawn to proceed abroad after receiving home defense training.

This system made it necessary to hold additional drawings in order to bring the home defense forces up to the necessary strength. It was altered some months back when it was announced that in the future home defense drawings would follow those for foreign service.

Thus the system was aimed at building a two-fold force, one for use in any foreign theater of war and the other for a home defense army which would have a minimum of three months' training, with officers and noncommissioned officers receiving two months more.

Married men are required to register for foreign service at the end of June and it is expected that the first class will be called up at the end of the year.

2 SLAIN IN PLOT TO KILL HAVANA POLICE OFFICER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, June 2.—Two gunmen were killed and an 11 year old boy critically wounded today when six men tried to kill Lieut. Mariano Faget, chief of the intelligence service of the national police force here.

The gunmen fired on Faget with machine guns from an automobile as he left his home. He leaped into a police car and a running battle took place. The boy, Eugino Alvarez, who was on his way to school, was hit by 14 bullets. Four of the gunmen escaped.

The dead men were Jafael Franklin Diaz, 35 years old, a law student at National university in Havana, and Orlando Ortiz Bermudez, former police lieutenant.

BRITISH CLAIM FLEET DESTROYED 20,000 GERMANS OFF CRETE

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 2 (AP).—The British navy destroyed 20,000 Nazi seaborne troops off the northern coast of Crete in the days before the Mediterranean fleet was assigned the grim task of steaming to the southern side of the island and evacuating its own troops, British sources said tonight.

These German losses were in addition to the thousands of parachutists reported killed in the bitter land fight which ended in another British withdrawal.

British losses on land, it was announced officially, were severe, and the navy—working under the terrific handicap of not having RAF protection—also suffered. But official figures have not yet been wholly available.

BRITAIN EJECTS WHITSUNTIDE RESORT CROWDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—Despite government warnings not to travel hundreds of persons on a Whitsuntide holiday today were turned back by police while trying to enter vacation resorts in defense areas.

Extra police watched railroad stations, bus terminals, and roads. Cafés and boarding houses were searched and unauthorized visitors were sent away.

"Of 16 key men for whom I asked, only four were on duty," wrote an Evening News reporter. "Four members of the cabinet were at their desks, two were busy elsewhere, and others had engagements out of town or were traveling."

Maywood Girl, 16, Killed by Tractor on Farm Visit

Juanita Van Nuys, 16 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Van Nuys of Maywood, was killed near Morrison, Whiteside county, yesterday when she was thrown from a tractor on the farm of her uncle, Elbert Fischer, whom she was visiting. She is believed to have thrown the machine into gear as she climbed aboard. It crashed thru a barn and dropped off a 10 foot bank, crushing her beneath it.

SCANDINAVIANS TURN TO GARDENS TO AVERT FAMINE

Even City Folk Cultivate All Available Acreage.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, June 2.—Whitsuntide, a holiday in which northern Europeans formerly welcomed approaching summer with a festival, brought hard work rather than happiness this year.

Finns, Swedes, and Norwegians in urban communities are taking advantage of the holiday by cultivating their garden patches. All available land near towns has been allotted to families.

Sweden has not yet experienced real hunger, but Finland and Norway are on short rations and the difficulties their people met in obtaining provisions last winter have stimulated interest in gardening. Should the war last thru next winter the threat of famine will increase. Pasture land is being plowed and much farm land is being cleared for a crop of summer grain.

Finn Families Get No Meat.

Meat, fish, bread, porridge, milk, and cheese were the chief articles of diet in these countries before the war. Sweden and Norway have meat rations but meat has disappeared from family tables in Finland and restaurants have trouble feeding patrons the three days each week they are permitted to serve meat dishes. During the last fortnight much fish has appeared on the market but the bread and porridge ration has been reduced 45 per cent and the milk and cheese rations are insufficient.

Neighbors Pool Labor.

In the suburbs of Helsingfors today I saw hundreds of families planting small plots of potatoes, beets, onions, and cabbages. Neighbors teamed up and many of the plots were turned with a small hand plow, two men pulling and one man pushing. Children at play appeared well fed but their mothers, who were preparing simple lunches and cooking a pot of parched grain as a substitute for coffee looked emaciated.

Spring came late; trees are just beginning to turn green and the grass to sprout. I saw starved horses and cows so weak that they could hardly stand.

Last year's small grain and fodder crops meant death to much Finnish live stock last winter. Slaughter has been prohibited.

The seriousness of the food situation is further emphasized by the fact that the government permits fish full of spawn to be marketed.

Young Gunner Is Missing; Exploit Lauded.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 2 (AP).—A young British marine firing the last anti-aircraft gun in action at Canea, capital of Crete, brought down 20 German bombers before the British were forced to withdraw, one of his comrades said on his arrival today from the German conquered island.

The gunner, Lance Corporal Thomas Neal, 23 years old, now is missing with five other members of the last marine detachment to leave Crete. Private Patrick Mohoney, of Liverpool, who operated the searchlight near the gun position, told how Neal sang and shouted defiance at swarms of Stukas [dive bombers] as he pumped hundreds of 2 inch shells from a Bofors gun into the attackers.

Fires Almost Continuously.

"From the moment the Germans started the attack on Canea with heavy bombing and machine gunning," Mohoney related, "Neal, with three companions helping to operate the gun and two others passing ammunition, fired almost continuously.

"Neal's gun was still firing on May 27, the day the last of us cleared out of Canea. I don't know whether he got away alive.

"Each time the group of Nazi dive bombers came over, Neal would let all but the last plane pass. Then he would concentrate upon it. He got nine within two days and at least 20 within the fortnight."

Bomb Gun Position.

"They kept sending over 10 to 20 planes, but behind these groups, there trailed three more. Neal took the usual shots at the last plane of the first formation, and the three trailing planes then plastered his gun position repeatedly with heavy bombs.

"But they failed to get him. Neal's gun kept firing while bombs burst about him, some firing the gasoline dumps and ammunition depots nearby with terrific explosions.

"Neal sang and shouted encouragement to his companions.

"Then he countered the German counter tactic. He attached the gun to a light lorry. Immediately after firing at the last plane of a formation, Neal and other marines hopped onto the lorry and moved the gun to another position.

From another point, the gun would go into action again, and shortly before Mohoney left he said he saw Neal bag two dive bombers in a ten machine formation.

Food for Isolated Troops.

CAIRO, Egypt, June 2 (AP).—British bombers have been dropping medical supplies and food to isolated bodies of troops left on Crete after the major withdrawal, the RAF reported today.

The communique gave no further details on the British imperial and Greek troop remnants on the Greek island, now abandoned to axis conquest.

Large formations of the RAF as well as the South African air force spent yesterday patroling the Mediterranean in protection of British warships and merchant vessels removing troops from Crete, the communique said.

"Enemy aircraft were repeatedly intercepted and many were attacked," it added.

On similar patrols Saturday, according to the RAF, nine axis planes were shot down.

WEYGAND FLIES TO VICHY; SEES MARSHAL PETAIN

Confer Amid Reports of Trouble in Syria.

Gen. Maxime Weygand

VICHY, France, June 2 (AP)—Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander of the only formidable French army units left intact by the armistice with Germany, conferred for nearly two hours today with Chief of State Marshal Petain.

Weygand, head of the French forces in North Africa and former commander of the French middle eastern army in Syria, arrived by plane—presumably to discuss the next axis moves in the eastern Mediterranean and a Berlin radio report that a state of siege [a form of matrial law] had been declared in eastern part of Syria, a French mandate.

Some sources here insisted that the most obvious subjects discussed were the status of French North African defenses and colonial food supplies for France.

Disclaim Knowledge of Action.

Official circles said they had no knowledge of the state of siege proclamation by French High Commissioner General Henri Dentz in Syria, but authorized sources said the report almost certainly was false.

[The German radio, in a broadcast heard in America, said Weygand and Petain discussed British attacks on French colonial possessions [Syrian airdromes and a Tunisian port] and measures "to be taken in view of the unfriendly British attitude toward Vichy."]

A French information office report, meanwhile, said that an Italian torpedo boat was moored early last week off the Tunisian port of Sfax, where a series of British bombing raids has taken place, but that—as in "three or four" previous visits of Italian warships—the vessel was not inside the harbor.

Time to Retake Colonies.

The French information office, only two weeks ago, issued a note saying the time had come for France to retake colonies wrested from her by "Free French" forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, and warned third powers against any intervention.

Obviously, the best French authority on British near eastern forces and possible strategy, especially concerning Syria, would be Weygand, who as prearmistice commander of the French near eastern army conferred with Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of British imperial forces in the middle east.

BRITISH REPORT NEW FIGHTING AT SOLLUM; BOMB BENGAZI AGAIN

CAIRO, Egypt, June 2 (AP).—The British middle east command today announced renewed fighting was under way at Sollum, Egypt, and at axis-encircled Tobruk, 80 miles west of the Egyptian-Libyan border.

The RAF was on the wing again in that area Saturday night, reporting a heavy attack upon the Libyan port of Bengazi. Fires were reported visible for 40 miles.

Five British Ships Sunk.

DIG FOR VICTIMS OF BIG NAZI RAID ON MANCHESTER

Rescuers Fear the Total of Dead Will Be Large.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, June 3 (Tuesday) (AP).—A number of civilians were killed and injured last night when Berlin was attacked from the air, authorized sources said today.

MANCHESTER, England, June 2 (AP).—The German Luftwaffe broke days of relative calm over England with a smashing explosive and fire attack upon this Midlands factory city early today.

Rescuers struggling with wreckage thru a pall of smoke hesitated to estimate the casualties. Many homes, at least four shelters, a nurses' home, two hospitals, three churches, three hotels, and two movie theaters, however, were hit, and observers expected the dead and wounded to reach large totals. Business property was considerably damaged.

Worst Attack of Months.

The attack, which lasted two hours, was the worst the city had seen in months. Several fires were started, but they were kept under control.

[The Germans announced they had destroyed factories and warehouses, causing heavy explosions and extensive fires.]

The nurses' home was wrecked by a direct hit and many women were believed to have been buried. A physician crawled into the hospital wreckage with a miner's lamp and amputated the débris-pinned arm of a nurse. She died shortly after.

In one district a bomb killed a father, a mother, and their 10 year old girl as they ran for shelter. The girl's body was not found.

[The royal air force reported two German bombers were shot down.]

Northeast Town Bombed.

A NORTHEAST ENGLISH COAST TOWN, June 3 [Tuesday] (AP).—Bombs dropped from German planes killed an undetermined number of persons today and wrecked a number of houses in a short raid.

Ship Sunk, Nazis Claim.

BERLIN, June 2 (AP).—German warplanes destroyed a heavily loaded 10,000 ton merchant ship in a convoy on the eastern British coast today, DNB, official German news agency announced. A ship of 5,000 tons was said to have suffered severe damage west of northern Scotland.

Individual British planes bombed localities in Schleswig-Holstein, Denmark, today without causing important damage, DNB also reported. One British bomber was shot down.

ITALIANS CLAIM PLANES SUPERIOR TO NAVAL SHIPS

ROME, June 2 (AP).—The conquest of Crete was hailed in Italian circles today as confirmation of the "superiority in many circumstances of air force over naval power."

Stefain, the official Italian news agency said the victory had "overturned every traditional rule of maritime warfare," and had demonstrated which of two great forces, the axis air fleet and the British navy, "will finally prevail."

The agency said Italian troops landed on the eastern end of the island now were completing the occupation of areas assigned them.

Stefani said the first Italian landing was completed May 28 at 8 p. m., on the eastern end of the island. The same night, Italians fought their way inland, occupying numerous bays which the British might use as landing bases. One column, driving southeastward, arrived at Mouliani on the afternoon of May 29. The second column, moving toward Candia for a junction with the Germans, met them the night of May 31 a little west of the Bay of Mallia. The port of Hierapetra was reached on May 31," welding a circle about the adversary still in the internal zones of the island."

BELIEVE HITLER'S NEXT OBJECTIVE IS ISLE OF CYPRUS

Axis Dictators Discuss Future Moves.

BERLIN, June 3 [Tuesday] (AP).—The world soon will know what Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini discussed yesterday at Brenner Pass on the day the battle for Crete was concluded victoriously, informed German sources said today. Their conversations will be "clarifying and decisive," these sources said.

The fact that the meeting occurred on the day the German high command announced the triumphant end of the Crete battle was regarded as especially significant by Dienst Aus Deutschland, a news commentary.

This reference generally was interpreted here as meaning that the greater part of the German air force which established supremacy over Crete now was free for new tasks.

Believe Cyprus Next Goal.

Foreign observers were inclined to believe the next German goal would be the island of Cyprus, since this final British eastern Mediterranean outpost constitutes a permanent danger to any axis operations in the area.

A number of fateful possibilities regarding Africa and the Mediterranean area lay before the two dictators, but the announcement of their meeting mentioned none of them.

The Fuehrer and the Duce, with their respective foreign ministers, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano beside them, talked for five hours "in a spirit of cordial friendship," a communique said. It added that the talk showed "complete agreement of views."

An Expansive War Vista.

In the immediate past were the successful Balkan and Crete campaigns. Discussion of the next step would seem to have been called for and, to follow the stated German plan of attacking the British wherever they are found, this would open an expansive vista—the Mediterranean, the waters of the Red Sea, and the desert sands.

Participating in the conference were General Field Marshall Wilhelm Keitel and the chief of the Italian general staff, Gen. Ugo Cavallero, so that the new military situation could have been discussed with expert opinion close at hand.

Other Germans present during the meeting included Press Chief Otto Dietrich; Martin Bohrmann, the new leader of the party chancellory [successor to some of the functions of Rudolf Hess]; Prince Bismarck, the German chargé d' affaires in Rome, and Lieut. Gen. Rintelen, the German military attaché in Rome.

The official German news agency, DNB, in a guarded dispatch mentioned "the successful and victory crowned military operations of the axis powers in the Mediterranean and North Africa" as dominating the outer aspects of the meeting.

It seemed likely to observers here that the entire strategic picture in the Mediterranean, Africa, and the near east was reviewed and decisions for the future made. The press already was taking the occupation of Crete into calculation as a springboard to Suez or Alexandria.

The announcement of the German high command that Crete had been finally wrested from the British and Greeks after a fierce 12 day battle stated that 3,000 additional prisoners had been taken. This brought the total so far reported to 13,000.

Earlier Legislation Explained.

Section 9 of the conscription act of 1940 authorizes the government to take immediate possession of plants whose owners refuse to accept and give precedence to government orders at prices fixed by the government. The conscription act, however, does not specifically authorize the expropriation of plants because of strikes. Moreover, it contains a joker specifically designed to prevent such procedure. It provides that "nothing herein shall be deemed to render inapplicable existing state or federal laws concerning the . . . employment standards of the employés in such plant."

This provision means that the Wagner act and other laws asserting and safeguarding the right to strike would be applicable to any plant seized and operated by the government under the conscription act.

Other Objectives Set Forth.

Among other things Patterson said the authority sought by the proposed bill would:

Tend to stabilize prices and prevent profiteering and hoarding.

Permit the taking over of plants for the purpose of manufacturing articles not usually produced by such plants and not capable of being produced by them without changes in installations.

Permit the acquisition of contracts and contract rights, as distinguished from finished articles.

Principal Section of Bill.

"Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, that, during any period of national emergency proclaimed by the President, the President is authorized, when he deems it in the interest of national defense, [a] to requisition and take over, either temporarily or permanently, property of any kind or character, whether real or personal, tangible or intangible, or any part thereof, or any right or interest therein or with respect thereto, whether by virtue of contract, patent, license or otherwise, which itself or thru its exercise or control can be used or is adaptable for use directly or indirectly in any way for national defense or in the construction, manufacture, production, transportation, repair, testing, or storage of military or naval supplies or other articles, commodities, materials, machinery, or equipment for national defense, and [b] to use and, on such terms as he shall deem satisfactory, to sell or otherwise dispose of, either temporarily or permanently, any property, right or interest requisitioned or taken over pursuant to the provisions of this act."

Provision for Compensation.

The bill further provides that the owners of property requisitioned shall be paid as compensation such sum as the President shall determine to be fair and just. Property owners not satisfied with the compensation determined by the President, however, could take 75 per cent of it and sue the United States in the Court of Claims for the additional sum believed to be due them.

ROOSEVELT APPROVES PRIORITIES BILL AND STARTS FOR CAPITAL

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 2 [Special].—President Roosevelt left for Washington tonight after passing the week-end in the home of his mother here. Before leaving for the capital the President signed a bill extending mandatory priorities on material needed for rearmament to cover orders for Great Britain and other nations to be aided under the lease-lend bill and a bill to permit Canadian lake vessels to carry iron ore to United States ports.

Before the President signed the priorities bill the Office of Production Management only had statutory authority to assign mandatory priorities to orders for the war and navy departments. The new authority also covers orders for other branches of the government and private industry where the orders are needed for preparedness.

The tremendous demand for iron ore and the shortage of American lake carriers was given as the reason for waiving for this year the stature which restricts United States coastwise shipping on the lakes to American vessels.

ASSAILS CHARGES BY WAR MONGERS OF LACK OF UNITY

Contrary to claims of interventionists, the American people are united in their stand for the defense of the United States, J. Kentner Elliott, attorney, asserted last night in a speech before the Loyola chapter of the America First committee at 6519 Sheridan road.

"There is no lack of unity among the American people," Elliott said. "At no time in our history has our determination to defend to the utmost our country and perpetuate our way of life been more universal than it is now. 'Our differences are only as how best to accomplish this end."

At a meeting in the Oak Park chapter club rooms, 736 Lake street, Walter F. Boye, author and attorney, attacked the interventionists for attempts to lead the country into war by subtle methods. His subject was "Plowing Under Democracy."

Dr. D. S. Swain, secretary general of the Order of St. Paul, an Episcopal group of McNabb, Ill., will speak at 8 o'clock tonight at a meeting of the Park Ridge America First committee at Prospect and Stewart avenues, Park Ridge. Dr. Anton J. Carlson of the University of Chicago also will speak at the meeting.

ROOSEVELT WANTS 125 MILLIONS MORE FOR 'DEFENSE' ROADS

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—President Roosevelt recommended to congress today additional appropriations of 125 million dollars for special "defense" highway construction.

In a message to congress, the President proposed that 100 million dollars be authorized specifically for assisting in the development of access roads and 25 million dollars to strengthen bridges and widen services in key areas.

The President's recommendations were based upon a survey by the federal works administrator of highway facilities from the viewpoint of national rearmament. This survey related particularly "to the adequacy of ingress to and egress from urban centers, the servicing of existing and proposed army, naval, and air bases, and the possible necessity for the strengthening of bridges and the widening of roads in strategic areas."

STRANGLED WIFE'S MATE HELD.

Albert Bell, 42 years old, colored, was held by Wabash avenue police yesterday after his wife, Lillian, 27, was found dead in their home at 4645 State street. She had been strangled, police said.

SWEDISH SHIP SUNK; CREW IS SAFE AT DAKAR

New York, June 2 (AP).—The 5,230 ton Swedish freighter, Japan, of the East Asiatic company, has been torpedoed and sunk off Africa and her entire crew landed safely at Dakar, the American-Swedish news exchange said today.

The new Swedish motorship Venezuela, traveling with "safe conduct" from the belligerents, is 30 days overdue at Rio de Janeiro and is "presumed lost" with 12 passengers from the Finnish steamer Carolina Thorden, sunk in the Atlantic.

Marine sources said that the 1,599 ton Norwegian freighter Eva had been sunk while operating under British control and that her entire crew was missing.

GOERING SAYS VICTORY IN CRETE PROVES ANY ISLAND CAN BE TAKEN

BERLIN, June 2 (AP).—Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering declared in an order of the day to the German air corps tonight that the parachutists and air-borne troops who conquered Crete had "proved before the whole world the words of the fuehrer: That there are no unconquerable islands."

The conquest of Crete, Goering said, was an "unprecedented achievement" gained by "superhuman accomplishments" of the parachute fighters.

The parachutists, he added, "were inspired by a tremendous offensive spirit, were entirely on their own resources and defeated the enemy in heroic and embittered fighting."

BIG BOMBER, SET TO GO TO BRITISH, CRASHES; 4 LOST

Sabotage Is Suspected in Plunge Into Sea.

San Diego, Cal., June 2 (AP).—A huge four motored bomber, built by the Consolidated Aircraft corporation and ready for delivery to Great Britain, crashed into San Diego bay today, apparently carrying four flyers to death.

Louis McCannon, Injured Chicagoan.

Hints of sabotage received the attention of the federal bureau of investigation after a part of the craft had been recovered.

The accident occurred when the controls of the 25 ton camouflaged craft failed to function properly immediately after the take-off from Lindbergh field. The plane rose sharply, its motors straining as it climbed at a steep angle, and then sideslipped, crashing on its left wing.

Spokesman Hints Tampering.

The sabotage possibility apparently was based on a statement of a spokesman for the Consolidated corporation that the bomber controls could not jam unless they had been tampered with. Previously a spokesman for the company, which has 500 million dollars in orders from Britain and the United States navy and army for bombers, had said there were evidences of sabotage.

Harold Nathan, FBI chief investigator, said the bureau always makes preliminary inquiries into activities of this kind.

One of the five was injured seriously. One body was recovered. The other three were missing.

Crew Members Listed.

Listed by the company as evidently dead were William Wheatley, 38 years old, Chester, N. Y., chief test pilot for Consolidated; Alan T. Austen, 28, Kansas City, Mo., assistant test pilot, and Bruce Craig, 27, Chicago, engineer.

The body of William H. Rieser, 23, Cambridge, Mass., mechanic, was found. Louis McCannon, 25, Ringwood, Ill., chief mechanic, was seriously injured.

There was no official account of the accident. One of many reports was that Wheatley was merely practicing taxiing and had not intended to take-off. Such a maneuver would be to test the landing gear.

The plane broke in two after striking the water and the four motors roared out of the craft.

McHENRY COUNTY RESIDENT.

Louis McCannon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCannon of Ringwood, a village 12 miles east of Woodstock in McHenry county. He was graduated from the Parks Air college, St. Louis, and has been employed by Consolidated Aircraft in San Diego for five years. He was married last Feb. 22. He has two brothers, Ronald, superintendent of schools in Algonquin, McHenry county, and Loren, who was graduated last Thursday from the McHenry Community High school.

BRIDGES ADMITS HE ADVISED LABORERS TO READ RED PAPER

San Francisco, Cal., June 2 [Special].—Harry Bridges, alien California CIO director, testified at his deportation hearing today that he once urged waterfront workers to read the Western Worker, an official organ of the communist party, to which he has denied belonging. He also admitted he conferred with Sam Darcy, California communist leader, during the 1934 general strike here.

In cross-examination, Albert Del Guercio, government counsel, referred to an article in the Waterfront Worker, a union publication, urging maritime workers to read the Western Worker, and asked Bridges whether he favored that.

"Yes," Bridges replied.

"You knew then that the Western Worker was the official organ of the communist party, didn't you?" Del Guercio asked.

Bridges again replied: "Yes."

The government seeks to deport Bridges to his native Australia on the ground he is or was a member of a group which advocates overthrow of the government by force.

Supreme Court to Rehear Bridges Contempt Contest

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—The United States Supreme court today ordered reargument next Oct. 13 on long pending litigation involving contempt of court convictions of Harry Bridges, west coast CIO leader, and of the Los Angeles Times. Whether publication of comment on court cases prior to a final settlement constitutes contempt of court is the issue presented by the separate controversies. No explanation of its action was given by the court. Arguments were first heard by the tribunal last October.

Name Chief of Staff for Army's Armored Forces

Washington, June 2 (AP).—Col Sereno E. Brett, Portland, Ore., was designated today as chief of staff of the army's armored force. Brett, who has been chief of staff of the 1st armored division and acting chief of staff of the armored force as well, is on duty at the armored force headquarters at Fort Knox, Ky.

HUSBAND DENIES MARION TALLEY DIVORCE CHARGES

Los Angeles, Cal., June 2 (AP).—Adolph G. Eckstrom was called as a witness for Marion Talley, who is suing him for divorce today, but his testimony virtually was all denials. The opera singer is suing Eckstrom, her former voice teacher, for a divorce and full custody of their daughter Susan, 6 years old.

Eckstrom described as untrue Miss Talley's testimony that he had disregarded a New York court order and permitted a friend, Esther Lundell, to remain a member of his household while Susan was with him. He also declared false her testimony that he had permitted Susan to sleep in the same bed with his chauffeur-secretary.

Eckstrom will testify in his own behalf later in the trial. He charges Miss Talley is an unfit person to have custody of their daughter. Miss Talley accuses him of attempting to extort $150,000 from her and attempting to blacken her character with immorality charges.

WRIT TO REGAIN BODY OF WOMAN, 99, IS GRANTED

A writ of replevin to recover the body of a dead person—said to be the first action of its kind in Cook county—was issued yesterday by Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Circuit court.

The writ was asked by Miss Sarah S. Sandor, attorney, in behalf of Giachiano Guzzardo, 66 years old, a grocer at 1117 Cambridge avenue, whose mother, Mrs. Giroloma Savona, died Sunday at the age of 99.

She died in the home of a relative on the south side, but the body was sent to a north side undertaker. Guzzardo and other members of the family wanted the body sent to a south side undertaker for the convenience of friends and relatives. Judge Fisher's order directed the removal, but up to midnight the body was still on the north side.

'INVADERS' MOVE SOUTH IN THRUST AT NEW ORLEANS

7th Corps Set for Attack in Army Maneuvers.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Manchester, Tenn., June 2.—Opening field training exercises today for the 7th corps of the 2d United States army, Maj. Gen. Frederic H. Smith informed commanding generals of the 5th, 27th, and 30th divisions that enemy activity in the Cumberland valley, 15 miles north of Manchester, is increasing. The generals were ordered to make necessary reconnaissance and prepare for movement tomorrow morning.

According to the theoretical problem, the invading force has moved south from the Great Lakes region and is headed for the Tennessee valley, the Mississippi valley, and New Orleans. Maneuvers planned for other divisions now in training in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas will follow during the summer in logical sequence after the battle of Tennessee.

The area designated for the Tennessee exercises is a triangle of 600 square miles, extending from Murfreesboro southeast to Camp Forrest [home of the 33d division from Illinois, which is not taking part in the training], northwest to Shelbyville, and north to Murfreesboro.

Scouts Locate Enemy.

Scouts and aerial observers today found the enemy force extended on a line between Deason, 15 miles south of Murfreesboro, and Big Springs, on U. S. highway 41, 15 miles southeast of Murfreesboro.

In bivouac awaiting orders to make a frontal assault upon the invaders the 27th division [New York National Guard] is covering a five mile front in the vicinity of Wartrace.

On the right of the 27th is the 30th division [Tennessee, Georgia, North and South Carolina National Guards] a few miles southeast of Manchester. The 30th division has a sector extending five miles on each side of U. S. 41. The 5th [regular] division is stationed west of Tullahoma and will cover the left flank of the 27th.

An imaginary corps is considered to be on the right of the 7th corps. The enemy consist of the 153d infantry, Arkansas National Guard, and umpires' flags. The task of the 153d infantry will be to assist the umpires by setting up markers and occupying positions which must be taken by the attackers.

Will Move in 3,000 Trucks.

The 30th division has 3,000 trucks to move its 19,000 officers and men and will be able to get into position quickly tomorrow morning. The 5th must start its move during the night to get in line with the 27th in time for the attack later in the day.

The simulated weapons of last year's maneuvers, when trucks were labeled "tanks" and posts called "guns," will be in evidence again this year, but not in such numbers, according to Col. J. Lawton Collins, chief of staff of the 7th corps. The guns to be simulated this year will be those allowed under army tables of organization, but not yet issued, altho crews are present to man such guns.

Where the crews are present with simulated guns, they must figure firing data and record it properly to get credit for successful action against the enemy.

Start War Games

106TH MEETS ENEMY

Alexandria, La., June 2 [Special].—Scouting thruout the day in the 5th army corps maneuver area, 50 miles west of Alexandria, the 106th cavalry, Illinois National Guard, encountered enemy forces approaching from Camps Livingston and Claiborne. Planes of the 107th observation squadron, stationed at Camp Beauregard, flew deep into the enemy territory to report movements and concentration of troops.

In an operation to outflank the approaching foe, Maj. Gen. Irving A. Fish of Milwaukee, commander of the 32d division [Wisconsin and Michigan National Guard], is expected to order withdrawal of his advancing troops in a delaying action which will permit Maj. Gen. Edmund L. Daley to bring up addtional troops to support the 32d division.

In this operation the enemy is simulated by the 127th infantry combat team from Wisconsin. Umpires are on hand to watch the movement and deployment of troops and to check orders issued by commanders for the operation of their forces. Many members of the 106th cavalry are Chicagoans.

GAS STATION BANDITS GET $200.

Burl Maxson, attendant in a filling station at 1400 East 47th street, was robbed of $200 by two men, one of whom was armed with a shotgun, Hyde Park police reported yesterday.

SECOND SUICIDE AT 33D DIVISION CAMP REPORTED

Camp Forrest, Tenn., June 2 [Special].—Private Raymond Broderick, a member of the anti-tank company, 132d infantry, shot himself to death last night in the company supply room. Broderick left a note saying: "This ends it all." He was 41 years old.

Broderick was the second member of the 33d division to end his life since the division came to Tennessee for a year of training. Marvin Schrader, 27, a draftee from Freeport, Ill., hanged himself here May 15, three days after arriving in camp.

Broderick's last Chicago address was reported to have been 1325 Congress street. His mother lives in New Orleans and he was a native of New Jersey. He previously was a member of the 71st infantry, New York National Guard.

Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton of Chicago, commander of the division and the camp, today denied reports of other suicides in the camp. "Several other suicides have been reported," said Gen. Lawton, "but the reports are not true and apparently were circulated by disgruntled persons."

INSURANCE AGENT ROBBED.

ENTER WAR, COME OUT BANKRUPT, LANDON WARNS

Republic Already Gone, Says 1936 Nominee.

Indianola, Ia., June 2 [Special].—President Roosevelt has shown that he still is uncertain what course to follow in the European crisis, Alfred M. Landon, 1936 candidate for the Presidency on the Republican ticket, said today. In view of that fact, Landon continued, the issue of war or peace can yet be debated.

Landon, speaking before the graduating class of Simpson college, said he still held that we should "arm to the teeth, but stay out of armed participation in this European war." The speech was broadcast by the Mutual network.

We already have undermined the structure of the republic, said Landon, adding: "I think we are headed for a long, long war—two, five, 10 years, maybe—and when we win, which we will do in the end, we will be bankrupt, along with the rest of the world."

Demands Three Answers.

In view of these facts, Landon said that it now is important to know several things:

1. The actual status of our defense equipment and how much training in its use has been given the men who may be engaged in actual combat.

2. Whether we actually have something to fight with, and if not, when we will have.

3. What policy England intends to follow when victory comes: Imperialism, reconciliation or repression.

Landon then cited several factors which, he implied, would hamper the use of Dakar, West Africa, as a possible jumping off place for a Nazi invasion of South America.

These include the difficulty of transporting men and supplies from Germany to Dakar, and the fact that the United States is developing a naval base in British Guiana, from which coöperation could be given any countries attacked.

Hitler Wanes As a Menace.

Actually, he added, the danger from Hitler is less now that it was a year ago, since he has lost ships, supplies, and men; and since our own defense production is getting into stride.

He concluded by declaring that Roosevelt's "unlimited emergency" proclamation, with its failure to mention congress, practically enables the President to rule by executive order and means, for the limit of the emergency, the actual end of the American republic.

The entire world, he said, is ruled by four men: Stalin, Churchill, Hitler, and Roosevelt. England, Germany, and the United States, he said, are all in the same fix "because of a national distaste for facing difficult, complex facts; the national yearning for an easy way out, and a general desire to reap the benefits of collective action without swallowing the prescription of Dr. Marx."

"Because this is one of the memorable days in your lives and the lives of your fathers and mothers, I deeply appreciate the honor you do me in asking me to make the graduation address at Simpson college," said Landon.

"In these earth-shaking times you will not expect from me mere pleasantries. Such occasions as this fail of their purpose if they do not contribute to the better understanding of the realities confronting us. And there is probably little time left for such speeches.

"Tuesday night it appeared that the great debate on war or peace now was closed. That the proclamation of unlimited national emergency in connection with the President's speech meant the time had come for us to close ranks behind the President, as we always do when facing a foreign foe.

Debate Still Open.

"Today, after reading the reports of the Presidential press conference following his speech, a press conference which was announced for the purpose of clarifying the speech, it is clear that the President himself has not made up his mind. As long as expert White House reporters are debating what he meant in his speech and in his press conference the next day, the issue can still be debated. Therefore, the debate is still open.

"Long ago I considered all the possibilities of a Hitler victory. I considered living in the regimented world his victories might require, for a while.

"Frank Knox and I went all over these tragic possibilities, and others, and their danger to our country, in several conversations ending just about a year ago today. He reached one conclusion. I another. And apparently the President does not yet share [naval] Secretary Knox's views of what should be done.

"Never once have I wavered in my belief that we should arm to the teeth, but stay out of armed participation in this European war. Having considered all the possibilities that have happened, I have not been stampeded by their occurrence.

Wants to Know Truth.

"Before we go a step further we should know the actual status of our national defense equipment. To send men into the field untrained and unaccustomed to their equipment is sheer murder.

"Before we talk about getting into war, and talk about carrying the four freedoms to all the world, let us know whether we have got something to fight with, and if we have not got it, when are we going to get it? This is all important to me.

"Then there is something else, all important also, that is not being discussed. We don't know whether the English policies when victory comes, will be the old imperialism balance of power that tolerates no other nation in the world, or whether her policy is to be one of reconciliation, or of repression.

"So long as we are simply helping England with material aid we have no right to ask her to state her terms. But if we are going into partnership with her to save the world and establish a new order, we have a right first to know her policies and on what terms she will make peace.

"Of course, as I have said many times, we cannot live upon a high plateau aloof from the rest of the world. Of course the world is made smaller by the airplane, and of course war has been revolutionized by the airplane. But all this does not completely eliminate geography.

4,000 Miles from Base.

"One of the all important things for us, that we hear little if anything about these days, is the situation in South America.

"Now Dakar — Dakar, Africa, is picked as the jumping-off place to Brazil for the Nazi invasion of the western hemisphere.

"Consider then the distance from Germany to Dakar in Africa. Consider the woefully inadequate transportation facilities, the enormous quantities of equipment, munitions, guns, food, and men that would have to be transported from Germany to Dakar —Dakar, Africa, before they were even started for Brazil. For even tho the airplane has revolutionized warfare, it has not eliminated the doughboys. And all this material and all the ships and all these millions of men would have to be assembled in Dakar, Africa, 4,000 miles from their base of operations in Germany. And still 1,600 sea miles further to go to their objective in Brazil.

Urges Pact with Brazil.

"And what about our good and powerful friend Brazil? What are we doing to reach an understanding with her? If there is this mutual danger, it would seem that both countries could find it possible to work out a coöperative agreement that would be of mutual benefit.

"As a matter of fact, we have a base in British Guiana. This is one of the bases that we acquired in the destroyer deal. If we go ahead and swiftly develop this base, we will have materially improved our defense position, and will be in a strong position to coöperate with neighboring countries against any threat of attack from over the seas. A report on the progress of our defense preparations on this base is of great importance to the American people.

Hitler's Power Wanes.

"There is really less potential menace from Hitler today than there was a year ago. Despite his victories, he has been knocked about considerably. He has lost many men and ships in the last year. The German people are just one year nearer the limits of human endurance all peoples possess. Now our defense production is just getting into its stride. Our navy is increasing. We have the industrial production, the resources, the man power, and what is more important, we operate from "the impregnable security" of our own base, if we stay in this hemisphere.

"Wars cannot be won by halfway measures. We cannot fight a war limited to naval and air action, as we have been told. We cannot underwrite Hitler's defeat without sending into action across the seas millions of doughboys.

"Wars are not won by bluff and bluster. They are not won by clever diplomatic moves. It is plainly evident that the war party in the United States is magnifying the difficulty of defending the Monroe Doctrine, just as they minimize the enormous difficulty of Hitler in attacking it successfully.

Blasts Fatalistic View.

"We find a fatalistic acceptance of the inevitable. On all sides we have heard it said frequently in recent months, 'It's no use to fight against war, because Roosevelt can get us in whenever he wants to.'

"We have already accepted, in our thinking and legislation, the basic tenet of Nazilsm, that everything is dependent upon government.

"In this transition period between a laissez faire capitalism and something else, we failed to tackle the hard job of achieving social progress without the entering wedge of totalitarianism.

"The self-reliance, the fortitude, and the sense of equality necessary in the type of citizen this nation requires if the republic is to survive in this world of dictatorships, are not being developed by the New Deal, nor are they developed by arrogant plutocracy that acts, when in power, more or less like glorified pawnbrokers.

"For eight years now we have followed the theory of government that the end justifies the means. If the objective is humanitarian, if the cause is noble, why worry about the methods used to reach the goal?

"In other words, social gains were not inimical and of themselves destructive of the republic, as a lot of 'stuffed shirt' reactionaries would have us believe. But the way they are accomplished, the short cuts resorted to in the process of achieving them, are very disastrous to the idea of reference to the people for authority to proceed. And once that idea is destroyed the republic is destroyed, and you have a gradually growing despotism.

World Ruled by Four Men.

"The entire world, in utmost reality, is being ruled by four men: Stalin, Churchill, Hitler and Roosevelt. And England, Germany and the United States are in the fix they are today from these same conditions, by a 'national distaste for facing difficult, complex facts, the national yearning for an easy way out, and a general desire to reap the benefits of collective action without swallowing the prescription of Dr. Marx.'

"I don't think the principles of Dr. Marx are workable. I do think our present habits lead straight for a dictatorship, of the right. Already in a few ways that I have briefly mentioned, we have undermined the structure of the republic. I think we are headed for a long, long war—two, five, ten years maybe—for one step farther and there is no turning back until we win. When we do win, which we will in the end, we will be bankrupt, along with the rest of the combatant world."

24TH, 37TH WARDS GO TO POLLS TODAY TO PICK ALDERMEN

Aldermanic elections to fill vacancies will be held today in the 24th and 37th wards. In the 37th ward all 91 precincts will be open. The contest there is between Albert F. Keeney, Republican, a former alderman, and Francis E. Callahan, Democrat, the city superintendent of sidewalks. In the 24th ward there is no contest, and County Commissioner Fred J. Fischman is the only candidate. In that ward only 12 of the 61 precincts will be open. Polling places will be open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m.

PERRIN NAMED FEDERAL JURY HEAD FOR JUNE

The June federal grand jury of 12 men and 11 women was sworn in yesterday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Herbert A. Perrin of 1015 North Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, was appointed foreman.

Daniel B. Britt, special assistant to the attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division, announced that the May grand jury, which started an investigation of food profiteering, would continue its investigation as a special grand jury.

William L. Mayer, 7444 North Seeley avenue, who was a member of the Cook county grand jury in August, 1938, yesterday was named foreman of the June grand jury by Chief Justice James F. Fardy in the Criminal court. Mayer is an accountant for the R. G. Lydy Parking company.

PRO-WAR BLOC NOW IN A PANIC, NYE DECLARES

People Want Peace—and Mean It, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 2.—President Roosevelt, his cabinet, and the cause of war intervention are suffering from panic, United States Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] told a large audience in Milwaukee auditorium tonight.

Nye spoke under the sponsorship of the America First committee. His subject was designated "Stop This Madness." His audience, said Lansing Hoyt, state chairman of the America First committee, reflected the prayerful desire of Milwaukee people to keep out of the European war. There were delegations of America First members from Racine, Kenosha, Oshkosh, Sheboygan, and other Wisconsin cities.

"Panic in Washington."

"The panic in Washington has been in evidence on every hand of late," Senator Nye said, "in cabinet speeches, in the President's 'fire alarm' chat of a week ago, and in the mad rush of the interventionists to frighten the American people into approval of further involvement in the war thru convoys or abandonment of the laws of neutrality.

"The panic results from the realization that the people meant what they said before election that we are not going to get into the war.

"So emphatic was public displeasure, so apparent was the unfavorable reaction to his speech last Tuesday night, that the President quickly backed away from the purpose obviously in his mind when he spoke.

"He has since said that he did not mean to convoy or raise the pall of neutrality laws. It would be unfortunate if this quick shift should cause the people to abandon their watchfulness or let up in their protest. Apathy of the opposition is precisely what the interventionists hope for."

Crowd Arrives Early.

The main floor of the auditorium was well filled an hour before Senator Nye was scheduled to speak. It was an audience only equaled in numbers when Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] spoke in the same hall in the same cause. The people listened to a patriotic concert by the Blatz American Legion band, sang patriotic songs, and prayed earnestly with the Rev. Peter E. Dietz, pastor of St. Monica's Catholic church, when he petitioned that "our frontiers be made safe against any enemy."

They cheered loudly when Herbert N. Halble, principal of Appleton High school, who introduced Senator Nye, declared it is the overwhelming wish of Wisconsin that the nation keep out of war.

Senator Nye said that millions feel they were betrayed and thwarted in the last national election.

"There are many who entertain a belief that the last Presidential election was the outgrowth of a conspiracy," he said, "a conspiracy to deny the American people a chance to declare themselves on the issue of foreign policies."

Poses Some Questions.

"Suppose Roosevelt in the campaign had told the people that, if reelected he would ask for the powers which were in the lend-lease [dictator] law; would ask congress to appropriate 7 billion dollars to Great Britain's use; would ignore or repeal the neutrality laws; would undertake to patrol, escort, or convoy contraband thru the war zone.

"Suppose Willkie had done what he did so well thru the campaign, and said, 'Me, too.' The probability is that the United States would have a socialist President today, for the people were more interested in keeping out of war than in any other issue of the campaign.

"But they didn't promise these things. What each promised was to keep the country out of war. The fact that Mrs. Roosevelt says the President promised no such thing gets no hearing from the million who heard the promises and know that each candidate wanted the people to believe them.

"I am afraid Mr. Willkie lost his interest in the sacredness of promises after he was prevailed on to hop to England and back, getting home just in time to pitch his weight into causes that would quickly get us into war."

Delivers Sharp Criticism.

Senator Nye then continued with sharp criticism of Willkie.

No man has done more," he said, "to destroy the American way, the two party system. Few men have contributed more largely to the destruction of the confidence essential in leadership of our system is to endure. His great contribution to American life has been his word to the people that when he speaks, he but orates, and should not be taken seriously."

President Roosevelt had mental reservations when he declared for the "four freedoms," the audience was told, the reservation being freedom for every one but "copperheads."

Nye emphasized that fear was the stock in trade of the Roosevelt administration and the interventionists.

"Fear, constant injections of it, has been our lot for months," he said.

Nye urged the audience to continue reminding the President and congress that they have not forgotten the campaign promises to keep the nation out of war.

"Let American leadership know," he continued, "that you have the good sense to dare to think even if some one proclaims a national emergency. Whatever emergency confronts the United States has been created by leaders who couldn't keep their fingers and their noses out of other people's wars."

GREEN APPOINTS PARK LIVINGSTON TO PRINTING POST

Springfield, Ill., June 2 (AP).—Gov. Green today appointed Park Livingston of Hinsdale as superintendent of the bureau of multigraphing in the state division of printing, succeeding M. C. Page of Newton.

An attorney who has been active in affairs of the state young Republican organization, Livingston was elected last fall as a trustee of the University of Illinois, where he graduated in 1930 and where he served for a time as acting dean of men.

Walter A. Rosenfield, director of public works and buildings, announced the appointment of George Fort of Morton as assistant superintendent of the division of motor carriers, the agency which administers the state trucking act. Appointed as assistant examiners in the motor carriers division, were Charles E. Keller, Champaign, and Henry C. Mooneyham, of Franklin county.

1.1 BILLION VOTED TO U. S. AGENCIES BY HOUSE GROUP

Hold Sum Will Help Train for Preparedness.

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—Emphasizing that the agencies would train thousands of youths for national preparedness jobs, the house appropriations committee approved today a $1,191,776,000 expenditure by the labor department, the federal security agency, and related organizations in the 1942 fiscal year.

The committee said in a report to the house that $181,145,000 of the total could be charged to national preparedness and would finance the training of more than 4 million youths.

One group of young persons will receive apprentice education with a $300,000 fund allocated to the bureau of labor standards, another will receive vocational training with a $116,122,000 appropriation for the office of education, and a third will receive "work experience training" with a special $60,000,000 national youth administration fund.

Funds for Labor Survey.

In addition, the big bill, one of the largest of the regular departmental supply measures, carried $96,500 for the bureau of labor statistics to finance a survey of post-emergency employment problems. As house debate began, Representative Malcolm C. Tarver [D., Ga.] said that attention should be given the subject now "rather than wait until the conclusion of the present emergency."

The committee approved these major agency activities:

Civilian conservation corps, $246,960,000; office of education, $127,796,800; national youth administration, $151,767,000, and grants to states for old age assistance, unemployment compensation, aid to dependent children, and the like, $414,600,000.

Total Tops Current Figure.

The total was $35,848,778 higher than the corresponding appropriations for the present fiscal year which ends June 30, but was $31,069,022 less than the budget bureau recommended. The committee cut the CCC recommendation $23,040,000 because, members said, private employment has decreased the possibilities of recruiting the usual 300,000 enrollees annually.

Included in the measure were increased funds for the labor department's conciliation service, and other money for the National Labor Relations board, the wage-hour administration, the Railroad Retirement board, and the Employés Compensation commission.

Meanwhile an appropriation of $185,119,813 for operation of the interior department during the fiscal year beginning July 1 was approved by the senate appropriations committee. The amount was $8,092,735 greater than voted by the house.

REPORTS OUTER N.Y. HARBOR AREA STRIPPED OF GUNS

Vital Points Unguarded, Says Lawmaker.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Representative Thomas.

Washington, D. C., June 2—Congressman J. Parnell Thomas [R., N. J.], a member of the house military affairs committee, today told Secretary of War Henry L. Stimpson that he had just completed a tour of forts and camps in the New York-New Jersey industrial area and found them virtually without arms or ammunition.

Thomas said he found that six 12-inch coast defense guns had been removed from Forts Hancock and Tilden, which guard New York harbor, and that four of them had been shipped to Bermuda and two to Newfoundland.

"Practically no fixed armament has been received at these harbor defenses since the first world war," said Thomas in his letter. He based his statment upon observations made in a three day inspection trip of the 2d corps area.

Terms Plight "Pitiful."

"The lack of modern equipment, including anti-aircraft batteries and searchlights, is pitiful," Thomas declared. "The amount of small arms ammunition at both of these posts would last less than one minute in actual combat. Small arms ammunition is now coming in dribs and drabs, there being at the moment only about 100 rounds per man on hand of 30 caliber ammunition. Old Springfield rifles are being used. Only 49 hand grenades are on hand.

"One anti-aircraft battery which has been in position for months has not yet received any directors or height finders, so if this battery ever had to go into action it would be like firing at wild ducks with blank shells from a shotgun. The ammunition for aircraft batteries would last about three minutes."

Almost No Reserve Supplies.

Reporting on the results of an inspection trip to Ft. Dix, N. J., Thomas reported:

"A most deplorable state of affairs was found in both the ordnance depot and in the magazines, there being practically no reserve supply in either. In the magazines there was a great shortage of small arms ammunition, while there was no ammunition at all for some larger weapons, nor any fragmentation hand grenades. The ordnance officer estimated that in the whole camp there were only 80 rounds of small arms ammunition per man."

The reserve supply of arms and ammunition in the Fort Dix magazines, Thomas asserted, would be insufficient to repel even an internal disorder occuring in some neighboring industrial center. There was hardly enough small arms ammunition on hand for ordinary guard duty, he said.

Ammunition and powder are stored in four buildings of wooden construction, built in world war days, and guarded by a lone soldier armed with a pistol. A wire fence and this guard could keep out stray dogs and cats, but not much else, Thomas commented.

60 Rifles for 10,000 Men.

At Fort Monmouth, N. J., seat of the laboratory which is termed the "nerve center" for the entire army, Thomas made the startling observation that there were 60 rifles on hand in the entire post for 10,000 soldiers and trainees. There were no hand grenades available, not a single anti-aircraft gun, only about 60 gas masks and a shortage of 100 trucks, he stated.

Officers estimated, Thomas said, that the laboratory equipment was worth between 30 and 50 million dollars.

Thomas quoted an intelligence officer as saying that if the laboratory were destroyed, it would retard the entire arms program of the United States by at least seven months, so valuable are the instruments and other material housed therein.

Deny Reports U. S.-Italian Marines Clash in Shanghai

SHANGHAI, June 2 (AP).—United States Marine officers and police headquarters said tonight there had been no clashes between American and Italian Marines. [The Rome radio broadcast a Shanghai dispatch saying that fighting had broken out in the Chinese city between Italian and American sailors.]

FINDS MILLIONS IN ARMY CAMP FUNDS WASTED

Engel Lays Squandering to Cost Plus Fee.

Washington, D. C., June 2 [Special].—Nearly a third of the 800 million dollars appropriated by congress for the building of army camps has been squandered thru cost plus fixed fee contracts, Congressman Albert J. Engel [R., Mich.] told the house of representatives today.

Engel said he had made a personal investigation of seven camps. Telling his findings to the house he chose four for comparison—Camp Dix, N. J., built under a competitive bid contract, and Edwards, Mass., Meade, Md., and Devens, Mass., built under cost plus fixed fee contracts.

Lowest Cost at Camp Dix.

Despite the highest wage scale paid at any of the camps, Engel said, the cost of Camp Dix was the lowest, the least number of men were employed at the peak of building, and the least overtime was paid by the contractor. As a result of his findings, Engel recommended to the house that all future contracts be awarded on the competitive bid basis.

The cost of Camp Dix was $18,224,410, about 36 per cent more than the original estimate, but every increase over the estimate represented new work, all of which was completed within the amounts bid.

At Camp Dix the cost of a barracks to house 63 men was $9,822 compared with $15,000 for the same building at Devens and Edwards and $17,364 at Camp Meade. Recent army estimates of the cost of identical buildings in the same zone was $11,877 and in the south $9,075.

Hourly Cost of Labor.

The following table shows a comparative hourly cost of labor at the four camps:

	Carpenters.	Plumbers.	Laborers.
Dix	$1.37½	$1.75	$ .80
Meade	1.25	1.37	.62½
Devens	1.25	1.20	.58
Edwards	1.17½	1.00	.62½

Engel found the following peak employment and overtime costs:

	Peak employment.	Overtime pay.
Dix	5,655	*$ 233,946
Meade	19,990	1,808,320
Devens	14,439	1,350,000
Edwards	18,343	1,000,000

*By 14 contractors.

Paid by Government.

In the cases of Camps Meade, Devens, and Edwards, Engel reminded the house the extra costs for overtime pay came from the government and not from the contractor. "You and I know," he said, "that no such overtime would have been paid had the contractor been compelled to pay it out of the lump sum of the competitive bid."

Engel said in the case of Camp Dix when the contractor had to pay the overtime out of their lump sum bids the ratio of labor cost to material cost was 37 per cent labor and 63 per cent material, while at Meade the ratio was labor 65.5 and material 34.5; Devens, labor 68 per cent and material 32 per cent; Edwards, labor 45 per cent and material 55 per cent.

The final cost of Camp Meade, Engel reported was 150 per cent over the original estimate; Devens, 100 per cent over, and Edwards, more than 300 per cent more.

GREEN DECIDES TO FOSTER U. S. CHILDREN'S AID

Governor Confined to Bed with Cold.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—Dwight H. Green was confined to the executive mansion today by a severe cold he was said to have contracted during his Memorial day and week-end stay in Chicago.

This became known this evening when members of his group of Republican legislative leaders said that he was in bed when they held their weekly conference with him to discuss the program of the general assembly. The group includes the big four of each chamber.

After that conference the governor authorized an oral announcement that he and the legislators had reached a belated decision to bring Illinois under the New Deal system of aid to dependent children, a proposal on which the governor until recently had frowned.

Change Follows Douglas' Visit.

The change of decision was said to have been the result of a visit from James H. Douglas Jr. of Chicago, vice chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, this afternoon. Douglas, it was explained, successfully contended the state could vote an appropriation for dependent children without unbalancing the budget.

The plan, it was explained, is to provide the state's half of the fund for children by separating it from the sum already set aside for relief, the theory being that if the cost of aiding the children is taken from a special fund the cost of general relief will be reduced by exactly that amount.

On that basis, it is now proposed that $7,500,000 be subtracted from the proposed biennial appropriation of $61,658,000 for general relief. In the second year of the biennium an additional $500,000 now set aside for mothers' pensons, which can be eliminated if specific provision is made for the children, will be shifted to make the state's total for the biennium for ADC [aid to dependent children] exactly the $8,000,000 sought to match a similar amount from the federal treasury.

Monthly Grants Proposed.

Children less than 16 years old, or less than 18 years old if attending school, would be eligible to monthly allowances probably ranging from $12 to $20.

It is roughly estimated that about 25,000 families will receive aid under the ADC proposal and that the beneficiaries will include between 53,000 and 55,000 children.

To carry out the administration's plan it will be necessary for the senate to amend the relief appropriation for the department of public welfare which already has passed the house. It also will be necessary to wake up the main ADC bill itself in the house committee on appropriations, where it has been slumbering for the last four weeks because of the lack of the administration's approval up to this time.

The governor tonight sent to the house his veto of house bill 355, introduced by Representative Peter C. Granata [R., Chicago], which would have revised important restrictions now imposed on building and loan associations.

In the opening meeting of the week the house advanced to third or final reading several important bills of its own. They included the McGrath bill for the licensing of bookmakers handling horse racing bets, the Sandquist bills embodying Attorney General George F. Barrett's anti-vote fraud program, the Sandquist bill to prohibit double feature movie programs, and the voting machine bill rewritten by the house committee on elections.

Before the house recessed at midnight, Speaker Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago] introduced a bill to create an advisory commission on municipal taxation with a biennial appropriation of $100,000. The governor would be an ex-officio member of the commission. Other members would be three representatives and three senators. The commission's duty would be to advise the legislature the tax needs of the taxing bodies of Cook county.

JAP RAID KILLS 63 IN CHUNGKING PUBLIC DUGOUT

CHUNGKING, China, June 2 (AP).—Japanese bombers scored direct hits on a public dugout and on the French consulate today in a raid that left more than 300 casualties, including at leat 63 dead. All the dead reported so far tonight were in the public dugout.

The French consulate was ruined, but none of the staff was injured. Six bombs landed in the nearby compound of the British embassy, causing damage to buildings.

The raid was the sixth and most disastrous of the spring, and authorities planned to intensify evacuation of "nonessential" residents of the city.

DR. URSE NAMED PSYCHOPATHIC HOSPITAL HEAD

Dr. Vladimir G. Urse was appointed medical director of the county psychopathic hospital yesterday on the recommendation of the staff. He succeeds Dr. Francis J. Gerty, who left the post after 19 years to become head of the department of psychiatry at the University of Illinois medical school. Dr. Urse is only 35 years old.

Dr. Vladimir G. Urse [top] and Dr. William H. Haines.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, said the appointment was nonpolitical.

Dr. Urse was born in Chicago and received his bachelor of science degree at the University of Chicago and his medical degree from Northwestern university. He has been assistant psychiatrist at the hospital since 1935. His home is in River Forest.

Smith also announced the appointment of Dr. William H. Haines as acting director of the Cook county behavior clinic, which examines defendants in criminal cases at the order of presiding judges. Dr. Haines has been assistant director for 18 months under Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, who recently was appointed state alienist.

NEW ZEALAND FACES LOWERED LIVING STANDARD

Saves Dollar Exchange, but Lacks Imports.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AUCKLAND, N. Z., May 22 [By Air Mail].—Altho she is 12,000 miles from bomb-battered Britain and untouched by the Nazi blockade, New Zealand is facing a serious shortage of goods that must be purchased abroad.

The people have been warned that they must do without many things they have been accustomed to buy, and that a lowered standard of living is in prospect.

Domestic manufacturers are striving to fill the gap, but this is primarily an agricultural country and how far they will succeed is uncertain. Many depend upon imported raw materials and these, like consumer goods, may not be available in sufficient quantities.

New Zealand has imported nearly everything except foodstuffs. Wool is grown here, but it has always been shipped to Britain. Motor cars are imported, as are cameras, hats, shoes, cotton goods and nearly all finished products. In return for these, New Zealand, an island with an area twice that of Illinois and a population half as great as Chicago's, has exported beef, mutton, lamb, butter, cheese, and wool.

Shipping Is Available.

The curtailment in imports has not resulted from lack of shipping space, many vessels having arrived here in ballast. It came from the desire to conserve foreign exchange, especially dollars, for war purposes.

A second factor was New Zealand's desire to fall in with Britain's policy of reducing exports to empire countries. The mother country feels it is advisable to sell to markets outside the empire, particularly the United States, so that war materials may be purchased with the dollars received.

Sir Harry Batterbee, the United Kingdom's high commissioner in Wellington, recently stated that Britain hoped New Zealand would try to do without the goods she refrained from buying from Britain, and that she would not transfer her business elsewhere. No indication was given as to how far the dominion may go in purchasing Australian manufactured goods without infringing this principle, but in any case Australian factories as well as those of New Zealand, are affected by the shortage of raw materials.

The New Zealand government keeps a tight grip on the import trade by requiring a permit for all purchases from abroad, and in addition the necessary foreign exchange must be obtained from the Reserve bank.

Dollar Exchange Conserved.

Necessary imports, however, will be bought within the empire as far as is possible, rather than from the United States. This, again, is to conserve dollar exchange.

An example of Britain's desire to sell mainly to nations from which she can purchase war materials is seen in the recent placing of Australia and New Zealand in the fourth grade for the allocation of cotton exports. These countries, it is indicated, will be permitted to buy only 25 to 33 per cent as much as they purchased in 1940.

The United States and Canada are ranked as first grade markets; South Africa, Rhodesia, Turkey, Egypt, the Belgian Congo, Argentina, British West Africa, and British East Africa are ranked second; the Dutch East Indies, third; Australia, New Zealand, and the British West Indies, fourth, and India and China last.

When this was learned here on May 22, New Zealand clothing manufacturers said it would greatly increase their operating difficulties because of an existing shortage of cotton piece goods. "Our reserve stocks are used up and our warehouse supplies are sold out," an Auckland manufacturer said.

Britain Is Sole Supplier.

It was declared that Britain was the only country from which New Zealand could buy the materials required by the dominion clothing factories, as a result of the virtual ban on licenses for purchases from United States and Canada to conserve dollar funds.

Immediate steps to meet the emergency, it was suggested, should aim to reduce the consumption of cotton goods, possibly by rationing, and spread available supplies as fairly as possible.

Kiss for Senator

[Acme Telephoto.]

Marie Squires, 15, who is known as the Texas Rangers' sweetheart, bestows kiss on Andrew Jackson Houston after he took oath as Texas senator.

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—Andrew Jackson Houston, who will celebrate his 87th birthday this month, took the oath today as a United States senator from Texas. Houston was escorted to the rostrum by Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.]. Vice President Henry A. Wallace administered the oath.

The new senator cancelled a scheduled press conference, explaining he was "too tired" from the 1,500 mile train trip from La Porte, Tex. His physician, Dr. Delano Aves of La Porte, said Houston is in "excellent" physical condition.

Houston issued a statement expressing his support of President Roosevelt's foreign policy and said he favored every possible aid for Britain. He urged that capital and labor cooperate to keep arms industries at the peak of production.

The new senator said he is supporting Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel in the Texas senatorial campaign. O'Daniel appointed the son of Sam Houston as an interim senator following the death of Senator Morris Sheppard [D., Tex.]. Houston will serve until a Texas senator qualifies after the special election on June 28.

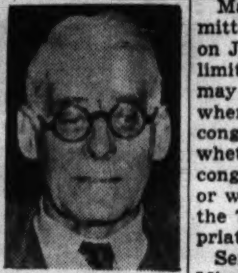
GETS LIFE TERM FOR MURDER OF COURT OFFICER

John Panok, 18 years old, who pleaded guilty two weeks ago to the murder on April 11 of Probation Officer Ernest Wehr near Joliet, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday by Judge James V. Bartley in Will county Circuit court. Panok, who had been a ward of the Will County court most of his life, shot and killed the officer while Wehr was taking him to a farm where he was to work. He was captured later in Morris, Grundy county, while sitting in the officer's automobile.

HOUSE GETS BILL TO O. K. WORK ON SEAWAY PROJECT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—Legislation was introduced in the house today authorizing President Roosevelt to negotiate with Canada for construction of the controversial St. Lawrence river seaway.



Representative Mansfield.

A bill to put into effect the terms of an agreement with Canada, as transmitted to congress on March 21, was introduced by Representative Joseph J. Mansfield [D., Tex.], chairman of the house Rivers and Harbors committee.

Congressional critics of the President's pet project, which twice has been defeated in the senate when treaties were submitted, expect a bitter contest. They say the project faces likely defeat.

Informed congressional sources predicted that Mr. Roosevelt will attempt to stampede congress into quick and favorable action on the project—estimated to cost 266 million dollars, of which the United States would furnish 206 millions—by sending up another message on the subject this week.

Mr. Roosevelt's agreement with Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada outlined terms of the joint construction job, but legislation requiring a simple majority in both houses is necessary to fulfill the agreement. The strategy back of this arrangement was to obviate the need of a two-thirds senate vote approving a treaty, the project previously having struck snags in the upper chamber.

Mansfield announced that his committee will begin hearings on the bill on June 16. His measure imposes no limitation on the amount congress may appropriate for the project or where the funds will be obtained. The congressman said he did not know whether the President plans to ask congress for a special appropriation or whether he intends to use part of the 7 billion dollar British aid appropriation.

Senators and representatives from Mississippi valley states have assailed the proposed project as an impracticable scheme—one that, after being kicked around all during the Roosevelt administration, is now brought forward in the guise of a "national defense project."

They are particularly critical of the terms of the agreement freezing the diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago at 1,500 cubic feet per second, and permitting submission to arbitration of any increase in the flow allowed by the United States. This will result, opponents contend, in the development of the St. Lawrence seaway at the expense of the Lakes-to-the-gulf waterway.

ALIEN FAMILIES FORM 26.8% OF N. Y. RELIEF LOAD

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 2.—More than a fourth of this war-minded city's relief population is composed of aliens, it was disclosed today in the annual report of the department of public welfare.

A total of 37,438 alien families are on the relief rolls, or 26.8 per cent of all families on relief, according to the department's figures. The cost of carrying this number of noncitizens is estimated at $18,629,157 a year, or more than $1,400,000 a month.

The number of aliens in the city is 958,000, according to the recent government registration. New York City has approximately one-fifth of all the aliens in the United States. This large unabsorbed body of people is regarded by observers as one of the important factors in the buildup of war hysteria in this metropolis.

While New York City has always had a huge floating foreign population, the war in Europe is swelling this total every day. Thousands of refugees and evacuees, whose thinking is colored by recent experiences abroad, have flocked to the city. Many of the evacuees have private means and refugees on visitors' visas have relatives to care for them so they do not become public charges.

In its discussion of those aliens whose aliens who are on relief, the welfare department insisted WPA practices and the attitude of industry were responsible for the percentage of noncitizens on relief. WPA is precluded by law from hiring noncitizens. Defense industries have shown by their advertisements they want only American citizens because of the possible danger from saboteurs or fifth columnists in employment of aliens.

"If the opportunity to work is a reward reserved for citizens, then the community must face the necessity of supporting aliens in idleness more or less permanently," the welfare department warned.

"If WPA is, among other things, a test of the worker's willingness to work at any kind of a job for his livelihood, congress has exempted all aliens from that test, while requiring citizens to undergo it. This can only be pleasing to the alien who happens to be lazy."

According to the report, one out of every eight persons in the city, or approximately 900,000, received some form of public assistance during the year. While this was a drop from 1935 when one out of every five persons was dependent on public aid, Welfare Commissioner William Hudson said the city was "approaching the irreducible minimum caseload of families that have no employable members."

Of the $128,239,171 expended by the department during the fiscal year 1939-'40, the city contributed $77,567,028; the state, $42,066,769, and the federal government, $8,605,374.

DECK OF TRIBUNE SHIP UTILIZED TO CARRY NEWSPRINT

Normal Capacity Boosted 700 Tons, or 25%.

The Heron Bay, one of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S fleet of newsprint and pulpwood cargo vessels, docked at the Tribune warehouse in the Chicago river yesterday morning with a cargo of 3,460 tons gross weight—the largest newsprint cargo the ship has carried to date.

The Heron Bay's normal capacity of 2,770 tons of newsprint [below decks] was increased approximately 25 per cent by the loading of 700 tons on the deck. T. C. Brand, Tribune traffic manager, said the ship was probably the first on the Great Lakes to carry a considerable cargo of newsprint on the deck. The deck was utilized to conserve shipping.

Pulpwood Carried on Deck.

This advance in newsprint transportation was an outgrowth of the method by which pulpwood, the raw material of newsprint, is usually shipped. Tribune ships plying between THE TRIBUNE'S timber stands in Quebec and the paper mill at Thorold, Ont., have for years carried pulpwood on deck. In the construction of the motorship Chicago Tribune, this principle was applied to newsprint carrying. Part of the deck was raised to increase the hold capacity. The raised portion, called a "trunk," protects the newsprint.

Later newsprint wrapper was loaded on the decks of ships of the Tribune fleet in a similar manner. In April the Heron Bay carried a small experimental newsprint cargo from Thorold to Chicago on its first trip of the 1941 season. The experiment was a success, and it was decided to load newsprint on the deck to take advantage of the ship's ability to carry more weight. Newsprint is a light cargo compared to bulk shipments of grain, coal, sand, and similar materials. Previously the Heron Bay's full carrying capacity had not been utilized.

How the Rolls Were Loaded.

In loading the newsprint on the deck the ship's hatch covers were first covered with large tarpaulins. Rolls of newsprint were placed on top of the tarpaulins in three sections, the ends of the rolls facing outward to prevent the cargo rolling off the ship if it should break loose from its lashings in heavy weather. Blocks were placed beneath the end rolls of each of the three piles of newsprint.

The tarpaulins then were folded over the first layer of newsprint rolls. This protected the newsprint, and the tarpaulins were secured firmly to the pile when the weight of two more layers of newsprint was placed on top.

Tarpaulins then were thrown over all three layers of newsprint in each pile and made fast at the bottom. Each section was lashed to the deck with ⅝ inch wire cable, which was fastened to cleats in the deck with a chain puller.

Unloading of the newsprint on deck with the two electric power cranes at the Tribune warehouse was somewhat faster than the unloading of the hold cargo, since it was not necessary to maneuver the newsprint rolls thru the hatches. The Heron Bay is scheduled to begin its return journey to Thorold early today.

URGE 10 MILLION DOLLAR PEGGED LEVY FOR COUNTY

Board Seeks Way Out of Financial Bog.

The Cook county government's financial troubles were outlined yesterday by a series of actions taken at the meeting of county commissioners. Knee deep in deficits, the board did these things:

1. Went on record in favor of legislation to give the county a pegged levy of $11,000,000 for election years and $10,000,000 for nonelection years. The vote was 8 to 1, with three Republicans not voting.

2. Received a counter analysis to a study made by Arnold L. Lund, former state representative, which blamed a lack of interest in economy for the increase of $5,015,858 in operating costs between 1933 and 1941.

Elevator Project Deferred.

3. Shelved the project to install new elevators in the county building.

4. Approved the setting up of a new bureau to help collect delinquent personal property taxes. A head clerk at $275 a month and 10 deputy sheriffs at $225 a month will continue the recent practice of threatening seizure of business property pending tax payment.

State Senator Richard J. Daley, who also is the deputy county controler, tol dthe board that his pegged levy bill is the county's only hope of a quick rescue from financial chaos.

How Revenue Figures Compare.

The $11,000,000 and $10,000,000 tax revenue assured the county under this measure compares with $6,827,000 now being received from taxation. Expenditures under the 1941 budget will be $20,828,000. Tax revenues are supplemented by receipts from fee offices and tax penalty payments, but the sharp drop in the latter caused by the gradual decline in tax delinquency totals since the depression depths is the immediate cause of the fund shortage.

Clayton F. Smith, board president, said that County Auditor Lee J. Howard's analysis of operating costs explained away allegedly unjustified expense boosts found by Lund. Lund had asserted that $2,419,526—about half of the total increase—was unexplained.

This sum includes 23 items, Smith asserted, among them rental paid for outside offices, $100,000 for additional mechanics for building maintenance, a contribution of $21,800 toward a WPA project, and wage increases.

TAXPAYERS JAM OFFICE

Taxpayers jammed County Treasurer John Toman's office yesterday and handed over $3,065,992 in payments on 22,377 real and personal property assessments before 5 p. m., when William J. Lake, chief clerk, closed the office books for the day. The office remained open to receive payments until 8 p. m., however, and a total of 8,000 persons paid their tax instalments before the penalty deadline.

Yesterday's over the counter payments brought total collections this year to $48,458,051. There was no comparative figure for 1940 available, since many large payments already made will not be tabulated for several days. Lake estimated that another 30 or 35 million dollars has been paid but is not yet tabulated. A record volume of 80,000 pieces of mail has flooded the office this year, Lake said.

At the close of business Saturday, when tabulated collections for the year totaled $45,392,059, the 1941 total was $429,000 ahead of the comparable 1940 figure.

TAX COLLECTION BILLS BACKED BY 8 CIVIC GROUPS

New tax collection legislation, designed by Gov. Green's advisory tax commission, yesterday received the approval of eight civic organizations whose representatives met in the Union League club with Deneen Watson, commission chairman.

The organizations were the Union League club, Illinois Education association, Woman's City club, Illinois League of Women Voters, Chicago Teachers' union, Illinois Agricultural association, Association of Chicago Teachers, and the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The legislation is expected to encourage quick disposal of foreclosed property by making salvage attractive to those with the greatest interest, said George O. Fairweather, director of the citizens' tax collection committee. Minimum price provisions protect the interest of the county.

Classification Provided For.

First, a classification of heavily delinquent properties is provided for. These classifications will be foreclosed in order of the extent of delinquency, beginning in January, 1942.

Unless a higher bid is received at the time of the foreclosure sale, the county is required to bid in the property at the amount of the tax lien, or at not less than 25 per cent of the assessed value. The lower of these figures would be applied, in order to restore to the market parcels of land on which delinquencies are so large as to swallow the property.

If the county bids in the property at the foreclosure sale the owner is given a year to reacquire good title by paying not less than 25 per cent of the assessed value. The term "owner" is defined as any mortgagor, bondholder, or other person with an interest.

Next in Line.

At the expiration of the owner's option any municipal body has the same privilege of acquiring title. This, Fairweather explained, would make it possible for governments such as park or sanitary districts to acquire for public purposes, without the necessity of condemnation proceedings, much low grade property which otherwise would be unsalable and result in blighted areas.

If the property is salvaged by neither the owner nor a municipality it is listed for two years with all licensed brokers in the county at the price paid by the county plus subsequently accruing taxes. If unsold at the end of this two year period it is put up for sale at a scavanger auction.

Each step of this procedure would require approval by the County court.

The purpose of the procedure, the commission members said, is to clear title to tax delinquent property to make it salable.

Other provisions give protection against suit to the collector, sheriff, or bailiff who enforces tax seizures. Six bills embodying the commission's recommendations were introduced at the state legislature's last session before the holidays.

CUNEO AWARDED STATE CONTRACT FOR TAX STAMPS

Springfield, Ill., June 2 (AP).—The state printing division today awarded to the Cuneo Press of Chicago a contract for printing 100 million stamps to be used in collecting the new 2 cents per package cigaret tax.

J. J. Donoghue, superintendent of the division, said the company's bid was 11.2 cents per 1,000 stamps, or $11,200 for the initial order. The stamps are guaranteed by the printers against counterfeiting. Six other firms bid on the contract.

The tax stamps will be sold by the state finance department to wholesale distributors, who will affix them to packages of cigarets which they sell to retailers.

"HITLER WON'T WIN!"

One week ago tonight

President Roosevelt declared

"An unlimited national emergency!"

—On what FACTS did he base this fateful decision?

—WHY his supreme confidence in the ultimate outcome?

ONE man, confidant of Winston Churchill and the President's closest friend and adviser, was in position to answer these questions—and the editor of the nation's great all-family magazine asked that one man.

Read HARRY HOPKINS' Hitler Won't Win, the most rational and convincing statement of the war, in the July issue of The American Magazine—written in May, out today—the most amazing feat in blitz-reporting ever scored for its readers by a 30-day publication!

Over 6 million men and women have come to expect service like this of The American Magazine. They look to it to give them a complete panorama of the American scene—and of the world scene as it applies to America.

THERE are no partitions in the American home today—if there ever were partitions, they are gone now. The problems of one have become the problems of all. Recognizing this, The American Magazine is edited with the whole family in mind—for men, for women and for the teen-agers.

It contains, always, something for each—always something for all. For instance, in this issue out today:

—The Headacre Plot, a streamlined mystery novel, complete in one issue, featuring the famous Cape Cod sleuth CAPTAIN ASEY MAYO.

—I Had to Say No 20 Times a Day by Broadway's current glamour girl—CAROL BRUCE, charting her all-out defense against trespassers, young and old.

—The Cure, by FAITH BALDWIN, in which a husband deliberately throws his wife into the path of an amorous juggernaut.

—The Price of Your Freedom, in which Vice President HENRY A. WALLACE tells American men, women and youths what their duties are in this emergency.

—Interesting People in the American Scene—page after page of news pictures, many in full color, about personalities in sports, entertainment, science.

—Washington's 5% Boys—a jolting expose of the new brand of Washington manufacturers' agents who are figuring defense contract profits on the white stripes of the flag.

—Altogether 61 FEATURES—fiction, articles, shorts, cartoons, pictures that will be seized and devoured by the whole family in 2,300,000 homes.

★ ★ ★

Today Business, too, has the whole family in mind—in its every thought—in its every act.

And Business, too, is digging deeper—more soundly than it ever did before—and, of necessity, in a bigger way.

The American Magazine, with its tremendous circulation of 2,300,000 homes, and its primary readership of over 6,000,000 men, women and teen-agers, does these three things:

—It sells goods today

—Through cultivating tomorrow's oncoming markets, it sells goods tomorrow—insures the perpetuity of your business —And, because it stays in the home for 30 days, it has time to "Fix" your product indelibly in the minds of a MIGHTY MARKET.

For world news—for advertising service, and for buying guidance, 2,300,000 American families constantly look to The American Magazine.

Save Our Republic

THE LESSON OF CRETE.

The abandonment of Crete by the British imperial forces is an event which should be of great significance to us in this country. The retirement suggests that the German army, 21 months after the war began in Poland, still retains the immense margin of strength which it had in the beginning. If the gap has been closed, there is little in the record of the last 21 months to show it.

It took the Germans 28 days to overcome all resistance in Poland. Denmark was taken in half a day. The war in Norway lasted 24 days. Holland was beaten down in four days. Belgium lasted 18 days. Luxemburg was a breakfast. France held out for 39 days. Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria chose not to fight. Jugo-Slavia was subdued in a week and Greece in less than two weeks. The campaign in Crete lasted for 12 days. When the war began in 1939 it was generally predicted that the Poles could not win, but they did as well as any other opponent and better than many, for the Polish geographical defenses were the weakest and their army was rated far below that of the western allies in numbers, equipment, and training.

The Germans started with a marked superiority in arms, in training, and in strategy. It is difficult to measure morale, but whatever the comparison may have been at the start the probability is that the German army, with its unbroken record of victories, has much the higher morale today. So far as we can tell, the German superiority in the air continues; no other meaning can be attached to the Cretan victory. The same superiority exists all along the line, from the biggest tanks to the Tommy guns. There is reason to believe that the German staff has been quicker to learn the lessons of the war than their enemies who had greater need to learn them.

These are unwelcome observations, but we do not see how the truth of them can be denied. Their implications for us are not necessarily tragic. All the evidence shows the German military force is now the master of any military force which can be brought to bear against it anywhere within the European sphere. Britain itself may well be an exception, but at any rate the German army, strong as it is in Europe, does not menace America, for the sufficient reason that there is no means of transporting the army and its equipment to our side of the ocean.

The danger to us is that the war mongers in this country will succeed in sending our naval and military forces, unprepared as they are, against the Germans in the German sphere. The war party in this country isn't asking whether we are any better prepared than were the French, the British, the Belgians, and the rest to resist. The answer is obvious. At the moment, and for long months to come, we cannot hope to cope with the German military machine. In almost every detail of preparation we are hopelessly inferior.

Suppose American troops had been in Crete. Would they have had modern anti-aircraft equipment? They would not. Modern artillery? No. Modern tanks? Again no. Would they have been better trained than the Australians? No. Would they have been schooled in overcoming an invasion from the air? No. The Australians do not lack courage. They do lack equipment, training, and leadership, and in these particulars we are even worse off than they were. Had our troops been in Crete they would merely have added to the confusion of retreat by adding to it.

We are now beginning to get production of war materials, but only beginning; and we do not yet know, for lack of testing in the field, the value of much of the equipment which is coming from the factories. We do know that the regular army has been so intermingled with National Guards and conscripts that a great deal of time must pass before we can be said to have any army at all. There is little evidence as yet to show that the various branches of the service know how to coöperate.

If we get into the war, our soldiers will be sent not to England, in all probability, but to the points of peril to the British empire. The American leadership will be untried and inexperienced. So far as Washington is concerned, its colonialism has long been apparent. We have accepted British leadership in diplomacy, in war finance, and in many other particulars and we have persisted in this attitude despite the unsatisfactory record of accomplishment overseas. The probability is that we shall continue to play the subservient rôle if we get into the war in the Near East. We shall fight it without proper equipment, with ill-trained troops, according to strategic and tactical considerations which have proved deficient.

The war mongers want us to get into the war and that is as far ahead as they care to think. They are, in truth, inviting us to share in any Cretan disasters which may lie ahead.

THE RIGHT TO SHAKE DOWN.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor is taking stern measures and threatening even more stern ones to stop strikes in defense industries.

The council has threatened with disciplinary action any directly controled local union that calls a defense strike without first making full use of opportunities for conciliation and mediation. It calls on affiliated international unions to take similar action against any of their locals that fail to follow the same policy. Members of the council have even threatened to expel the powerful machinists' union for backing the strike of one of its locals in San Francisco shipyards.

This is a wise policy. In adopting it the AFL bosses have taken cognizance of the rising tide of public opinion against defense strikes. But they still remain blind to the equally strong tide of opinion against racketeering in their movement.

George Browne and his panderer representative, the sweet smelling Willie Bioff, were indicted the other day in New York on the charge of shaking down employers in the motion picture industry in which the AFL union, that of the stagehands, has jurisdiction. Only a few days before Bioff got a continuance of his income tax case in Los Angeles, in which he is charged with failure to split his shakedown profits with Uncle Sam. He claimed that his services were essential to national defense as the collective bargaining representative of technicians making educational films for the army.

Browne still sits on the AFL executive council. He voted, presumably, for the self-denying resolution on the right to strike, which labor leaders have repeatedly extolled as the most sacred right of labor. Judging from the council's long continued toleration of Browne and his gangster associates, the right to shake down is even more precious and untouchable.

THE VOICE OF VERSAILLES AGAIN.

The Mansion house speech of Anthony Eden, British foreign minister, was apparently intended to be an acceptance of Mr. Roosevelt's broadcast. Mr. Eden explicitly made Mr. Roosevelt's war aims the British war aims. The doctrine of the four freedoms everywhere in the world was adopted. Great Britain joined the United States in an alliance of purpose and principle. Freedom of the seas and freedom of trade and opportunity also had indorsement.

Free spoken Laborites in parliament later said Mr. Eden's remarks were hypocritical. London took its cue from Washington. Washington in turn takes its cue from London. Naturally the British government welcomed Mr. Roosevelt's advances. He can write his own ticket if only it is a one way trip to Europe or Africa for the United States. The fair words spoken now will quickly pass out of the memory of the persons who utter them but the threatening words will not be forgotten by the people threatened.

Mr. Eden said that in a system of free economic coöperation Germany must play a part. "But here I draw a firm distinction. We must never forget that Germany is the worst master Europe has yet known. . . . Our political and military terms of peace will be designed to prevent repetition of Germany's misdeeds."

The peace when it comes may again be one of dictate. It again may be an attempt at strangulation. Who, in a war of such destruction, will be the dictator? The military situation may not put the decision in Berlin. It certainly does not put it in London. If Berlin dictates, Mr. Eden's forecast of "our political and military terms of peace" may be adopted by the dictator. There may be another peace of Versailles and even a worse one. We don't know who will be its victim unless the entire world is to be regarded as the inevitable sufferer.

Except for Mr. Roosevelt this tone probably would not be taken in Great Britain. His new world order accepted by the British government is fantastic as a flight of altruism. Behind the specious ideals of the war program—the freedoms everywhere in the world—there is a reality which will be embodied in relentlessness. The loser must know what to expect. What is called a peace will be his destruction. It will be visited upon him with a severity intended to prevent him ever from raising his head again.

Mr. Roosevelt has declared himself for such a war. He tries to lead the United States into it. He has encouraged the British to make it a war of extermination in spite of the odds against them in attacking Hitler's strongholds. He may not have reflected on the risks he himself is taking. The defeated French are checking back on his promises. Other nations may hold him responsible for their sufferings. He could advertise but he couldn't deliver.

Mr. Roosevelt has an eye to his place in history. In this concern he is another Woodrow Wilson. If Great Britain falls Mr. Roosevelt's place in history may be distinguished as the cause of it and if this republic is overthrown by its internal enemies he may have still another distinction. Neither will be recorded as commendable or desirable.

MOTTO FOR WAR MONGERS.

In the days when "Twenty-three, skidoo" was considered the ultimate in snappy comebacks the wisecrackers had another favorite: "Lend me your face to fight a bulldog." It could be revived appropriately as a motto for the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies and all the rest of the old men and women who are trying to send the young men of this nation to foreign wars. It won't be their noses that will be bitten.

Editorials of the Day

THANKSGIVING, 1942.

[New York Herald-Tribune.]

It is good news that Thanksgiving day is to be taken out of the field of New Deal experimentation and restored to its traditional date. Now, why not start to make the day worth celebrating? We set down a few of the more obvious items deserving place on such a list of domestic agenda:

1. The federal budget balanced, so far as normal expenditures go. Borrowing only for defense.
2. The dollar once more a real dollar.
3. One strong man to run industrial defense with authority to command, "Full speed ahead!"
4. A new labor act and a new secretary of labor, fair to both sides.

Every reader will have pet suggestions to add. No doubt the President has a few of his own. Having found that confession is good for the soul, may he make it a habit! If so, what a Thanksgiving!

SUMMER IN TEXAS.

[Los Angeles Times.]

Summer may not have arrived in other parts of the country, but in Texas it is in full swing. Proof is the announcement that Dr. John R. Brinkley, goat-gland advocate, has entered the race for the United States senate.

Such an announcement could not be made except in the hot season when anything is to be expected. Texas politics being what it is, or what they are, it could not be denied that Brinkley has a chance; he came uncomfortably close to being elected governor of Kansas on two occasions. His race will at least add interest to the contest, tho it had plenty before.

A goat-gland gladiator is about the only thing the United States senate lacks now, anyway.

No one thinks of pampering the lawn dandelion to soften its moral fiber.—Detroit News.

DEATH AMONG THE RUINS.

The cablegrams telling the story of the battle of Crete thus far have neglected to comment upon damage to the famous remains of the Minoan civilization which flourished there before the dawn of history. A few words last Sunday, however, provided a clew: "Not a stone was left standing" in Candia, Crete's largest city.

It may be inferred, therefore, that the Cretan museum in Candia, which contained all of the important Minoan relics that have been excavated since 1908, has been destroyed. This is a grievous loss to archaeology, but some comfort may be found in the fact that many of these objects, whose artistic value is notable, have been reproduced, and the facsimiles may be seen in other museums in Europe and the United States.

* * *

Crete is a relatively new field for archaeologists; it was pioneered in 1884, but not worked until 1896 when Arthur Evans of Oxford went there. His excavations on the site of the prehistoric palace of Knossos did not begin until 1900.

* * *

The University of Pennsylvania led American investigation into Cretan antiquities; its expeditions began work in 1901 and were active until 1925 under the able direction of Richard Seager. During this period the illustrated magazines published hundreds of pictures of Minoan sculpture, vases, and other art objects.

* * *

The Minoan civilization was contemporaneous with the ancient Egyptian, and it represented a formidable sea power in the Mediterranean. It flourished from 3400 to 1100 B. C. In Egypt this corresponded to Dynasties I. to XX.

* * *

"The pottery, the textile manufactures, the sculpture and painting of these people, their gem and ivory work, their metal and inlaid work, is as admirable as any that mankind has produced": Thus H. G. Wells in "The Outline of History." The Minoans also had the equivalents of modern plumbing.

MODERN KINGS.

In days of old when kings were bold
They left their castles and their kin
When there were bloody wars to win.
They led their knights thru many fights,
In days of yore kings did not hide;
But hard they fought and hard they died.
Old stories tell how brave kings fell,
Bleeding, bleeding, never pleading,
Never crying, never sighing,
Bravely dying, bravely dying!
In modern wars while soldiers ride
To meet the foe—the rulers hide;
While brave men stay to die and slay
The kings with fear sail far away!

Origin of the Symbol "73."

In the beginning of telegraphy, receiving was by means of an instrument recording the Morse dots and dashes on tape, from which the signals were transcribed by the operator. At first actual business was rare, allowing considerable time for practice, which took the form of conversation between operators during the afternoon and evening hours. These confabs terminated with the parting salutation G EVE—a contraction for good evening, which later was further contracted to the present GE.

The Morse characters for G EVE are ——. .. ... —. The earliest operators made their signals in such fashion that combinations were rife and the G EVE was often so run together that the combination was variously misinterpreted. As operators began reading by sound, this salutation was read as a poorly made 73 ——.. ...—. and the younger recruits adopted 73 in the belief that it was intended.

As far back as I can remember, 73 has been used as a parting salutation, meaning "best wishes," "good-by," or to express congratulations on promotion, marriage, the arrival of an heir, or success of any kind. Eugene E. Bruckner.

Bet You Never Heard This.

From the big Webster:

"T. D. A clay pipe; so-called from the initials, probably of the maker, stamped on many of them. Colloq., U. S."

It was new to us, altho we have heard most American colloquialisms that have dictionary recognition, and many that haven't. We are prepared to declare the expression obsolete, and clay pipe-smoking along with it. We haven't seen a clay pipe in action for a coon's age.

AIR RAIDER AT NIGHT.

Crawling slow across the dark,
Why this masquerade of droning,
Mockery of bee intoning?
Searchlights probe and prove the lie,
Spider crawling in the sky.

Spider, spider, spin your thread
Near a sky-born flower bed.
Ease your ruthless spider thirsting
On the bloom of shellfire bursting.
God, remember all your flies
When a spider crawls the skies!

TRANSFUSIONS AND THE TYPES OF BLOOD.

THERE may come a time during illness when life "hangs by a thread." Then it is that nature puts up her bravest fight. The chief objective of medical science is to extend a helping hand to vital forces in an attempt to reactivate the spark of life. Thousands upon thousands are living today because physicians would not give up. They were willing to use remedies and procedures many of which have been developed in our own generation.

The suggestion that fresh, healthy blood would be useful and that it could be passed into the veins of a sick person was first made centuries ago. It is recorded that Pope Innocent VIII., in the year 1492, received a "donation" from a stalwart youth. Animals were sometimes used as contributors and communicating tubes were made of bone. Successful transfusions from animal to animal occurred in the middle of the 17th century. But the maneuver became unpopular because the one necessary link—namely, that the material is not identical in its behavior—was lacking.

It was not until Landsteiner and Shattuck demonstrated in 1900 that some fluids would precipitate others that the so-called blood groups were established. Then another dozen years were required to develop a technique which was practical, easily conducted, and from which all uncertainty had been eliminated. With the entry of the United States into the world war, the method had been carefully stabilized and accepted. Today scarcely a hospital is without a proper team of experts for the conduct of this life saving operation. The blood can be typed, the donor obtained, and the whole process set in motion within 30 minutes.

Because of the importance of the plan, great care must be taken to determine that the circulation of donor and recipient are matched. Otherwise the hazard to the patient will be increased. Only fluid from members of the same group can be utilized.

There are 4 major classes known as O, A, B, and AB. If trouble is to ensue it is due to an ingredient found in the red cells which causes them to clump together when brought into contact with those of another variety. We can understand what happens if we will add a few drops of vinegar to a glass of fresh milk. A clabber will form promptly.

An "AB" individual is known as a "universal recipient." In other words, elements from any one may be added to his circulation without fear of their massing together. An "O" patient is called a "universal donor" because his blood does not contain even a fraction of this "gluing" factor and, therefore, cannot force other cells to cluster. Fifty out of 100 persons belong in this classification, but only 3 per cent can employ fluid from all others.

Ordinary indications for transfusions are hemorrhages or prostrating weakness. This may call for from 1 to 2 pints. Why is this needed? Because the victims may not possess enough red corpuscles to carry oxygen to the tissues. Adding a new supply, therefore, will increase the total and aid its proper distribution. Suitable sources are vigorous young men between 18 and 40 who are free from syphilis and malaria.

Recently plasma from which the cells have been removed has been shown to possess real value. In fact, it is next to the whole substance in importance. It has the advantage that it may be dried and preserved for a long time. Later, it may be placed in solution and injected directly into a vein.

FAINTING OR THE HEART.

Mrs. B. writes: What is the difference in treatment between a fainting spell and a heart attack?

REPLY.

As a rule, fainting is a temporary condition—not quite enough circulation to the brain. There is little to do except to make the patient comfortable, squeezing blood out of the abdomen, so that it can reach the pumping organ. A heart attack may call for the administration of powerful sedatives, drugs to dilate the blood vessels or stimulants such as oxygen. Then follow weeks or months of careful management to avoid a recurrence.

DETERIORATION.

M. W. writes: What is softening of the brain? Can a young child be afflicted?

REPLY.

The term "softening" implies degeneration, which may follow infection, pressure, or loss of circulation. Microbes will not respect age—attacking infants and the elderly alike.

OLD ENGLAND WILL SURVIVE.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., May 27.—I note the long letter signed T. G. S. offering a "basis for peace" and suggesting that Britain take up headquarters in Canada, virtually moving out of England and letting any one [Hitler] take over.

Well, it is to laugh. From the time of Julius Cæsar there has been a Britain. England [Britain] is a growth of the centuries. Emperor William said "The English are sailors." That was the secret, and that old guy knew it.

T. G. S. talks about giving up India. Well, if we could only ask everybody how they got it, we could take it away from nearly everybody.

The English being on a small island had to trade with the world, and they became sailors, and they had to meet every sort of competition, and they met it. The roots of old England are too far down to be uprooted by any arrangement with Hitler or any other person.

No, it is not Ottawa, but London that is going to speak, sadly chastened maybe, but yet it will be the real England.

A GOLF COURSE PERIL.

Chicago, May 29.—Yesterday afternoon I played golf at the beautiful Sheridan center in Lincoln park, and it is beautiful. However, I find something there to which I believe THE TRIBUNE should call attention. The seventh or eighth hole parallels Lake Shore drive and the hooked shot on this fairway will some day be the cause of a serious accident. The cars on Lake Shore drive immediately adjoining the fairway are averaging 50 miles an hour, running close together. A golf ball striking the windshield of one of these cars will undoubtedly cause the driver to lose control of the wheel and autos to pile up for blocks behind.

I hope this condition can be corrected before some fatalities occur. A screen placed around this fairway might help considerably.

FINES FOR MORON DRIVERS.

Chicago, May 26.—Now that the Noise Reduction council has officially told us that screeching horns are the city's greatest noise irritant [I believe about 3 million Chicagoans will agree to that finding] what is going to be done about it?

If I were in a position of authority I would give those moron drivers who honk their horns long and vociferously a generous fine, and if this were done for about two weeks, Chicago would secure some much needed revenue and the long suffering public would secure a much needed rest.

It is bad enough to have to listen to screeching horns all day long, but to be awakened night after night by some moron's blast is infuriating.

PLENTY OF FEED IN THE WEST.

Chicago, May 29.—In this morning's paper you had an article on the front page, "Needy Americans Deprived of Butter"—caused by lack of feed for cattle in eastern states.

In Martin county, Minnesota, there are stored in steel bins 596,000 bushels of corn [1937-'38-'39]. Why don't they use that corn for the starved eastern herds? There must be millions of bushels of corn stored in other midwestern counties.

MARRIED MEN AND THE DRAFT.

Chicago, May 29.—It is unfortunate that the government did not set a standard rule governing the induction of married men into the army. According to the selective service act, the matter of induction of individuals seems to be entirely up to the local boards. The writer is acquainted with numerous wives who are employed and have been for several years past—at present earning a salary which would enable them to support themselves in good style—yet their husbands have been deferred because local boards ruled that "any married man, whether his wife is employed or not, is considered a dependent." And these men are not employed in the defense industry. Other boards have been known to induct men whose wives' salaries are almost insufficient to cover living expenses.

Since married men will apparently be exempt in the future, it would appear, in all fairness to the couples whose homes have been broken up, that the married men now inducted under the selective service act be honorably discharged from the army.

COURAGE TO PRINT TRUTH.

Chicago, May 29.—You know, TRIBUNE, I have read you for almost 12 years—as long as I have been able to read English. I am Danish.

I love you, TRIBUNE, and I read you from cover to cover. You have the courage to print the truth. I know history pretty well and have traveled a great deal, so my experience is not one-sided.

Your article today, "The Roosevelt Talk," picked that talk well apart. I sat on the corner of my trunk and listened to him. Once in a while I had to let out a howl, especially when he mentioned the bombs to be in our back yard, already scaring the people with fairy tales. Has he forgotten there are a few, quite a few, people who still can think for themselves?

I know, if war comes to our shores, in one minute America is united. If we go abroad to war, America is divided.

G. H. G.

OLD FOLKS ARE ON BOTH SIDES.

Chicago, May 26.—Of course you won't print this. You and your America First committee! America First, my foot! Why don't they come out and call themselves what they are. Nazis, Hitler First!

One of their rabble arousers was in my office yesterday ranting about how dumb we Americans are; how soft, how lazy! I tried to find out what she was driving at and it was just this:

We must band together and march on Washington. She predicts revolution here and bloodshed. Nice thoughts for a woman of 70. At her age she ought to try to get some of the beauty out of life and quit reforming the world. It's too late for her to derive any benefit from it anyway.

D. S. G.

A LARGE ORDER.

Chicago, May 31.—You repeat today the plausible but pointless argument that Germany cannot invade the United States. Suppose she cannot, and suppose further that you are right in saying that "the war Mr. Roosevelt is threatening will cost more than our foreign trade is worth"—still one question remains unanswered: Is not a great power like the United States under obligations to defend and maintain, if possible, certain rights of its own and certain principles of civilization outside its own boundaries, altho to do so brings no pecuniary profit?

The statesmanship that would have us withdraw to hibernate within our own borders and allow a predatory and barbarous power to take charge of the rest of the world unmolested is too timid, circumscribed, and shortsighted to satisfy this nation very long.

EXIT ILLUMINATION.

Chicago, June 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In a two apartment building where switches are installed in both apartments, is the landlord, who occupies one apartment, required to furnish and keep entrance hall lights burning, and if so, what hours is he required to furnish said entrance hall lights? E. H.

Section 66-1 of the City Code requires that the "means of exit in every existing building shall be provided with normal illumination." This wording is broad enough to cover even private residences that are not wired for electric lighting. Since the context deals with building construction, the wording might be construed as limited to the installation of the equipment, or at any rate, to leave subsequent operation of the lights to a "rule of reason" test. There is no more specific ordinance fixing definite hours during which the lights must be on.

Since the form of the verb is passive, it does not indicate whether the duty is placed on the landlord or the tenant, but [as is in the case of screens, sec. 96-16] it will probably be construed against the landlord. Except for these doubtful provisions of the city code, a landlord is under no general obligation to maintain hall or stairway lights. 36. C. J. 214.

That's Congestion on West Side Streets.

BY HAL FOUST.

West side and west suburban motorists drove to downtown jobs yesterday morning in congestion with which they have become familiar but not accustomed. Drivers frowned and glanced at wrist watches or instrument panel clocks during prolonged blockades. Others muttered and some blasted their horns as a north or south bound truck interrupted the loop bound parade in forcing a right of way across the boulevards.

It was a familiar work day experience for most of the motorists, their twice daily diet of annoyances, morning and evening. There was one note of cheer from an announcement by Ald. Robert C. Quirk [48th], chairman of a council subcommittee on one-way streets, that he will seek gas tax money from the city, county or state to anaugurate two one-way traffic systems between Grant park and the western city limits. For more than a decade the west side has been promised relief from the hazards and delays of its traffic congestion. Conditions have been getting worse.

Steady Streams of Traffic.

At 7 o'clock, a survey in The Tribune road car, assisted by a Chicago Motor club engineer, found steady streams of inbound traffic in Washington and in Jackson boulevards. It was moving briskly between stop lights.

Thirty minutes later the volume had grown beyond the maximum for convenient travel. Four lanes inbound on one-way Warren boulevard moved at a satisfactory clip until crowded into three lanes and later two lanes on two-way Washington boulevard east of Ogden avenue. This was at 7:36 a. m. There were six enforced stops between Ashland boulevard and Wacker drive. It took 10 minutes to cover the mile and a half, an average speed of nine miles an hour.

Clutch Engaged 41 Times.

On a second test run over this mile and a half, the clutch pedal was depressed 41 times for stopping and starting and shifting thru the gears. This was at 8:23 a. m. It was lots of wear and tear on the automobile as well as on the patience and nerves of the driver.

The worst experience was on a drive in Washington boulevard leaving Ashland at 8:51 a. m., nine minutes before many workers were due on the job. The street was packed with cars. After taking our turn to cross Ogden avenue on the green interval we got no farther than a block before we were stopped by a red light at Loomis street.

Bumper to Bumper for Two Blocks.

Behind a red light at Morgan street, cars were stopped bumper to bumper for two blocks. The mass couldn't clear an intersection in one interval of the green at Halsted street. The red at this intersection first stopped us two blocks west. We advanced a block and a half on the green and were stopped for a second red interval, still a half block from the crossing.

We caught the next two light controled crossings on the green but were stopped by a red at Clinton street and by another red at Canal street in the subway under the North Western tracks. After crossing the river, we found half of the street blockaded by cars waiting to turn left in Wacker drive.

Seven Miles an Hour.

The average speed for the mile and a half, including 12 stops for lights, for traffic jams, and crossing vehicles, and for turning vehicles, was seven miles an hour.

A hurried look at the other streets from the west side found Jackson boulevard traffic bunched into packs two and three blocks long. Wide Randolph street was cluttered with vegetable wagons and trucks barring its use for passenger travel. In Roosevelt road, the broad pavement was hazardous, chiefly because of illegal parking—double parking, diagonal parking, and right angle parking, and parking in solid columns under "no parking" signs. Other streets leading to the loop were choked with street cars, trucks, and curb parking.

Monroe street, which would be coupled with Jackson boulevard as one of the proposed one-way traffic systems, was receiving little use. Randolph street would be coupled with Washington for the second one-way system.

The motor club engineer said that statistically a pavement under one-way control can carry three times as much traffic as under two-way control and that the risk for motorists and for pedestrians is reduced 30 to 35 per cent notwithstanding an advance in the travel pace.

DISMISS $925,000 SUIT AGAINST MAYOR MAESTRI

New Orleans, La., June 2 (AP).—Civil Judge Nat W. Bond today dismissed for no cause or right of action a suit under which the state sought to recover $925,000 from Mayor Robert S. Maestri.

The state contended Maestri realized the amount from alleged investments made in the Canal Oil Co., Inc., while Maestri was state conservation commissioner in the old Huey P. Long political organization.

Judge Bond upheld defense exceptions to the suit, filed April 7 by the state conservation commission, state crime commission and Attorney General Eugene Stanley, and held additionally that the statute under which the suit was brought was "too ambiguous."

PAASCH RESIGNS AS EVANSTON'S CHIEF OF POLICE

Charles F. Paasch, Evanston police chief for two years and a member of the suburb's police force for 34 years, resigned on civil service pension last night. Since the city council has deferred action on Mayor S. G. Ingraham's appointment of William O. Freeman to succeed Paasch, Evanston was left without a police chief. No acting chief was appointed.

"When Mayor Ingraham took office [after defeating former Mayor Henry D. Penfield in the April 1 election] he said he would give me the opportunity to get my affairs in order," Paasch said. "I feel that I should step out now."

At the same time a citizen's committee appointed by Ingraham to investigate Freeman turned in its report. The committee cleared Freeman of "election rumors," but failed to recommend him for police chief. The report stated he would "make a creditable record for himself" anywhere except in Evanston, where the rumors already have damaged him.

Freeman was chief of the Evanston police from 1927 until 1939, when he resigned and was succeeded by Paasch.

CHICAGO PASSED UP BY TOURISTS; TRADE LOSS TOLD

A quarter of a billion dollar a year trade with recreational motorists is by-passing Chicago, according to opinions expressed yesterday at the opening of a two day conference of the national touring board of the American Automobile association. The sessions are being held at the Stevens hotel.

Thomas P. Henry of Detroit, president of the AAA, said that reports from all parts of the United States indicate that this summer will be a banner gasoline travel season with a total of about 5½ billion dollars to be spent during 1941 on highway holidays.

Cars By-Pass City Congestion.

"Big cities, including Chicago," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, "are not getting their natural share of this roadside trade. We lack in pavements for easy ingress and egress. Altho the city abounds in entertainment facilities for summer vacations, outdoor sports and night amusements, motorists are inclined to by-pass our congested streets.

"In this by-pass traffic is much of the horde that carries an estimated 400 million dollars to Michigan and 300 million of vacation money to Wisconsin. With better pavement accommodations, Chicago would be a logical place for motorists from south of here to stop and shop en route to the north woods and lakes."

How Hotels Could Help.

"We hotel men are partly to blame for this by-passing," the conference was told by Joseph P. Binns, manager of the Stevens, world's largest hotel. "In the past we have thought we were too big to compete with motels, cabins, auto courts, and such roadside establishment. Now we are beginning to recognize that this highway travel business is too big for us to ignore.

"Several of the leading hotels in the country now are advertising special prices and special arrangements to accommodate automobile tourists without their being high batted by stiff collared bellboys an dby the well groomed traveling salesmen in the lobbies."

Russell E. Singer of Washington, D. C., general manager of the AAA, said that travel on the highway this summer will be influenced in two respects by the armament program. The cantonments will rank high in popularity as destinations for vacation tours. Congestion near these camps will be a hazard. So will convoys of army trucks on the roads.

Singer urged that those visiting friends or relatives in camp arrange for sleeping accommodations in advance because hotel space is scarce near the cantonments. He also suggested that the tourists learn in advance the exact location of the man to be visited.

FOURTH WIFE, AGE 23, WINS DIVORCE FROM DR. HAROLD BLINKS, 50

Mrs. Doris Blinks.

Dr. Harold T. Blinks, 50 years old, a dentist at 800 North Clark street, was divorced yesterday for the fourth time. Mrs. Doris Blinks, 23, of 1400 Lake Shore drive, testified that she spent 10 days in a hospital after the dentist beat her and threatened to throw her out of a window April 15. Judge Rudolph Desort awarded her a cash settlement of $2,300 and hotel stock valued at $3,500. She and the dentist were married in Crown Point, Ind., in 1934 shortly after she went to work for Dr. Blinks as his receptionist.

SHOT IN LEG DURING QUARREL.

KILLS WOMAN, THEN HIMSELF IN S. SIDE HOME

A houseman stabbed and shot a housekeeper to death and then killed himself yesterday in a home at 510 West 61st place, where they were employed.

When Englewood police under Lieut. Thomas O'Donnell arrived, they found that the houseman, Joseph Rathgeb, 55 years old, had locked the doors. They forced their way in and found he had shot himself thru the head. His victim was Mrs. Mary Tatro, 56.

The slain couple were employed by Miss Hannah M. Danson, a retired school teacher, who has been visiting relatives in Milwaukee.

Reached there, Miss Danson said she had no idea what caused the tragedy. Rathgeb roomed at her home about 10 years ago, Miss Danson said, but left five years ago. Last March he returned and she said she gave him his room and board to perform odd jobs.

Mrs. Tatro was employed by Miss Danson for three years as a companion and housekeeper. She was separated from her husband and had three children, according to police.

THEATER CAFE'S CLOSING LAID TO GANGSTER TIEUPS

Michael Todd Forced Out, Says Lawyer.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Why Michael Todd's theater café suddenly was raided and its licenses revoked was revealed yesterday. Police Commissioner Allman had said that the café had developed a bad case of gangsteritis. But until last night the details of the malady had not been given the public.

Café fans will recall that for a few months Todd's name appeared brightest in all Chicago's bright lights and his theater café at Clark street and Lawrence avenue was the largest in physical size and number of patrons in the city.

Todd's mistake, his lawyer explained yesterday, was in choosing his backers. Chief among them was Joseph Fusco, labeled a public enemy in 1931 when he was Al Capone's beer gang foreman and now known as the liquor department manager of the Nitti gang, which is frequently called the "mob," "syndicate," or "outfit."

Victim of Nitti Gang.

Commissioner Allman agreed last night that Todd was the victim of the Nitti gang—that no blame attached to Todd, who is a theatrical producer—not a beer and whisky vendor by profession.

It was upon Commissioner Allman's recommendation that the licenses of the theater café were revoked Saturday by Mayor Kelly. A week previously the place had been raided and seven employés arrested on charges of selling intoxicants to six boys and six girls.

Todd ceased to be the boss of the café on May 15. He had brought to it his Streets of Paris show, a hit at the New York World's fair. All was going well, according to Attorney Robert O. Farrell, who last night spoke for Todd, until Todd's backers tried to turn the café into a "honky tonk."

Should Have Known Better.

Todd, now 39 years old, should have known better, Attorney Farrell admitted than to have entered into any deal with the Capone-Nitti syndicate. As a young man Todd lived in Chicago. His name then was Abe Goldbogen. He had a talent for producing shows. During the Chicago Century of Progress exposition he was the impresario of a flame dance. His star danseuse wore only a coat of paint.

Later he produced a show in New York called "When Ziggy Comes to Town" and it had a run of a week. But Todd was enterprising and eventually he glorified a lot of girls under the name of the Streets of Paris show in the New York classic. He became known as a second Billy Rose and hoped to be called a second Florenz Ziegfeld.

"Todd had the idea for a theater café on a grand scale and came to Chicago to see about a location," Farrell said. "Joe Miller, proprietor of the 885 Club at 885 Rush street, was also interested.

Brings in New Partners.

"Miller argued that Todd didn't know the food and drink business while he, Miller, did. Todd saw the light. That brought in Fusco and Peter Tremont. Miller, Fusco, Tremont, and two others whose names I don't remember put up the money to open the theater café in the old Rainbo Garden, which had a seating capacity of 3,000.

"Did Todd know anything about his new partners?" Farrell was asked.

"Possibly he didn't," Farrell said. "I'm sure I didn't know that any of them had any Capone or Nitti affiliations."

"They put up $60,000 to open the café. I drew up the contract with Todd who was to have 25 per cent of the stock and to get a salary of $300 per week as the producer of the show. The others were to run the café department.

"It was specifically stated in the contract that Todd was to control the policy of the business. He put on a high class show which cost about $8,500 a week.

Show Proves a Success.

"The place was an instantaneous success. Todd would not permit any dice games in the place nor the hiring of any 26 game girls. He would not permit the use of hostesses and he would not allow the girls of the show to mingle with the patrons or drink with them.

"Soon the others in the operating company objected to the amount of money Todd was spending on the show. They wanted a cheaper show. They said he was spending too much money on advertising, and that he was only advertising the name of Todd. They decided to put on a much cheaper show.

"Todd objected. He said he wouldn't have his name connected with the kind of place they planned. The contract stipulated that if he quit he couldn't take his name from the café.

"It was my opinion that if they broke the part of the contract giving him control of the policy of the company he had the right to take his name out of the business with him. It was finally agreed the place would be called the Theater Café, formerly Michael Todd's.

Owe Todd Back Salary.

"They owed him $1,500 or $1,800 in back salary when he left Chicago. He abandoned it. He wanted to keep his good name. What happened after he left we do not know. He didn't make any complaint to any one. He just packed up and left town."

It was after Todd's departure that the hostesses were hired and the dice girls put to work. The management then began catering to youths.

"We had no complaint that Todd was muscled out of the business or that the gang muscled in on him in the beginning," Commissioner Allman said. "We acted against the place because we found out that the syndicate was going to run it."

Crash Victims

Returning After Week-End Holiday in Michigan.

Four members of a Kane county family were killed yesterday, and three others were seriously injured in a spectacular collision between an automobile and a trailer truck on route 83, about five miles northwest of Blue Island. Both the automobile and the truck burst into flames. Passing motorists dragged the victims from the burning wreckage.

Those killed were Theodore Willcutt, 38 years, old, 177 Elm street, Batavia, a printing company employé; his wife, Rose, 34; his son, Theodore Jr., 17, and his daughter, Laura Ann, 2.

Those injured are Willcutt's daughter, Arlene, 14; his son, Donald, 12, and Clarence Jackson, 41, of Three Rivers, Mich., the truck driver.

Returning After Holiday.

Lieut. Frank Maurino of the Illinois state police said the Willcutts were returning from a Memorial day vacation in Michigan.

Jackson regained consciousness briefly and told police that he saw the approaching automobile swerve across the center line. He said that he edged his huge tractor-trailer toward the side of the road in a futile attempt to avoid the crash. The passenger car was going northwest on route 83 and the truck southeast.

Because of its weight the truck kept the trailer on the road, but the power unit swerved toward the ditch. Auxiliary tanks of gasoline carried below the running board burst into flame, showering the passenger car with fire.

Two Killed by Truck.

Two small girls were killed when they were struck by a milk truck in Madison street at Lotus avenue. The victims were Darlene Chaitlen, 6, and Judith Mendelsohn, 7, both of 42 North Lotus avenue. The truck, belonging to the Capitol Dairy company, was driven by Ralph Gladin, 40, of 7613 North Bosworth avenue. He told police that the girls ran into the street between parked cars.

Peter Lentz, 49, of 10346 Springfield avenue, a street car conductor, was injured fatally early today when his automobile collided with a car driven by Edward Berg, 35, of 6433 South Richmond street, at 63d street and Kolmar avenue. Eight other persons, including four women, were injured. David Kennedy, 41, of 11018 Whipple street, a painter, was driving Lentz's car.

Antonio De Biasio, 50, of 9361 St. Lawrence avenue, a bricklayer, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile as he was standing beside his parked car in front of 9851 Prospect avenue. The driver was Mrs. Muriel Smith of 2234 West 107th street.

Girl Dies of Injuries.

Barbara Gagnepain, 6, of 2264 Lincoln avenue died in the Children's Memorial hospital of injuries incurred Sunday near her home when she was hit by a car driven by Miss Antoinette Weil of 2252 Burling street.

Fred Jones, 29, colored, of 6224 South Park way, and an unidentified colored woman were killed when their car collided with another machine at Pershing road and Racine avenue. Solomon Brown, 34, also colored, of 3406 Indiana avenue, driver of the other car, was seriously injured.

Raymond Bomnera, 27, said to be from Chicago, was fatally burned yesterday when his automobile turned over and caught fire on U. S. Highway 20 near Valparaiso, Ind.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 374 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 278 were killed in Chicago, where 9,597 were injured in the same period.

START CRIMINAL LIBEL TRIAL OF MINISTER-EDITOR

The Rev. Elmer Williams.

A jury of four men and eight women in Judge Walter LaBuy's Criminal court late yesterday started to hear evidence in the trial of the Rev. Elmer Williams, who publishes a magazine called Lightnin'. He is charged with criminal libel against Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator of the state's attorney's office, and two furriers, M. L. Zuckerman and Barney Novak, 17 North State street.

Capt. Gilbert took the witness stand and denied accusations contained in an article written and published by the Rev. Mr. Williams in the October, 1940, issue of his magazine. The article accused the captain and the furriers of being in league in a stolen fur racket.

Tells of 1938 Arrests.

Gilbert testified that in 1938 his policemen arrested some fur thieves who confessed they sold stolen furs to Theodore Dalpe, a Broadway furrier. He said he ordered Lieut. Thomas Kelly and a squad to go to Dalpe's home and business place, where they seized Dalpe and some of the stolen furs. The furs were turned over to an insurance company, which placed them in storage with Novak and Zuckerman, Gilbert said. He declared that every act of his policemen was in accordance with police regulations.

Under cross-examination by Defense Attorney Lloyd Heth, the captain denied that his men seized diamond rings, fishing tackle, stamps, a rubber mattress, and money from Dalpe, which were not returned. He said to his knowledge no such articles were taken from Dalpe.

Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Curtis outlined to the jury the evidence on which the state will ask for a conviction on the seldom used criminal libel statute, which carries a penalty of one year in jail and a $500 fine.

The prosecutor said the state would prove that the accusations in the magazine article were baseless and libelous. Defense Attorney Heth said the article did not accuse Capt. Gilbert of being a thief but "with cooperating with thieves." The defense, he said, would plead that the article told the truth.

Dalpe was convicted of receiving stolen property, but his case was reversed and not remanded by the Supreme court.

Numerology

By Evelyn Holmes

June 3, 1941.

Universal day—A good day to think about clothes and food.

Flowers—Since those in a two year are advised to keep in the background the flowers they should plant in their gardens this year, or wear, should not be showy plants or flowers. The neutral tones are best in the shades, and the delicate rock garden flowers are suggested. Ivy is a substantial plant to emphasize this year, since its name works out to a two. Since this is a matter of reflecting your number vibration of the year and not your name or personal expression, these are only temporary favorites to turn to for the year only. The shy and delicate flowers will best express the more undecisive tone of the year. You shouldn't wear flowers which will create a great deal of attention and comment, and, by the way, wear two flowers!

Florence Kirsch Is Superb in Bach Concerto at Kimball

Concertino Pastorale ....Ireland
[First time in Chicago.]
Concerto No. 1, D minor ....Bach
Two sketches based on French Canadian Airs: ....MacMillan
[1] Our Lord in Beggar's Guise; [2] At Saint Malo.
Serenade for Strings ....Warlock
[First time in Chicago.]
Divertimento No. 2, A minor, Hungarian folk melodies ....Weiner

BY CECIL SMITH.

Florence Kirsch's superb performance of Bach's first piano concerto, in D minor, provided ample reward for those who stayed away from Leopold Stokowski's concert in order to hear the weekly Kimball hall program of Leo Kopp's Illinois Symphonic ensemble.

Since her Orchestra hall debut in 1938, Miss Kirsch, a Chicagoan, evidently has worked diligently, for she is a transformed pianist and a transformed musician. Her share in the D minor concerto was one of the few truly notable Bach performances we have heard in recent years.

The slow movement, an elegiac movement of the most profound and subjective expressiveness, was set forward with simple purity of musical values and utterly unbroken continuity of line and musical thought. The audience experienced the rare sort of rapture which is possible only when a piece of music is really communicating its full meaning, unaffectedly and unostentatiously.

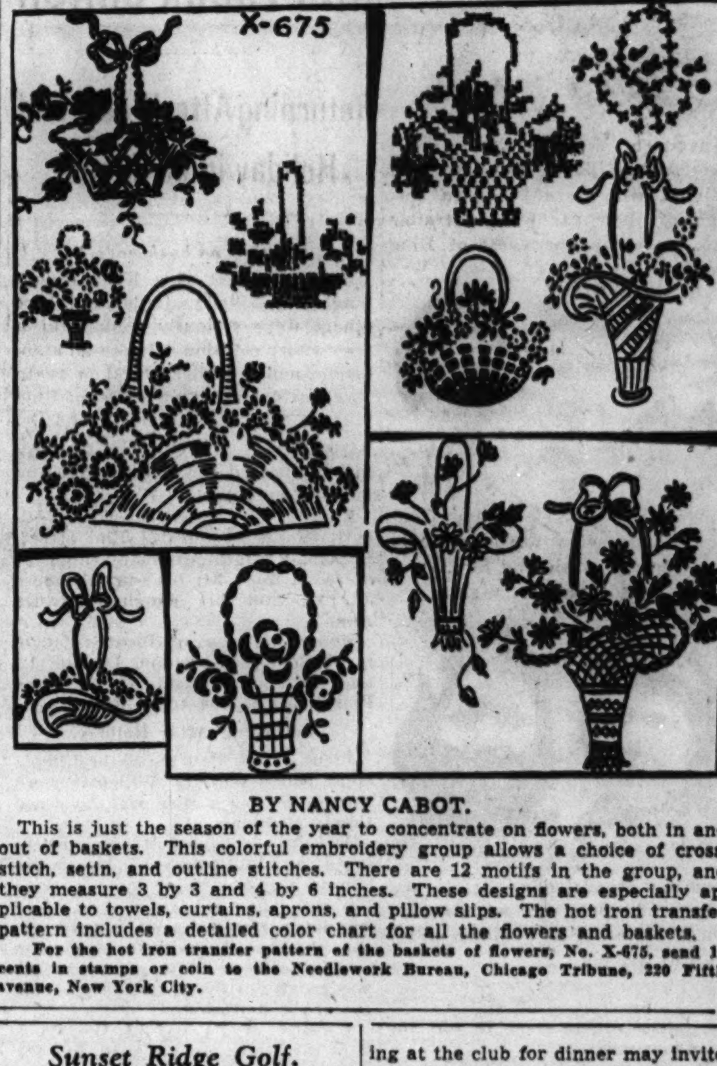
The first and third movements, in quicker tempo, would have seemed brilliant if they had not always been marked by the same undisturbed concentration on central musical values and the same quality of artistic revelation.

With this performance Miss Kirsch established herself as one of our most valuable and promising local musicians. She deserves to be heard with the Chicago Symphony orchestra; at least, we heard far inferior Bach playing in Orchestra hall last winter from a very famous violinist.

The rest of Mr. Kopp's program for string orchestra consisted of the kind of music that does not hurt anybody's feelings, and fills its listeners with a sense of virtue because they are listening to "contemporary" music. There was no pain about it, because the music was not novel or vital enough to create any sense of conflict or controversy in its listeners.

John Ireland's "Concertino Pastorale," with echoes of Stravinsky's "Apollon Musagète," and the "Nimrod" movement from Elgar's "Enigma" variations, showed the clearest and most concise workmanship. Leo Weiner's Hungarian divertimento sounded like watered down Kodály.

Pattern for Pretty Flowers



BY NANCY CABOT.

This is just the season of the year to concentrate on flowers, both in and out of baskets. This colorful embroidery group allows a choice of cross-stitch, setin, and outline stitches. There are 12 motifs in the group, and they measure 3 by 3 and 4 by 6 inches. These designs are especially applicable to towels, curtains, aprons, and pillow slips. The hot iron transfer pattern includes a detailed color chart for all the flowers and baskets.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the baskets of flowers, No. X-675, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The picnics which are most fun almost always are those which are planned late, to take advantage of a beautiful, sunny day or an opportunity to get to the country. Off you go merrily with wieners and buns or hamburgers and onions, and have a perfectly marvelous time.

You can easily have more elaborate food, even if it is a last-minute picnic. It doesn't take long to toss together a flavorful potato salad. Even if it is made so fast that the potatoes haven't really had time to cool before you get to the picnic grounds, it will taste good. Warm, freshly made potato salad is nothing at which to turn up one's nose.

A fresh fruit desert may be made in a hurry, too, altho it tastes best if it's thoroly cold. Prepare the fruit, some fresh pineapple, a sliced orange, a sliced banana or two, perhaps some fresh berries, and put it all together in a fruit jar, adding a little sugar, if you like. And carry along paper cups and spoons for the eating. Packaged cookies are needed, too.

Here's a good picnic menu, one to satisfy anybody. Canned meat is suggested for sandwiches in case its a hurry-up party planned after the markets have closed, or on a Sunday.

Picnic Potato Salad
Canned Meat and Lettuce Sandwiches
Dill Pickles
Mixed Fresh Fruit in a Jar
Packaged Cookies
Bottled Drinks or Milk

One of those suitcase type picnic baskets equipped with plates, cups, spoons, and covered dishes for picnic food is a good investment for any family which enjoys picnicking thruout the summer. Some of these are quite expensive; others are modesately priced.

PICNIC POTATO SALAD.
[Serves Six.]

6 medium potatoes, boiled in skins
4 hard cooked eggs, diced.
⅓ cup cut celery
Salt, pepper, celery salt
¼ cup finely cut pickle
Sour cream-mustard dressing

Drain potatoes when tender, skin and slice, while warm, into a dish. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and celery salt, and add enough dressing to moisten thoroly. Add egg, celery and pickle. Taste to see that there is enough seasoning. Make the dressing this way [you may not need all of it]: Combine 1 cup mayonnaise, 1 cup thick sour cream, ¼ cup prepared mustard, and 2 or 3 tablespoons finely minced onion.

IT'S 8 WAYS BETTER!

WAIT'LL YOU get your hands on a cake of Swan, you hard-water sufferers! You're in for the soap surprise of your life! Swan's 8 ways better.

2. Gives lather that's richer, creamier, walloping thick!

3. Swan's whiter! Pure and mild as imported "100% olive oil" castiles. Ask your doctor. He has the details about Swan in his medical journals.

4. Much firmer! Lasts and lasts! Feel Swan! It's harder. It has lots less moisture than old-style floating soaps.

8. More real soap—much less moisture in Swan. You don't need to store a supply to harden and dry out. We do it for you. Swan won't warp, either.

Kitchen to bathroom, nursery to laundry, use Swan. Compare it! If you don't say—"Swan's better!"—we'll refund double the purchase price. Simply send wrapper to Swan, Lever Brothers Company, Cambridge, Mass.

ALL ABOUT THIS UTTERLY NEW AND REVOLUTIONARY KIND OF BREAD!

Better than "White"! Better than "Whole Wheat"!
Because Better for Health and Better for Flavor!

AT LAST!—HERE ARE THE LIFE-GIVING ELEMENTS, THE NATURAL VITAMINS AND MINERALS WITH ALL THE RICH FLAVOR MOTHER NATURE GAVE WHEAT AND NONE OF ITS OUTER, BITTER, AND INDIGESTIBLE, SPLINTERY "SKIN"

HAILED A GREAT BOON TO EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD IN AMERICA!

Heaven-Sent to Those in Every Walk of Life Who Now Are Paying the Penalty in "Nerves" and Lack of Vitality Due to Deficiency in the Vitamins and Minerals It So Richly Contains

NO OTHER BREAD IN THE WORLD BRINGS YOU IN THIS AMAZING WAY VITAMINS WITH A TASTE —BECAUSE ONLY STAFF IS MADE UNDER THE EARLE PATENTED PROCESS

Continental Baking Co., Inc.

At Last! Sun-Ripened Wheat's True, Good Flavor—Thanks to the Earle Patented Process

Read this Amazing Story:—How a Mining Engineer's Curiosity Led to the Invention that Made Possible this Great New Benefit to Your Family!

HERE now is that utterly new and revolutionary kind of bread you have heard so much about. Different from any bread ever before known, many scientists believe it may influence profoundly the lives of millions. Because of its power to improve their physical and mental processes of life amazingly.

For this new bread brings the treasure-trove of life-giving elements, the rich hoard of vitamins and minerals with all the wealth of flavor Mother Nature amassed in each bursting grain of sun-ripened wheat. And, of the utmost importance, none of the bad outer, bitter, and indigestible, splintery "skin"!

Better Than Ordinary White
Better Than "Whole Wheat"

Never before have you tasted bread like this. Here's aroma to make your mouth water—as fresh as the sight of fields of wind-rippled, sun-splashed wheat. Here's taste to delight you—even better than bread fresh-baked from wheat ground at the old mill on the creek. And a texture to melt in your mouth—as delicate and lacy and velvety of crumb as that of a blue-ribbon winning loaf at the State Fair.

That wheat can be one of man's finest natural foods—there is no question. But until now it has never been possible to give you ALL the rich benefits of wheat in a bread all people would eat. Or, fit for all people to eat!

A Mining Engineer
Solves The Problem

Despite fortunes spent, no miller ever found, without losing precious vitamins and minerals, how to get rid of wheat's bad outer, bitter, and indigestible, splintery "skin." Then came this epochal and far-reaching discovery.

In the "flotation" process, which separates the dross from the gold of the hills, Theodore Earle, mining engineer and inventive genius, at last found the clue toward separating the bad from the gold of the plains.

First, scientists of a leading university set out to prove the new health values; milling and baking experts of the Continental Baking Company spent 6 months perfecting formulae; over $340,000 for new facilities. Then, came the development of Staff—a new bread better for health and flavor!

A Boon In Better Health,
Better Nerves, Renewed Vitality

In England, to help combat the terrible nerve strain of blackout horror and correct the deficiencies of rationed food, all bread has been fortified artificially with Vitamin B₁. Over here, the strain increases daily. Food is not rationed, but millions of people in all walks of life, authorities on nutrition say, fail to get enough Vitamin B₁ alone for their best physical and mental health and vigor.

Actually, millions of people who now believe it their lot to feel "jittery," easily fagged out, may again experience the happiness of renewed vitality a more adequate diet provides.

No Other Bread
In The World Like Staff

The only bread made under the Earle patents, you can tell Staff is a natural wheat bread by its golden wheat color. For Staff contains 4 times more natural Vitamin B₁; twice the natural minerals; and more protein than in many ordinary white breads.

Hence, for better meals, better health, better spirits, you are urged to serve Staff in your home. Note the amazing difference the good flavor of sun-ripened wheat makes. Get fresh Staff today—and "Eat Staff For Life." Serve it every day and take comfort in the knowledge that you have left no stone unturned to give your family this wonderful opportunity for better well-being that Staff affords.

Jane Sherman, R. D. Sampson Wed in Hawaii

BY JUDITH CASS.

ONE out of every five or six weddings this spring either has been planned with breathtaking speed, or else its date has been advanced to suit the demands of the army or navy. The record, however, for being married with dispatch goes to Miss Jane Brill Sherman, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Sherman of Evanston, are announcing her marriage last Saturday in Honolulu to Ensign Richard Darlton Sampson, U. S. N., son of Mrs. Ross Darlton Sampson, also of Evanston.

Plans for the wedding were made only 24 hours ahead of time, but, even so, the bride had several attendants. The ceremony took place in the Royal Hawaiian hotel, with a reception following in the garden. Commander Joseph Connelly, a family friend, gave her in marriage.

Miss Christine Moore, formerly of Evanston; Mrs. Randolph Moore, wife of Lieut. Moore, U. S. N., and Mrs. Michael Tyng, whose husband was a classmate of the bridegroom at Annapolis, were the bridesmaids. Lieut. Jeeves Folsom acted as best man.

A Change in Plans Sends Her to Altar.

The former Miss Sherman spent last winter with her mother at Rancho Santa Fe in California. Just before they were returning to Chicago Mrs. Knefler McGinnis, wife of Commander McGinnis, flying ace of the navy, was sailing for Honolulu and persuaded Miss Sherman to accompany her.

Three hours after obtaining her ticket Miss Sherman was on the Lurline bound for the Hawaiian Islands. When she reached Honolulu she visited her cousin, Mrs. Frederick Sherman, wife of Capt. Sherman, U. S. N. No formal announcement of Miss Sherman's engagement to young Mr. Sampson had been made, but news of their marriage will not be a surprise to their good friends.

Lieut. Sampson was graduated from the United States Naval acad-

Spectator Milles.

A white haired man wearing a pepper and salt business suit lounged idly on a bench near the Triton fountain in McKinlock court at the Art institute yesterday, chatting with a friend while workmen busied themselves putting a sculpture exhibition in place under the direction of Curator of Decorative Arts Meyric R. Rogers. Few knew he was Carl Milles, generally considered the most important sculptor in this hemisphere, creator of the 47 bronze figures that were being put into place, of the famous Triton fountain, and of the full size plaster models of the St. Louis fountain that are also being shown at the exhibition that opens tomorrow.

Art patrons who were present when Milles' Triton fountain was formally presented in 1931 remember his informal little speech. There were many dignitaries present, and several speeches. When Milles was introduced he shook a warning finger at the figures in the fountain.

"Yimmy and Yohnny, you must be very good boys," he said. "Do what you like nights, but be sure to be back in the fountain every day."

Director's Letter.

The miniature room which Mrs. James Ward Thorne presented to Queen Elizabeth of England has been bombed. The damage was, however, slight, according to a letter received by Mrs. Thorne from the director of the Victoria and Albert museum in London.

After reporting the damage, which was recorded in a photograph the director inclosed, he added:

"Your room is still giving great pleasure to numbers of visitors to the museum; indeed, on Easter Sunday, when we had quite a crowd of visitors, I had to spend part of my time borrowing a duster from the doorkeeper and cleaning off the marks of small fingers on the glass in front of it.

"I am sure I need not tell you how much all of us appreciate the moral and material support which is coming to us from the other side of the Atlantic."

Motor Trip Memorabilia.

The lilacs and the apple blossoms were already gone in Virginia, and in one Virginia garden little striped parasols protected the roses from the heat of the sun, but in Vermont, a day or two later, we found lilacs, purple and white, blooming luxuriantly, violets carpeting the woods, and apple trees in full bloom. Thus, in a fast motor car, did we pursue the spring north.

Before leaving the south there were other historic houses to see: Stratford, Robert E. Lee's birthplace on the Potomac, once more a going plantation, since the Robert E. Lee Memorial Club Foundation and the Garden Club of Virginia have taken it in hand; and beautiful Westover, with its fine lawns stretching down to the James; and York hall, the Nelson house at Yorktown, now the property of the children of the late George Preston Blow. The caretaker there points out the cannon ball lodged in the wall of the dining room. The house was headquarters for Gen. Cornwallis during the siege, and the owner of the house, Gen. Nelson, himself ordered his own home fired on during Cornwallis' occupancy. Gen. Nelson paid the gunner who struck his house five guineas as reward.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Stettinius entertain frequently at their home, Horseshoe, a historic mansion near Orange, Va. The director of priorities of the OPM bought it at an auction, sight unseen. That evening he handed his wife a book on "Historic Homes of Old Virginia" and told her to look at page 208.

"Why should I?" she asked.

Stokowski's Youth Orchestra Gives Tradition a Walloping

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Tradition took a beating last night at the hands of Leopold Stokowski's All American Youth orchestra on the occasion of its first Chicago appearance.

For one thing the familiar soaring stage of the Civic Opera house had been made into a low blue grotto with a slanting ceiling to send the tone zooming out into the house. And it was lit not with desk or ceiling lights, but with covered lights suspended from above as in old-fashioned printing offices.

And the seating of the orchestra brought more gasps from the traditionalists. The lighter woodwinds were grouped in a semicircle in front of the conductor with the other woodwinds behind them. The brasses were in two separate sections at opposite sides of the stage. The smaller strings were between woodwinds and brass, with the basses—about the only conventional note—lined up along the rear wall.

But it was the orchestra itself—its idea and its execution—which gave tradition its worst licking. For this is no band of seasoned musicians who have worked together in one place for two or three decades, but a group of youngsters drawn from every part of the country and entirely unacquainted with one another [in many cases] until last spring.

Yet the performance had little of the roughness and callowness which, according to generally accepted theories, should mark the playing of such an ensemble.

In a program which consisted of Stokowski's arrangement of Bach's G Minor Fugue [the shorter], Brahms' First Symphony, "Decision" from Harry Brant's ballet, "City Portrait," and excerpts from the second and third acts of Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde," these young musicians played alertly, precisely, efficiently.

In fact, the orchestra's youth and inexperience were noticeable only at those times when a prodigious technique and a sound musical intelligence were not enough—when the music called upon its performers to transcend technique entirely and to deal directly and passionately with supreme musical realities.

But to expect such things is unreasonable—and even at that the orchestra almost accomplished them once or twice [in the last movement of the Brahms Symphony and in the andante from the Bach Violin Sonata which constituted the first encore].

The sound of the orchestra [thanks to the acoustical reflector, the new seating, and the skill of the performers], was very satisfactory if one was wise enough to sit fairly far back. Heard from the front rows, the orchestra's blend left much to be desired.

A brilliant audience was in attendance, for the concert was a benefit for the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind. Applause kept the musicians busy long after the scheduled quitting time. There were three encores besides the Bach.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

Lipstick can do more to give life and the well groomed look to the face than any other beauty aid, as every woman knows. But do you know what we'd rank second? Mascara!

We firmly believe that women of almost every age should use it if nature was stingy in the eyelash department or handed them to her in a mousey shade. Pale lashes make eyes look pale, and the combination is fatal to the whole picture of a face.

We've asked dozens of women who don't ordinarily use eyelash darkener, women whose lashes were a tepid brown or the usual dingy black, just to try mascara. They and we have been amazed at what a difference definite lash coloring makes in a face. It gives the eyes character and better outline and makes for better balance in the whole face.

The old fashioned idea that all mascara is theatrical in its effect should be discarded. A good mascara, properly and not too generously applied, can fool the eye.

It should be applied to the upper lashes with an upward sweep, especially at the outer eye corner. Lower lashes should be brushed downward. A little practice makes you deft at coating each lash with just enough to darken it and train it to curl. It won't look too phoney if you practice.

We can promise that you'll like the results. Natural eye color will be intensified and your whole facial appearance will be considerably brightened.

Good Morning!

The best thing about "Free and Easy" is the cast. . . . That's a humdinger as you can see for yourselves.

The asinine story follows the adventures of a poor young man who plans to wed the unprepossessing but extremely nice Lady Joan Culver for her money and suddenly finds himself swamped with love for the penniless and pulchritudinous young widow Gray, who likewise had decided to put comfort before pleasure and wed wealth. . . . See the picture for what happens.

Outstanding performances are contributed by Nigel Bruce as Max's happy go lucky, fortune hunting father; Judith Anderson as Lady Culver, and Ruth Hussey as the Widow Gray. . . . Direction, staging, photography, etc., are far better than the yarn—once known, I'm told, as "The Truth Game."

OUTLAW RETURNS.

INSTALLMENT XLIV.

Wallace folded the deed and put it in his pocket. "Thanks."

Dave said, "Don't thank me. Just write a receipt for that deed."

"Receipt?" Wallace asked curiously. "Why a receipt?"

Dave looked at the fire and said idly, "When you're in my business, Wallace, you learn to cover your back trail. I don't aim to get another reward plastered on me for stealin' a deed I ain't got. Write me a receipt, I say, so I can show it to the next tank town sheriff that throws down on me for stealin' the Bid M deed."

Wallace regarded him with speculation and then said, "You're gettin' pretty cagy, Dave."

Dave looked up at him and answered simply, "Well, you know what I'm fightin'. I got to be." He reached in his shirt pocket and brought out a slip of paper and a stub of pencil. "Write the date, the amount you paid, and the place—here at Alamo Butte."

Wallace took the pencil and paper and scribbled a receipt. Dave took it, looked at it, and nodded and then pocketed it carelessly.

Wallace said, "Don't you want to look at the money?"

"Can I go now?"

"Sure," Dave said.

Wallace walked a few steps toward his horse, then paused, and looked back at Dave. Dave was still staring absently at the fire.

"Mind my talkin'?" Wallace asked.

Wallace's long lean face almost broke into a smile. "You said somethink about tank town sheriffs. You driftin'?"

Dave shrugged and yawned.

"Well, I don't give a damn," he said quietly. "It's a nice, smooth job, Wallace. You're considerable slicker than when you tried to cold deck me in Dodge."

"I'm older," Wallace said.

"Yeah. Nothin' like practice, I reckon," Dave said idly.

Wallace said, "You sure raised hell with me for a while there."

"I had to have money. Might's well get it from the gent that's makin', hadn't I?"

"Well, you got it," Wallace said drily. "And mister, you sure earned it the hard way."

Dave chuckled, "But I got it."

"Well, so long."

"So long," Wallace said.

He and Dave faded out of the firelight at the same time, neither wholly trusting the other. Dave turned then and walked back toward his horse. He was whistling cheerfully, softly, and off key.

It was all over now but the shouting.

He knew the man behind Wallace, the man who had shot Sholto, the man who had framed McFee—knew for dead certain. Tomorrow, the rest of the world would know.

* *

Sheriff Harvey Beal always walked to work, because his horse, which he seldom used, was stabled at the feed stable below the office. When he swung into the main street this morning he was struck by the absence of activity in the town. For a moment it puzzled him and then he remembered that most of the stores were closed, the men out hunting Coyle. The street, usually busy at this early morning hour, held mostly women and children and only a scattering of men. He could have counted on both hands the number of saddle horses, buckboards, and springwagons at the tie rails.

Ernie See had drifted in with his crew at an early hour this morning. They had combed one slope of the Corazon, fruitlessly, and had come back for rest and grub before they started out again. Most of them, Beal guessed, were still in bed.

He passed Tom King's keno parlor and said good morning to the swamper, who had already swept out and was stacking empty beer barrels on the boardwalk in front of the saloon. This irritated Beal a little, as it did every morning, because he had warned Tom not to clutter the sidewalk with the barrels. But this morning it was only a minor irritation. He had lots more to think of.

Approaching the office he was fumbling in his pockets for the keys when he noticed the horse at the tie rail in front of the office.

It stood there with its stirrups tied over the horn, the cinch loosened and its bit slipped.

Beal suddenly hauled up with an abruptness that was surprising. He stood there looking at the horse, like a hunting dog pointing, as the significance of it came to him.

For a moment Sheriff Beal was panicked. The last time this had happened was in Sabinal—and Sholto had been kidnapped.

He looked uneasily around him, as if he expected to see Dave Coyle watching him. No, the street was almost deserted.

Slowly, then, Beal moved to the door of his office. He unlocked the door, then, still looking up and down the street, he backed into the office and locked the door. He moved swiftly to the window and peered out again. The horse was standing there patiently, a symbol and a threat and a puzzle.

Beal lifted his Stetson and scratched his head then turned around. What he saw then almost stopped his heart.

Dave Coyle was asleep on his desk top!

A cold clawing fear seized Beal and he held his breath. Then he heard the deep slow breathing of Dave as he slept.

Ever so softly, Beal tiptoed over to the door, unlocked it and stepped out, locking it after him. He went on tiptoe past the office, then ran.

In the saloon, he bawled to Tom King and his bartender, "Tom, send a man to wake Ernie! Tell him to get all the men he can and come down to the office! Here, gimme that greener from behind the bar!"

He took the shotgun from the amazed bartender, yelled, "Get on with it, man!" and ran out of the saloon.

He took up his position across the street in front of Badey's store. Every man that passed—and there were half a dozen—Beal ordered into Badey's to pick up a gun and ammunition. Slowly, minute by minute a crowd congregated on the boardwalk in front of Badey's. Beal hadn't told them what he was arming them for, but they, too, had seen the horse across the street and knew what it meant.

In 10 minutes, Ernie, with a dozen more men, drifted up and said, "What the hell is the fuss?" His hair wasn't combed, his eyes were bleared with sleep, and his shirt was buttoned crooked.

For answer, Beal pointed to the horse and said, "He's asleep on my desk in the office."

Ernie cursed softly, levering a shell in his gun. Beal said quietly to the crowd, "Surround the place, back alley and all. Tell the women to get off the streets. Ernie, you and about four others come in with me."

Beal gave his posse, which was swelling by the moment, time enough to pick their vantage points and then he and Ernie started across the street, walking slowly, carefully, rifles slacked just off their shoulders.

Beal unlocked the door, pushed it open a way, peered in, then waved the others in after him. Dave was still asleep. The awed townsmen filed in on tiptoe and locked the door behind them.

Ernie reached over and gently edged the six gun out of Dave's holster and then Beal signed to the others to raise their rifles and cover him.

Small beads of perspiration had formed on Beal's forehead. Gingerly he reached over with his gun barrel and poked Dave in the ribs.

Dave woke at once. He opened his eyes, glanced coolly at the men covering him and then sat up slowly. He yawned, and when his mouth closed again, his face was insolent, his eyes jeering. His lip was lifted faintly in a sneer as he looked at Beal.

"Took you long enough," Dave said to Beal.

Don't you move!" Beal said.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THE GOOD SAMARITAN

I SLEPT IN HAY MOWS AN' PARKED CARS, AN' AT A FLOP JOINT SOMEBODY STOLE MY COAT WITH TWO BUCKS IN IT.
THAT'S TOUGH, TOPS. I'M GLAD YOU GOT TO ME IN TIME.
HERE'S MY ROOM. MAKE YOURSELF AT HOME. YOU MUST BE TIRED.
BOY, THIS LOOKS PRETTY SWELL TO ME! I HAVEN'T SLEPT IN A BED IN AGES.
YOU SEE, MY OLD MAN TOLD ME TO GET OUT AN' HUSTLE FOR MYSELF. AN' I'D BEEN ALL RIGHT IF I HADN'T HAD SUCH ROTTEN LUCK.
I'M SORRY IT WORKED OUT THAT WAY.
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.: Copyright, 1941, by The Chicago Tribune.
I NEVER DREAMED OF STRIKIN' ANYTHING LIKE THIS. YOU'RE SURE A PAL, SKEEZIX!
I WANT TO DO EVERYTHING I CAN TO HELP YOU, TOPS. I'M ONLY GLAD YOU FOUND ME.

Footlines Make Headlines; Gay Sandals Are In!

BY REA SEEGER.

Headlines and footlines make the most unusual summer costumes. For with an otherwise simple dress, accents of vivid color provide the snap that marks it with distinction and fashion chic.

Brand new ideas in footgear feature exotic color clashes in printed fabrics. These include sturdy linens printed in tropical floral patterns, gaudy orange, and lush green foliage. Most of these printed fabrics are used on the high heeled sandals, exceptionally cool looking, despite the torrid colors, because of the strap effects over the instep and around the ankles.

Some of these sandals boast solid color heels in green or red, while others have the heels covered with the same printed material as the rest of the slipper.

Other supercool units are those clever afternoon sandals made of petit point mesh embroidered with petit point designs in flowers and leaves. These come in vivid blues, yellows, reds, greens, and stunning combinations and contrasts with moderately high heels and thin ankle straps of contrasting colors like bright blue, red, green, and so on. They are ideal accents for all-white or solid colored summer dresses.

The newest cool small hats to wear with either cotton dress parade sheers or linens are the lacy effects of crocheted snow white braid. Brilliantly colored feathers or wings are the top attractions. All the air conditioned comfort imaginable is assured by any of these small toppers with the wide open mesh of the crocheted pattern.

If you crave wide face flattery, see the newly unpacked brimmed hats of shantung. These are lovely street hats for shade and boast a new heart shaped dip in the center of the wide brim that is particularly becoming. A soft fold of the shantung ripples around the extreme edge of the brim.

emy in 1938 and is attached to the U. S. S. Helena, stationed at Honolulu. His bride, a fourth generation Chicagoan and a grandniece of Mrs. Daniel Burnham, is a graduate of the Holton-Arms school in Washington, D. C.

Davis-Hettler Nuptials Held a Month Early.

Miss Janet Davis and Sangston Hettler, who had made plans for a June 28 wedding, changed them on Friday and were married on Saturday night at the home of Miss Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart R. Plattenburg. The Rev. John Wall read the service at 8 p. m.

Despite the rush, the bride wore the traditional wedding gown, but only three out of several bridesmaids were able to be present. They were Mrs. John A. O'Brien, Miss Betty Crilly, and Miss Lila Adams. Charles Barrett was best man.

Mr. Hettler, who expects to be called in the draft shortly, departed with his bride on Sunday for Sea Island, Ga., to be away for two weeks.

Miss Jean Woodward and Robert Warren Mathews plan to be married on June 12 at the Thorndike Hilton Memorial chapel. She is the daughter of Frederic Woodward, vice president emeritus of the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Woodward. The marriage, also on the 12th, of Stanley Lawrence Whittemore of Evanston and Miss Esther Harris Sillcox will take place in Watertown, N. Y.

Miss Barbara Austin and Robert L. Foote will be married on June 14 in the Glencoe Union church with a reception following at the Glencoe home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Austin. The John Derns and his mother and brother, Mrs. George Dern of Washington, D. C., and James George Dern of New York, are leaving Chicago Saturday night for Palo Alto, Cal., where James Dern and Miss Caroline Wickett will be married on June 14.

No Lack of Weddings on Calendar for June.

The Gerard A. Connors' daughter, Jane, and John Sinnott of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., will be married on June 14 in St. Bernard's church with a breakfast and reception following at the South Shore Country club.

Ensign Morris Eddy, Mrs. Seymour Wheeler's son, and Miss Barbara McNair, daughter of the junior Irving McNairs of Cloquet, Minn., will be married on June 21 in Cloquet. Ensign Eddy and his bride will make their home in Newport, R. I.

Miss Elinor Talbot and John Hamilton Rice are to be married on June 28 in St. Chrysostom's church with a reception following in the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Talbot Jr. Miss Talbot is a junior at Vassar. Mr. Rice is being graduated from Williams this month.

Also on the 28th, at 5:30 o'clock in Christ church, Winnetka, Miss Mary Wood will become Mrs. John Willard Marshall. A reception will follow at the Winnetka home of Miss Wood's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rollin D. Wood.

July 2 has been set as the wedding date of Miss Mary Louise Burgess and James Edward Day. The ceremony will take place in the First Methodist church in Evanston with a small reception following at the Winnetka home of Miss Burgess' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth F. Burgess.

W. G. McCormick Marks His 90th Birthday Today.

William G. McCormick, who will be receiving many congratulations on his 90th birthday today, sent attractive birthday greeting cards to all of his friends. The cards bore Browning's well known poem that starts "Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be," which is a favorite of Mr. McCormick's. Mr. McCormick's son, Chauncey McCormick, and Mrs. McCormick are having a family luncheon party today for the nonagenarian.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary with a buffet dinner for about 45 members of their family tonight. About 100 good friends have been invited to come in after dinner, when Herbert E. Hyde will play the organ, as he has done at many anniversary celebrations of the Robinsons.

Husbands and beaux of Chicago Junior league members have been invited to a housewarming the league is having from 5 until 7 o'clock this afternoon in its new quarters in the Ambassador East hotel. The league's annual meeting will be held next Monday at the Saddle and Cycle club.

The presence of Leopold Stokowski will give an added festive touch to today's Silver and White breakfast of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs. The former conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra is expected to say a few words before the large gathering at the Woman's Athletic club.

The federation's White breakfast was given last year for the first time and was in memory of Mrs. Theodore Thomas. This year the silver motif is added to symbolize the federation's 25th birthday anniversary.

Among the groups participating and decorating tables in silver and white are the Illinois Opera guild, the Chicago Woman's club, the Chicago Musical Arts club, the Columbia Damen, the Lake View Musical society, the Greater West Side Fine Arts association, the Lake View Choral society, the Music Study club, the Ravinia committee, the Musicians' Club of Women, the Illinois MacDowell society, Mu Phi Epsilon, and the Southern Woman's Educational alliance.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, vice chairman of the national Committee to Defend the United States by Aiding the Allies, will speak today at the final report luncheon of the women who have been working for the British war relief campaign. The luncheon will be given at 12:30 o'clock at the Casino club with Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence presiding. Mrs. Harriman, former United States minister to Norway, will tell of her experiences in escaping from that country.

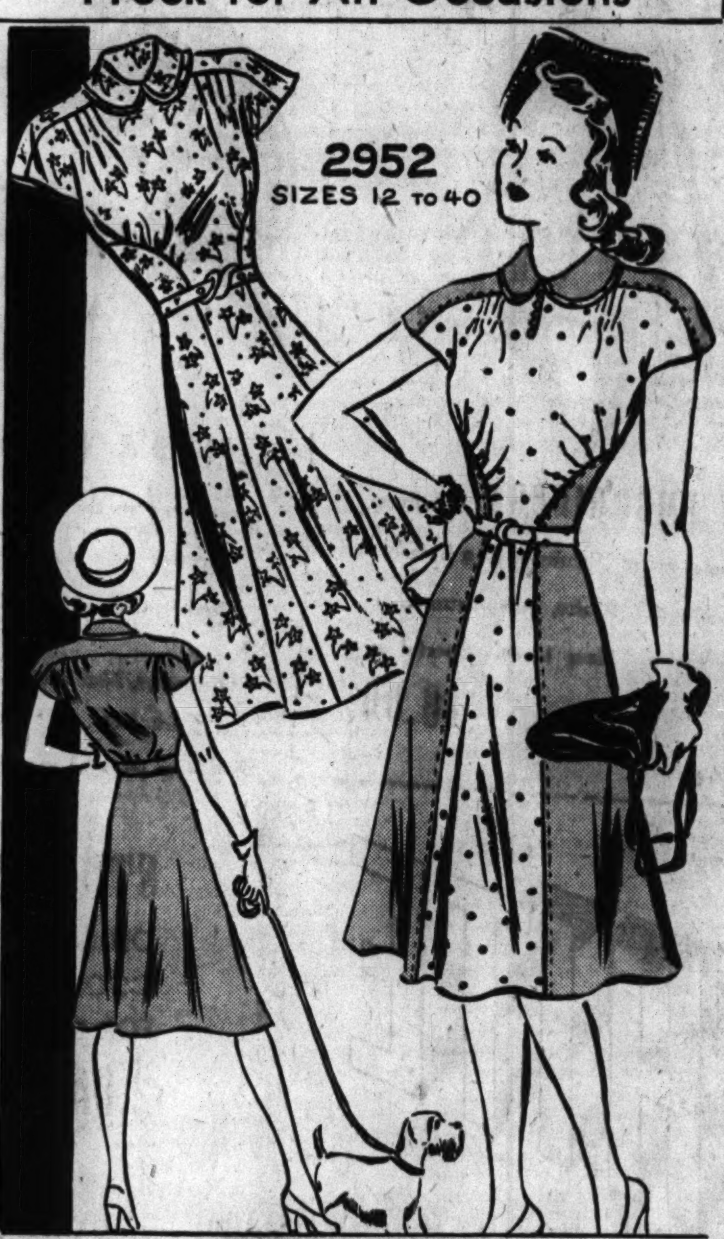
Frock for All Occasions



WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

All in one color or employing the contrast idea, this dressy yet tailored frock is a grand choice for all occasions. It has a Peter Pan collar, deftly shirred bodice, paneled skirt and kimono shoulders, the new and currently favored "soft shoulder" phase of fashions.

Style No. 2952 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

One of the oldest plays known to the modern generation of bridge players comes from the 18th century whist players at Bath, the famous English resort. Known as the Bath coup, it consists in allowing an opponent's king to hold the first trick when the lead has come up to A-J-x. If the suit is continued the ace and jack both will make tricks. The play occurs frequently in modern bridge, but there are situations in which it should not be employed. Today's hand is an example.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's raise to three no trump was a slight stretch, but cannot really be criticized. Ordinarily a player should have about three honor tricks for a raise to three no trump. North, however, was close to the required holding and, in addition, he had a good five card suit that probably would be easy to establish; hence, he feared the consequences of any weaker bid. He would have been more conservative had he foreseen that his partner would misplay the hand and lose a laydown contract.

West opened the king of clubs and South, seeing the combination of cards which would permit him to make the Bath coup, automatically played low. West was not to be trapped, however, into continuing his clubs. Fortunately for his side, he hit upon the heart shift. East played the jack, and South was a most unhappy declarer. If he took the ace of hearts at once, an unsuccessful spade finesse would permit the entire heart suit to be run against him; if he allowed East's jack of hearts to hold the trick, a club would be returned and that suit would be established against him. Since the spade king was offside it did not matter which course South adopted at this point; he was bound to be defeated.

South should have made his contract by resisting the temptation of the Bath coup. He should have seen the danger of a switch to hearts, and won the first trick with his ace of clubs. Dummy then could be entered with a diamond for a finesse in spades. West probably would allow the queen of spades to hold, but on a second spade lead from dummy, East's discard would show South the true situation. He then would play the ace of spades and return the ten, overtaking with dummy's jack if West still refused to take his king. Dummy's remaining high diamond would furnish entry to the long spades. South would, therefore, make four spades, a heart, three diamonds, and a club for his contract.

FCC Orders Quiz Into Radio's Link with Newspapers

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—The federal communications commission today announced that it will start public hearings June 25 in its investigation of the joint control of newspapers and radio stations.

The purpose of the inquiry, the commission said, is to obtain sufficient information to decide whether a general policy should be adopted, and if one is warranted, to shape it for application in the future to particular cases involving newspaper interests.

Its action was prompted, it said, by the large number of applications for high frequency [FM] facilities. It added that the inquiry was deemed advisable at this time when FM is just starting and there is opportunity for evaluating the situation before any considerable investment has been made in the new service.

"It's unfortunate she's gone Hollywood," he said. "I wish she'd stuck to her own standards instead of getting married in that abrupt fashion. I won't give my approval until I know all the facts."

Miss Tierney, a former Connecticut debutante who has appeared in several plays and films, and Cassini were married yesterday in Las Vegas, Nev.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., June 2.—Truetale: An author had finished a screenplay and it was being checked over, at a conference, by the producer. "Right here," said the producer, "you've got to have a chase."

"But this isn't the kind of a picture for a chase," wailed the author. "It's about people. It's a real drama about real people. It's a psychological thing."

"Okay," compromised the producer. "Let's have a mental chase."

At a neighborhood theater a couple of nights ago I caught a sneak preview. Not the usual kind that everybody is tipped off to, but a real sneak. It was a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer short color cartoon, "The Dancing Weed," and at its end a sign requested members of the audience to write their opinions on cards they'd find in the lobby. I forgot to write on a card, so I'll do it here: "The Dancing Weed" struck me as being a bold, clumsy and disgusting steal on some of the lovely nature stuff in Walt Disney's "Fantasia." The action was ragged, the colors were muddy and the music was by the yard.

Bing Crosby's son, Gary, lost his chance to play Bing's son in "Birth of the Blues." He was tested, but found to be too young for the part! . . . Eddie Dowling finished his tour in "The Time of Your Life," came back here to pick up his wife and child and take them home to New York, but he's stuck here for some time because the child has whooping cough. Eddie has one play for Broadway next fall—a new one by Sean O'Casey. William Saroyan has promised him another one, and Eddie himself is wildly eager to play Harry, the traveling salesman, in Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh," which the Theater Guild will do. This drama about an old time Greenwich Village saloon has a last act speech ten minutes long, in which Harry confesses killing his wife, that's the darnedest thing Dowling ever read. . . . In Preston Sturgess' "Sullivan's Travels" Veronica Lake asks Joel McCrea, "Is Orson Welles really crazy?" and Joel replies, "In a very practical way." She asks if Alfred Hitchcock is as fat as people say he is. "Fatter," says McCrea . . . Drama Critic Richard Watts is here for a few days on his usual jaunt to China. There's a gag going around that some day the Chinese are going to send somebody to visit him.

Republic is going to make its third Dick Tracy serial, with Ralph Byrd as the jut-jawed sleuth. . . . Dorothy Lewis, New York night club skater who came here for a rôle in "Ice Capades," rented a house and was allowed to move right in on condition that she move out for 24 hours 10 days later. The owners had planned a wedding reception and couldn't call back the invitations. . . . Director Archie Mayo, who's staging "Charley's Aunt," will give his services to Uncle Sam as soon as his movie is finished. He has volunteered to head an entertainment unit which will visit draft camps. In the last war he was an entertainer, too. A singer in a band at Mare Island. Conductor of the band was a fellow named Paul Whiteman. . . . Twentieth Century-Fox has borrowed Donald Crisp from Warners, for "How Green Was My Valley." He'll play the father. . . . Warners' have a new scheme for signing promising young talent for summertime only, so the talent can go back to school. First collegian signed is Barbara Barton, Winnetka, Ill., niece of Bruce Barton. She arrives next week for a screen test. . . . C. B. De Mille won't direct "For Whom the Bell Tolls" after all. Instead, he's going to do a Mexican spectacle, "Rurales." . . . And did you know that yesterday was De Mille day in Los Angeles, Charleston, S. C., Washington, N. C., and Key West, Fla. . . . Personal opinion. The cutest lass in Hollywood isn't in the movies at all. She's the cigaret girl at the Hollywood Park Turf club, and she's a perky-nosed freckle-faced redhead.

The current Motion Picture Annual lists only one actress named Smith—a Claudia Smith who was in a Paramount western in 1938. Next year's annual will have to list another, but you might not know it was a girl because her first name is Alexis.

Alexis, 20, is coming up fast at Warners'. She was a stock girl, a member of the "Navy Blues" beauty sextet. When Errol Flynn's "Dive Bomber" was more than half finished, Flynn and the bosses decided maybe it was a mistake to make it an all-male picture. They thought they'd better play safe and have a little love interest. So, quick as a fish, Alexis Smith was whipped out of "Navy Blues" and given a featured rôle in "Bomber."

Alexis was born in Canada, has lived here since the age of 5. She was a concert pianist in high school, and has danced on Hollywood stages. She's tall, rangy, freckled and blonde. Her grandfathers were gold miners. In "Dive Bomber" she's a gold digger. She doesn't marry Flynn in the last reel, but remains a peccadillo.

Alexis won a screen test—and, equally important, an agent—a year or so ago playing the lead in "Night of Jan. 16" at City college, Los Angeles. She's had bits in four or five flickers, but the Flynn thing is her best chance. She says she won't change her last name because it's so distinctive out here.

Rosary, Mundelein Colleges Set Records in Graduating Classes

The Most Rev. Francis J. Magner, bishop of Marquette, Mich., conferred 97 degrees at Rosary college, River Forest, yesterday morning in commencement exercises. It was the largest class in the school's history. Miss Ruth Esser of Aurora, president of the class, has been awarded a fellowship to St. Louis university school of social service in medical social work. A graduate scholarship to the University of Chicago has been awarded to Miss Virginia Broyles of 5759 North Rockwell street.

The 10th annual commencement at Mundelein college took place this morning. The 63 candidates received their degrees from the Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, archbishop of Chicago and chancellor of the college. Eleven honor graduates, the largest number in Mundelein history, were in the class. Miss Joanna Xenos, 17 years old, 3048 Sheffield avenue, was the youngest member of the class.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

After 24 hours in the American league's first place apartment, which they thought very comfortable, the White Sox were forced to repack their belongings and move one flight down to their old spot yesterday. The order to vacate came from Washington's Senators who made it emphatic by riddling Jimmy Dykes' baseball family with an 8 to 3 beating in the final of the series in Comiskey park. The ouster, linked with the Indians' victory over the Yankees, boosted the former back into the lead by a game and a half.

The Senators apparently didn't know, or didn't care, that Bill Dietrich a few days ago had pitched a one-hitter over the St. Louis Browns. Bespectacled Bill started where he left off with his last previous foes, but the pace was shortlived. The enemy began getting the range gradually and finally reached the scoring stage in the fifth. They showered Dietrich unmercifully from then on and he was hastily removed in the seventh. His successor, Lee [Buck] Ross, another Athletic alumnus, was no improvement.

Kuhel Hits Seventh Homer.

Luke Appling, who aided the enemy in Sunday's first game in stopping a losing streak at 12, again played the rôle of a culprit. Luke let go with a wild throw in the sixth to assist two runs home, breaking a 1 to 1 tie, the Sox having collected their one run in the third when Joe Kuhel hit his seventh homer of the year. However, Appling's error probably did nothing more than make the decision a bit more decisive, considering that Dietrich was belted for 10 hits, four of them doubles, in his six and two-thirds innings of futile toil.

The Sox attack was pretty skimpy until the decision was about ready to be entered in the books. For eight innings they were able to show only six hits off Steve Sundra, the ex-Yankee. In the ninth they raised their total of hits by four and their runs by two, one of the safe clouts being delivered by Ben Chapman, who made his Sox debut as a pinch batter.

Trouble Starts for Bill.

Kuhel's homer dropped into the right field stands after two were out in the third. Despite doubles with which Tom Early and Buddy Lewis opened the third and fourth Dietrich remained his one run bulge until the fifth when his job really became serious, what with two doubles and a

Notify Rigney to Report to Army June 20

John Rigney, star White Sox pitcher, will be called for induction into the army for a year's training on June 20, officials of draft board No. 6 in suburban River Forest announced yesterday.

Rigney, who is 27 years old and lives at 632 Franklin avenue in River Forest, earlier in the year was granted a temporary deferment while the White Sox were at their spring training camp in Pasadena, Cal. After the team returned to Chicago he was examined by board physicians and pronounced physically fit for army duty.

The White Sox become the second American league club to lose a key player, the champion Tigers having lost Hank Greenberg several weeks ago. Rigney has won three games and lost three. In his five-year career with the Sox his record is 44 victories and 43 defeats. Last year he won 15 and lost 18, and his best year was 1939 when he scored 15 triumphs and was beaten only eight times.

Rigney is engaged to Miss Dorothy Comiskey, treasurer of the White Sox. They have made plans to be married next fall.

PHILS' TWO KIDS BEAT CUBS AND FRENCH, 3 TO 2

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[BOX SCORE ON PAGE 23.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 2. — The seven hit pitching of Johnny Podgajny, late of Ottawa in the Canadian league, and two homers by Danny Litwhiler, late of Wilkesbarre in the New York-Pennsylvania league, furnished what it took to give the Phillies their first victory of the season over the Cubs today.

The score was: Philadelphia, 3; Cubs, 2; a tragedy in which Larry French, who went all the way for the Cubs, suffered his sixth defeat as compared with two victories.

The Kid Bears Down.

The Cubs, by haranguing Podgajny because of the way he stood on the rubber, an old dodge frequently pulled on rookies by embarrassed competitors, upset the young right hander enough to give them two runs, one in the sixth and one in the seventh. But in each instance he quit listening to the barking and squelched the Cubs' efforts to holler themselves into a victory.

The Phillies got their first run, and made a considerable bid for more, after two were out in the first inning. With Stan Benjamin and Heinie Mueller eliminated, Joe Marty doubled to left and scored on Nick Etten's single to right. Litwhiler, who hadn't quite warmed up his home run swing, singled to center, Etten stopping at second. Bob Bragan walked, loading the bases. At this junction Bill Nicholson was withdrawn from right field because of his sore heel, Hank Leiber shifted from left to right, and Lou Novikoff went to left. Tommy Livingston flied to Leiber.

Bang! There's Another.

The Phillies took a 2 to 0 lead in the third inning. With one down Litwhiler lined his first homer into the upper deck of the left field stand.

The Cubs made their first run in the sixth. Dom Dallessandro opened the inning with a single to right and went to third on Novikoff's single to left. Leiber fouled to Merrill May, but Phil Cavarretta sent a long fly to Marty, Dallessandro scoring. Clyde McCullough fouled to Livingston.

Not a Philly got on base after Litwhiler's homer in the third inning until Litwhiler knocked his second homer and his sixth of the season at the start of the sixth.

The Cubs wilted more grievously in the seventh than in the sixth. With one out French singled to center and Stan Hack walked. Lou Stringer singled to left, French scoring and Hack reaching third. When Litwhiler fumbled the ball, Stringer reached second.

Dallessandro was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Novikoff grounded to May and Hack was forced at the plate. Leiber then forced Novikoff, Bragan to Mueller.

YANKEE MATES MOURN DEATH OF LOU GEHRIG

Detroit, Mich., June 2 (AP).—The death in New York City tonight of Lou Gehrig, one of baseball's greatest stars, saddened members of the New York Yankees baseball team on their arrival here from Cleveland for a series with the Detroit Tigers.

"What can I say?" said Manager Joe McCarthy. "I am at a loss for words to express the sincere sympathy that I feel. He was my best personal friend, one of baseball's greatest figures, and a grand fellow."

One of Family to Dickey.

Catcher Bill Dickey, Gehrig's roommate when the Yankees were on the road, said: "I feel that it is like one of my family passing."

"Lou was my best friend," he added. "And baseball loses a great friend."

"It is the most painful news I have ever heard," said Art Fletcher, Yankee coach. "I don't know what to say."

The Yankees had arrived at their downtown hotel headquarters here only a few minutes before a reporter told them their former teammate had died.

DiMaggio at a Loss.

Joe DiMaggio, the Yankees' brilliant outfielder, said: "I can't imagine it. I'm simply at a loss for words."

McCarthy recalled that it was in Detroit, in 1939, that Gehrig, ailing and in a batting slump, asked to be taken out of the lineup after playing in 2,130 consecutive regularly scheduled league games, a major league record.

"That was the first piece of bad news in Gehrig's career," said McCarthy. "His death tonight is the second."

A BLOW TO MANY

"The passing of Lou Gehrig," said Mr. Harridge, "has removed from baseball one of its most beloved and outstanding players. His conduct and sportsmanship on and off the playing field will remain an everlasting monument to his memory.

Warren C. Giles, general manager of the world champion Cincinnati Reds, who was in New York, paid tribute to Gehrig with the simple statement:

Lauded as Official.

Learning of Gehrig's death, Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York City said:

"Gehrig was a fine, useful public

LOSES 2 YEAR FIGHT AGAINST RARE DISEASE

Set Mark as Game's Iron Man.

New York, June 2 (AP).—Lou Gehrig, great first baseman of the New York Yankees for 14 years, died tonight after two years illness of a rare disease every one except he himself believed incurable.

The iron horse of baseball, who would have been 38 years old June 19, passed away at his home in the presence of his wife after a critical span of only three weeks. He remained conscious during most of the final phase of illness, but at noon today went into a final coma. Death came at 9:10 p. m. [eastern standard time].

The disease which forced Gehrig from the lineup of the Yankees on May 2, 1939, was diagnosed as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a hardening of the spinal cord which caused muscles to shrivel.

He wasted away sharply in the final weeks. He was reported 25 pounds underweight and barely able to speak shortly before he died.

Gehrig had served for a year and a half as a member of the New York city parole commission and had visited his office regularly until about a month ago, when he decided to remain at home to conserve his energy.

Never Loses Hope.

In his playing days Gehrig was one of baseball's greatest stars, but he was most famous for his great physical feat of playing 2,130 consecutive regularly scheduled American league games in 14 years.

He twice was chosen the most valuable player in the league and over a year ago was voted a place in baseball's hall of fame, joining a score of the game's immortals. He participated in 34 world series games and piled up numerous all-time records.

Thru all the years Gehrig was known for his clean habits and affable disposition. These factors made him one of baseball's best beloved players. They also helped him stand off the ravages of his disease after others had given up hope.

Gehrig refused to believe the disease was incurable and as long as possible he maintained a normal routine.

He Benches Self.

He had withdrawn voluntarily from the lineup on May 2, 1939, because he was in a slump. At that time no one realized he was ill. But after benching himself in Detroit, Gehrig went to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., where the nature of his trouble was learned.

A treatment of daily injections was prescribed and followed faithfully for two years. Gehrig remained with the team for the remainder of the 1939 season, sitting in a far corner of the dugout and occasionally limping out to home plate to present the lineup to the umpires, but he never took part in a game again.

The Yankees won their fourth consecutive world championship that fall, but Gehrig for the first time in his career was a mere spectator.

After the hubbub of the baseball campaign had quieted Mayor F. H. La Guardia offered Gehrig a 10 year post on the city parole board at an annual salary of $5,700. The big dimple cheeked star accepted immediately.

Works Out Music Test.

Three months later he undertook an experiment to test the power of music in social rehabilitation. He accepted a box for the Town Hall concert series and arranged to fill it at each concert with underprivileged children and young people who had little opportunity to hear great music.

He delighted in talking about his

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Irish Day, a three year old colt owned by T. B. McGrath of Chicago, raced right into the ranks of the Lincoln Fields stake contenders by beating five rivals of the $4,000 class yesterday, just an hour or two after he had been alloted the light weight of 102 pounds for next Saturday's $5,000 Steger handicap.

Irish Day, which is a son of Hal Price Headley's good stallion, Pharamond II., put on something of a surprise performance yesterday because he was coming back to the races after a layoff since the Florida season. Those who had been following him closely, however, decided that he was in a good spot in this six furlong dash called the Elwood purse. So they plunged heavily, knocking his odds down from 8 to 1 in the morning line to 3 to 1 at post time.

Optimism Well Rewarded.

Irish Day had been racing in fair company last winter and Trainer Paul Kelley had been bringing him along steadily since he got down to hard work following his freshening up. So the optimism of his backers was well rewarded when he got up in the closing strides to beat Double Call by a head. The 6 to 5 favorite, Sun Ginger, was three-quarters of a length farther back.

In running the 6 furlongs in 1:15 4-5 Irish Day showed good speed considering the track conditions. He remained well up toward the front while Double Call was setting the pace with Sun Ginger in second place. Then in the stretch Jockey Jimmy Berger sent Irish Day up with a strong challenge that carried him past Sun Ginger and on into the lead just before they went under the wire. Irish Day's mutuel prices were $8.80, $5.20, and $3.

Will Have 23 Pound Advantage.

If Irish Day goes to the post in the Steger next Saturday, he will have an advantage of 23 pounds over the top weighted Potranco. The latter is a four year old, but the difference in the weight for age scale is only ten pounds at the distance of seven furlongs over which the Steger will be run.

The consistent Potranco already has one Lincoln Fields stake—the Crete handicap to his credit. Among the other Steger weights which racing Secretary William H. Shelley announced yesterday were Joe Schenck, 120 pounds, Mucho Gusto at 115; Equistar, Kings Blue and War Minstrel at 112; Technician and Unerring at 111; Talked About, Yale O'Nine, Prairie Dog and Floataway at 110.

Transplanting.

As she watched me transplanting the flowers
There was something that day in her eye,
Like a question mark floating in tears
Or a grief-stricken heart asking:
"Why,
Why should the bush be transplanted,
Why use the spade and the knife?"
Would my little one know if I told her,
"It is part of the process of life."

It was later I asked the same questions
In grief, for my darling had died,
Or rather the Gardener had moved her
To the warmth of the sunny south side.
"Why should the bush be transplanted,
Why use the spade and the knife?"
Did I understand when He told me,

Waller, 2; Lake View, 1.
Austin, 3; Washburne, 2.

Doug Lorman, southpaw hurler for Schurz, turned in a no-hit performance yesterday against Taft in a postponed game in the north section of the City High School league. Schurz won, 10 to 0.

In other holdover contests Hyde Park and Hirsch batted eight innings before Hyde Park triumphed, 14 to 13, in Jackson park.

A home run with one on base by Peterson of Hirsch tied the score at 13 runs in the first half of the seventh. One was out at the time. In the eighth Vaundry, Hyde Park catcher, singled, went to third when the ball got away from the center fielder, and then raced home when the throw to home was wide.

Harrison rallied with four runs in the seventh to beat Kelly, 5 to 4. Waller won a pitcher's battle from Lake View, 2 to 1, each side getting three hits. Pitcher Joe Locallo fanned 12 Kelly batters.

Bowen defeated Harper in a double header of five inning games in Ogden park, 11 to 0 and 6 to 2, to clinch the south section title with 11 won and three lost. Scores:

Lou Gehrig, Former Yank Slugger, Dies in New York

work and once this winter expressed hope that some day he might write about the benefit of parole to society.

Locker Becomes Shrine.

He usually spent about six or seven hours a day at the office, altho last year he sometimes found a chance to leave early and visit Yankee stadium, entering thru a side door and sitting in the dugout out of sight of fans.

His locker in the dressing room always was kept at his disposal, and Club President Ed Barrow said neither it nor Gehrig's uniform No. 4 would be used again.

This season Gehrig did not see a single game and never left his home at night. He bent every effort at fighting his ailment and customarily went to bed about 8:30 p. m.

Gehrig was born on June 19, 1903, on 8th avenue in Manhattan. He is survived by his widow, the former Eleanor Grace Twitchell, of 6718 Merrill avenue, Chicago, whom he married on Sept. 29, 1933, in New Rochelle, N. Y., and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gehrig, of New Rochelle.

Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning in Christ Episcopal church in Riverdale, a New York suburb. Because of Mrs. Gehrig's expressed wish that the funeral be private, it was said to be unlikely that the New York Yankees would leave Detroit to attend.

GEHRIG'S CAREER

Lou Gehrig's endurance record of 2,130 consecutive big league games probably will endure as long as baseball lives. He stepped into the batter's box as a pinch-hitter on June 1, 1925, and never missed a game until he voluntarily retired on May 2, 1939—14 seasons.

But Lou will be remembered for more than his endurance record. He was a superb batter in his heyday and a prodigious clouter of home runs. The record book is liberally strewn with his feats at the plate.

Only in his first season, 1925, and in his last full campaign, 1938, did he fail to go over the .300 mark. Once he led the American league in hitting with .363, but on three occasions he went over that without winning the batting crown—.373, .374, and .379.

Here's How He Started.

An odd little incident gave Gehrig his start and an even stranger disease, one almost totally unknown for a robust athlete, brought it to an end. Columbia Lou's string of consecutive games began when the late Miller Huggins sent him up to bat for Peewee Wanninger on June 1, 1925. The husky 22 year old promptly singled.

Huggins was impressed by the way Gehrig had delivered, but according to the tale that is told he had no notion of using him as a first baseman. The Yankees had a star at the position in those days, Wally Pipp. But Pipp was troubled with frequent headaches.

On June 2 he was bothered by pains in his head.

Tried Gehrig on a Hunch.

Huggins overheard him and, on a sheer hunch, decided to use the kid—Gehrig—at first base. He never left the lineup again until his voluntary resignation 14 years later.

The beginning of Gehrig's playing days was abrupt but the ending was a much slower process. In 1937 the Iron Horse batted .351, his twelfth successive season over the .300 mark. But in 1938 the Yankee captain slipped to .295, the same figure he had established in his 1925 campaign.

Not only his hitting but his fielding had lost much of its crispness. Batted balls that the Gehrig of old had gobbled up easily skidded past him for base hits. In fact, the situation had developed to such an extent that there was continual talk in spring training in 1939 that the endurance record was approaching its completion.

This became even more obvious in the early games of the campaign. Yankee followers were amazed to see how badly Gehrig had fallen from the peak. He was anchored firmly near first base and only the fielding wizardry of Joe Gordon to his right saved Gehrig from looking very bad.

At bat Gehrig was not even a shadow of his former self. Once he had the outfielders backing up to the fences when he stepped to the plate. But this time he could hardly raise the ball out of the infield. On one occasion when he caromed a looping single to left—a certain double for even a slow runner—Gehrig was thrown out at second, standing up.

Last Game Against Senators.

That day he saw the handwriting on the wall. And on April 30, 1939, he played his last big league game against the Washington Senators. The Yankees lost and Gehrig realized that he was a detriment to his team. When the Yanks took to the field again in Detroit on May 2, Gehrig—his batting average down to .143—withdrew from the lineup, his first missed game after 2,130 straight.

In his first season on the Commerce High school team Gehrig batted .170. Then he started hitting until he cracked the headlines with a crash in 1920. Commerce, the New York schoolboy champions, played Lane Tech of Chicago in a scholastic world series. The single game was played at Wrigley field and Gehrig was awed by his surroundings. But he was not too awed. In the ninth inning with Commerce one run behind and the bases full he drove a home run over the right field fence.

Stars as All Around Player.

Buster Gehrig was beginning to take shape. He matriculated at Columbia, pitching, outfielding, and playing first base.

The diamond game carried such a zest for him that he quit before he had been long at Morningside Heights, joining the Yankees in 1923.

CARDINALS STOP DODGERS, 5 TO 4; TAKE LEAD ALONE

Run in 9th Ends Brooklyn Streak at Nine.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 2 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals regained exclusive possession of the National league lead today with a 5 to 4 triumph that ended the Brooklyn Dodgers' nine game winning streak.

The Cardinals also snapped their own three game string of losses and accomplished their aim with enough authority to convince a ladies' day crowd of 28,281, even tho the Dodgers put up a game battle and had what might have been the tying run on base in the ninth. Score:

ERRICKSON BLANKS PIRATES.

Boston, Mass., June 2 (AP).—The Boston Braves scored their first shutout victory today when Dick Errickson whitewashed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2 to 0.

Errickson, who lost his first five mound starts, was in fine form yielding only five hits, two of them doubles by Elbie Fletcher.

BEGIN MACHINE TESTS TO LIMIT GOLF BALL CARRY

Now the golf ball is to become regimented under a plan proposed by the United States Golf association, which will limit the distance qualities of the little white pellet.

Two years ago the USGA engaged the Armour Research Foundation at the Illinois Institute of Technology to develop a machine to measure the carrying distance of golf balls for the purpose of eliminating present discrepancies.

The first public demonstration of the machine was conducted yesterday by Dr. Carl G. Anderson, under whose direction it was built. The machine consists of three units.

The first unit automatically tees the ball and drives it with a blow comparable to that of a good golfer. After being hit the ball passes thru a tube 12 inches in diameter and 15 feet long. Electric timing equipment measures the speed of the ball. The third unit is a receiver which absorbs the energy of the ball and drops it into a collector.

Sox Lose, 8-3, to Senators; Drop from 1st single. The Senators extracted only the tying run from this display. Buddy Myer and Early led off with the doubles, the former scoring. After Jim Pofahl had been tossed out, Sundra caromed a hit off Dietrich's bare hand, and when George Case grounded to Dario Lodigiani, Early was nailed at the plate. Don Kolloway threw out Lewis.

The Senators cut themselves down to a single in the sixth, but with Appling's aid took a two run lead. Doc Cramer opened the inning with a single to center and with one out Jim Vernon singled to right, Cramer going to third and Vernon sneaking to second on the throwin. Appling picked up Myer's tap and threw to the plate, but his aim was bad, Cramer scoring with ease and Vernon taking third, whence he counted on Early's fly to Taft Wright.

It's All Over for Dietrich.

Dietrich's march to the clubhouse began with Sundra's single in the seventh. Case sacrificed, Lewis singled, and when Cramer flied to Myril Hoag, Sundra scored. Lewis hiked home on a single by Cecil Travis, this blow completing Dietrich's fadeout. Altho yielding a pass and a single, Ross didn't let any more score, at least not for the moment.

Ross' three run eighth opened with a single by Pofahl. Ross tried to get Pofahl at second on Sundra's bunt, but threw wild. Then he filled the bases by walking Case. Two outs followed, one of them allowing Pofahl to score. The bases were repacked with a pass to Travis, after which Vernon singled, driving in Sundra and Case.

The little Sox disturbance in the ninth got under way with singles by Lodigiani and Mike Kreevich. Hoag flied out, but Tresh singled and Lodigiani counted. Chapman, swinging for Ross, then contributed his hit, scoring Kreevich, but the next two men did nothing.

CAPTAINS NAMED IN THREE N. U. SPRING SPORTS

Newly elected captains in three of Northwestern university's four spring sport teams were announced yesterday by K. L. Wilson, athletic director. Next year's baseball team will be led by co-captains, Dick Erdlitz of Oshkosh, Wis., and Bill Sampson of Chicago. Both are outfielders.

Seymour Greenberg, who successfully defended his Big Ten tennis singles and doubles championships last week, will lead the 1942 team. Greenberg is a graduate of Lane Tech High school. The track captaincy went to Don Smith of Evanston who tied for the Big Ten high jump championship this spring.

YANKEE MATES MOURN DEATH OF LOU GEHRIG

official. His death is a loss to me and to the entire country."

George Ruppert, vice president of the Yankees, said:

"He was one of the finest characters who ever participated in the game. I saw him only 10 days ago and I am deeply grieved at his passing."

Jimmy Foxx, Boston's veteran first baseman, commented "even tho you expect these things, they always set you back on your heels."

Loss Is Tragic.

General Manager Branch Rickey, whose St. Louis Cardinals played against Gehrig in the world series of 1926, '28, and '30, said:

Jimmy Dykes, Chicago White Sox manager who played against the slugging Yankee first baseman for 14 years, said:

"I am awfully sorry to hear of his death. Gehrig was a truly great player and a wonderful asset to baseball."

Babe Ruth, who with Gehrig held the sports spotlight as Yankee players for more than a decade, expressed sorrow tonight at Gehrig's death and said:

"I never knew a fellow who lived a cleaner life," Ruth said. "He was a clean living boy, a good baseball player, a great hustler. I think the boy hustled too much for his own good. He just wanted to win all the time. His death was a great loss to baseball."

MARTIN EARNS VERDICT OVER FRANK M'BRIDE

Tony [Cianciola] Martin, Wisconsin state middleweight champion, won a unanimous eight round decision over Frank McBride in the windup bout of the opening outdoor boxing show at Marigold Gardens last night before a crowd of 1,719. It was Martin's second victory in a campaign to obtain a return bout with Tony Zale, middleweight champion.

In the semi-windup of eight rounds Harvey Dubs of Windsor, Ont., beat Jess Ackerman of Des Moines, Ia., They are welterweights. Speedy Schaefer, Chicago middleweight, won the decision over Buddy Rose of Sarasota, Fla., in another eight round bout.

Feller Stops Yanks, 7 to 5; Puts Indians Back in Lead

Cleveland, O., June 2 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians regained first place in the American league and Bob Feller achieved his 11th victory today when they whipped the New York Yankees, 7 to 5. Feller held the Yanks to seven hits, two of them home runs by Tommy Henrich.

Feller's string of scoreless innings was snapped at 30 when the Yankees got two runs in the second inning.

Joe DiMaggio's single, stretching his hitting streak to 19 consecutive games, a walk to Henrich, and Buddy Rosar's single, scoring DiMaggio, broke Feller's spell.

Feller started his run by shutting out the Senators in a 11 inning game May 21. Then he held the Browns scoreless on May 25 and the Tigers on May 29. Score:

TIGERS LOSE AGAIN.

Detroit, Mich., June 2 (AP).—Buck Newsom, last year Detroit's leading pitcher, surrendered six hits and five runs—four of them the result of homers—in the first two innings today as Boston swept the three game series with the Tigers, 9 to 1. It was Newsom's seventh defeat this year, against three victories.

Joe Dobson was brilliant in winning his second victory. He limited the Tigers to four singles and after the first inning, when Detroit scored an unearned run, no Tiger runner advanced beyond second. Score:

40 TEAMS ENTER CENTRAL MEET; SET NEW RECORD

Stickel of Pittsburgh Will Compete in 220 Hurdles.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Receipt of the entry of Harold Stickel of the University of Pittsburgh in the 220 yard low hurdles race, has established a record of 40 competing teams in the Central Collegiate track meet which will be held in Marquette university stadium Friday night. Preliminaries will start Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock [Chicago daylight time].

Stickel's entry insures a close race in the low hurdles in which Indiana's Roy Cochran, who won the Indiana state championship in this event last Saturday, may be beaten. Cochran beat Ray Alsbury of Butler Saturday with a mark of :23.4. Stickel won the IC 4-A championship on the same afternoon in New York and defeated the defending champion, Ed Dugger of Tufts in the excellent time of :23.1.

Farrow Another Threat.

Gilder Farrow of Xavier [New Orleans], who finished second in the low hurdles in the Central meet last year, is another sterling performer. Charles Hlad of Michigan Normal, indoor champion in the Central Collegiate conference and 75 yard low hurdles winner in the Illinois relays, also is entered.

The United States Naval academy, entering the Central meet for the first time, will send Capt. Ed Hahnfeldt to compete in the shot put and discus throw and Eric Hopley, a sprinter. Hahnfeldt has been beaten only by Archie Harris of Indiana this year in the discus and he has whipped Al Blozis of Georgetown, IC 4-A champion in both weight events.

15 States Represented.

Illinois Normal and Drake are other late team entries in the two score which represent 15 states. Altho Marquette won the meet last year and in 1939 it is predicted that either Indiana or Notre Dame will take the team trophy. Notre Dame last took team honors in 1938 while Indiana was first in 1936 and 1937. Since the Hoosiers are champions of the Western conference this year they hope to duplicate their 1936 Central Collegiate victory. It was in that year Indiana won its first Big 10 title.

Preliminaries will be held in 10 events Friday afternoon. These are the sprints, hurdles, quarter mile, half mile, shot put, javelin throw, broad jump, and discus throw.

You can get it in Hospitality Quart Bottles

Beer with no added sugars or syrups

. . . and bottled as always with only Natural Draft Beer Carbonation created right in the brew

WE found out 50 years ago that short-cuts don't pay—if you want good beer! We're not against change. We put in the latest improved equipment right along—like for bottling. And we now put our beer in such handy size bottles as the Hospitality Quart, which contains a round of four full glasses. But our brewing methods—we won't speed up! Adding sugars or syrups to the brew—that's a machine-age short-cut we could use. But we'll keep on brewing all-grain beer just as always—the old, slow way.

Find out how much old ways of brewing add to beer enjoyment! Do the "50-Degrees" Test. That's the way beer experts get the truth. Too much cold disguises real flavor; good or bad. But at 50 degrees temperature; honest flavor shows up.

So get a MEISTER BRÄU Hospitality Quart from your favorite tavern or store; take it home, and taste and compare with any other brand—regardless of price. I'm sure what your verdict will be.

CANCER EXPERT GETS MEDAL OF MEDICAL GROUP

Dr. James Ewing Honored by Association.

BY GEORGE MORGENSTERN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., June 2.—The house of delegates of the American Medical association, opening its 92d annual meeting, voted today to confer its distinguished service medal, the highest honor in the medical profession, on Dr. James Ewing of New York City for his investigation of cancer.

Dr. Ewing, retired director of the Memorial hospital for the treatment of cancer and allied diseases, received 91 of the 152 votes cast by the house of delegates.

Dr. Simon Flexner of New York, chairman of the public health council of the New York state department of health, who developed a serum for the treatment of meningitis, received 14 votes.

Dr. Ludvig Hektoen, former University of Chicago pathologist, who is now executive director of the National Advisory Cancer council, was the runner-up in the balloting, with 47 votes.

Five Day Scientific Session.

More than 7,000 physicians are here for the association's five day meeting. Hotel accommodations are so swamped that the lake liner Seeandbee has been taken over by a hotel company as an annex. Scientific papers are being read in the huge municipal auditorium, where there are hundreds of scientific and educational exhibits.

Dr. Nathan B. Van Etten, retiring president of the association, urged the nation's physicians to work for passage of legislation to create a national department of health, to be headed by an officer of cabinet rank.

"A national health department is now functioning—without the title and without its director in the cabinet," Dr. Van Etten said. "I trust that the national emergency will at least result in the permanence of this new government reorganization.

"It is a safe prediction, however, that this new alignment of Washington bureaus will be violently opposed by officials who will fear loss of place or prestige.

Doesn't Fear State Medicine.

"I am in complete disagreement with those who claim that centralizing what are now government health functions means more state medicine. In a federacy of 48 states certain blanket powers would be most desirably concentrated in a single agency.

"The migrating indigent as he moves from state to state, carrying his disease along with his poverty, presents health problems that cannot be controled successfully by state governments. The protection of all our frontiers from invasion by those who may bring physical or moral or mental disease and become public menaces and public charges cannot be the responsibility of state government."

Replies to "Hierarchy" Charge.

Dr. Van Etten made no direct reference to the fine of $2,500 imposed last week on the association in federal court at Washington, D. C., on charges of conspiracy to violate the anti-trust act by obstructing the activities of a group health plan among government employés. He did, however, reply vigorously to charges that a limited hierarchy controled the policies of the association.

Reporting on the voluntary mobilization of American medicine for national defense, Dr. Van Etten said that 95 per cent of all physicians had been found willing to support the military services "when and where they may be needed."

Dr. Frank H. Lahey of Boston, president-elect of the association, said: "There are few of us who do not feel a sense of injustice over the government's treatment of organized medicine. But we must subordinate our differences in the interest of national unity."

Urges Women Doctors for Army.

Dr. Emily Barringer of New York submitted a resolution to the house of delegates demanding equality of recognition with men for those of the nation's 8,000 women physicians who may serve with the armed forces. She asked that they be admitted to the medical reserve corps and be granted commissions, as is now done for nurses in the services.

Another resolution, submitted by Dr. Walter G. Phippen of Salem, Mass., advocated that the post of county coroner be abolished thruout the nation and that a medical examiner assume the functions of the office.

BIG LAKE FERRY IS CHRISTENED AT MILWAUKEE

Streamlined Craft Is Ready for Service.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 2.—The Milwaukee Clipper, a new streamlined car and passenger ferry, was christened today in Milwaukee harbor with a quart bottle of Wisconsin cream, after making her maiden voyage of 85 miles from Manitowoc. The Clipper, which will ferry regularly between Milwaukee and Muskegon, Mich., was built at a cost of one million dollars by the Manitowoc Shipbuilding company.

Gov. Julius P. Heil of Wisconsin, Milwaukee's mayor; Carl F. Zeidler, and Paul Whiteman, orchestra leader now playing in Chicago, were among the notables who turned out for the christening. Patricia Suzanne McKee, pretty 16 year old daughter of Max B. McKee, shattered the bottle of cream on the prow of the new ship while several hundred onlookers watched from the pier. McKee is a director of the Wisconsin and Michigan Steamship company, which owns the 4,300 ton Clipper.

Sails Up River.

Following the christening Capt. Allen K. Hoxie, veteran of 30 years' service on the Great Lakes, and his ship's crew of 75, piloted the vessel up the Milwaukee river for more than a mile to give Milwaukee residents a closeup of the ship's trim streamlining. The Clipper is powered by 3,600 horse power oil burning engines, has single screw operation, and boasts a cruising speed of 17½ miles an hour. Capt. Hoxie said the ship performed creditably on the maiden cruise from Manitowoc and made 16 miles an hour without effort, altho it is not yet "broken in."

The river trip was followed by a three hour guest cruise in Lake Michigan. The Clipper left at midnight for a run across the lake to Muskegon. Regular service—two round trips a day—will be started between Milwaukee and Muskegon on June 15. The one way run will take 5¼ hours.

It's Completely Streamlined.

The Clipper is streamlined from stem to stern, and all structural work and equipment, including the furniture, is of metal or other noninflammable material except the dance floor on the second deck. The ship has three passenger decks, including a top deck for sunning; middle deck with dancing, cocktail bar, lounge, and berths, and the lower deck, with dining room and staterooms.

George G. Sharpe and associates, naval architects of New York City, designed the Clipper. The hull of the ship formerly was the S. S. Juanita, which was operated on the Great Lakes. The vessel, however, was almost completely dismantled and was rebuilt thruout.

A ship to shore radio telephone, the first on a passenger ship operating on the Great Lakes, has been built into the Clipper.

Expect Chicago Trade.

Louis N. Biron, president of the Wisconsin and Michigan line, said he expects the Clipper to carry large numbers of motorists from Chicago. Chicagoland residents, particularly those on the north side and in northern suburbs, can take a short cut to Michigan vacation points by driving to Milwaukee and ferrying across the lake, Biron said. This would avoid a tedious motor trip thru heavy traffic around the southern tip of Lake Michigan, he added.

For motorists in and near Milwaukee the Clipper trip of 82 miles will offer a substitute for a 240 mile drive around the southern end of Lake Michigan—the distance by highway from Milwaukee to Muskegon.

"If this service proves popular with Chicagoans, our company will study the possibility of opening a direct ferry service from Chicago across Lake Michigan," Biron said.

The running time of the Clipper cuts one hour from previous ferry schedules. The trips will leave Milwaukee daily at noon and midnight and on the return runs will leave Muskegon at 7:15 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. After Sept. 8 one run a day will be operated thruout the winter.

The Clipper carries sleeping accommodations for 138 passengers, including 56 pullman type berths, 29 two-berth staterooms, and 8 three-berth staterooms. The stateroom quarters are air conditioned.

W-G-N'S SUMMER REVUE WILL OPEN TOMORROW NIGHT

Edna Odell to Sing at Show's Premiere.

A new Summertime Revue, featuring noted guest singers in familiar and popular music, will have its première in the main audience studio of W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. The Summertime Revue will be a regular Wednesday evening attraction over the coast to coast Mutual network.

Each week there will be a studio audience of more than 600 persons. Tomorrow evening the entire guest company will join in singing a medley of hit songs of a few years back.

Edna Odell to Sing.

Edna Odell, popular with W-G-N listeners for several years, will be featured on the opening broadcast. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Dance orchestra will be regulars on the show. Lou Jackobson is to produce the show.

Four members of the W-G-N orchestra have formed an impromptu string quartet to offer a presentation they have tentatively titled "In the Groove with Grieg." In this performance the W-G-N boys will lean [but not too heavily] on Edvard Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suite." The fellow conspirators are Adolph Hoffman, 'cellist, who has made this arrangement; Michael Wilomirski and Joseph Stepanski, violinists, and Armin Roth, violist.

The show will open each week with George Gershwin's "Summertime" as the theme. Miss Odell is to sing, "Does Your Heart Beat for Me?" and "Speak Your Heart."

Ascap Music to Be Heard.

Much of the music will be drawn from the notable collection now available to W-G-N and Mutual listeners thru the new agreement with the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers.

A medley of hit songs of other years will be included. In this group will be Irving Berlin's "Remember" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band"; Ray Noble's "The Very Thought of You" and "Good Night Sweetheart"; "Whistle While You Work," "Sweet Sue," "Moonlight and Roses," "Shine On, Harvest Moon," "Of Thee I Sing," and "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag."

Miss Odell comes from Fort Wayne, Ind., and formerly was known as the Hoosier Songbird. She has ingratiated herself with radio listeners thru her warm voice and sense of rhythm.

RITES TOMORROW IN EVANSTON FOR CARL JEFFERSON

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in St. Mark's Episcopal church in Evanston for Carl Smith Jefferson, general solicitor for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific railroad. Mr. Jefferson, whose home is at 1135 Judson avenue, Evanston, died yesterday in the Evanston hospital. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Jefferson was born in Madison, Wis., and was graduated from the University of Wisconsin and admitted to the bar there in 1896. Two years later he became a law clerk for the railroad. In 1910 he was appointed assistant general solicitor, a position he held until 1922 except for service in the judge advocate's office of the army during the world war. In 1922 he became general attorney for the railroad and in 1931 general solicitor.

Surviving Mr. Jefferson are his wife, Esther, and three sons, Beverly, William, and Carl. He was a member of the Union League, Evanston Country, and Glen View Golf clubs.

JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS CHARTERS TO 5 MORE ENTERPRISES

Junior Achievement of Chicago, which charters companies organized by young people to engage in business enterprises, awarded five new charters last night in a meeting at 111 West Washington street. The new companies bring to 15 the number of such junior firms in the Chicago area, all with officers 21 years of age or younger.

The companies have the right to sell stock at 50 cents a share up to $200 capitalization. More than 1,000 companies are in operation thruout the United States, teaching young men and women the American system of free enterprise thru firsthand experience.

The firms chartered last night and the types of work they will do, were: Commercial Service bureau, bookkeeping, stenographic and clerical services; Bridgeport Junior Manufacturing company, light furniture manufacturing; Lake Specialty company, plastic items; Youth Talent agency, entertainment booking, and Chicago Commentator Publishing company, publication of a magazine describing the achievements of junior firms.

PLAN PROGRAM TO GIVE NATION MORE DOCTORS

A three point program, designed to meet the medical needs of the national preparedness program, was offered for submission to member institutions yesterday by the executive council of the Association of American Medical colleges.

The proposed steps should be taken without lowering standards of medical education, declared the executive council, headed by Dr. Russell H. Oppenheimer, dean of the school of medicine of Emory university, Atlanta, Ga.

The council made the following recommendations:

1. Increase the enrollment of the 1941 entering class by 10 per cent.
2. Continue the required medical training of the fourth year during the summer of 1941 in order to graduate at an earlier date as many students as possible.
3. Study the need for possibility of revising the schedule of instruction in medical colleges with a view to accelerating the output of graduates during the national emergency.

Bullet Passes Thru Head, but Sterling Boy May Live

Sterling, Ill., June 2 [Special].—A .22 caliber rifle bullet passed thru Harry Vittori's head yesterday afternoon, but physicians give him a good chance to recover. He and two brothers, Alio and Lucian, were shooting at a target when the rifle accidentally discharged in the hands of Alio. The bullet entered Harry's head near the right ear and lodged near the left ear. Physicians are trying to decide whether to remove the slug.

Alberta Woman Liberal Wins Seat in Parliament

EDMONTON, Alta, June 2 (AP).—Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, a Liberal who campaigned on a win-the-war platform, was elected to the house of commons today by the voters of Edmonton East. She is the first woman Liberal ever to win a seat. The by-election was caused by the death of her husband, F. C. Casselman, in Ottawa, Ont., several weeks ago.

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste
If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

[ADVERTISMENT]

DANCING DOTTIE ...she gets a going-over!
NEVER SAW YOU SO PRETTY, DOTTIE, AND LIVELY, TOO! YOU WERE SO SKINNY AND LISTLESS A WHILE AGO. HOW COME?
I WAS TOLD I HAD A "VITAMIN B COMPLEX DEFICIENCY." GET IT?
NOT QUITE! PUT IT IN LITTLE WORDS, PLEASE!
MEANS I HAD A SHORTAGE OF THOSE PRECIOUS VITAMINS THAT ARE FOUND SO ABUNDANTLY IN YEAST AND RAW LIVER.
YOU MEAN THE REGULAR FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST CAKES? GROCERY-STORE YEAST?
THE GIRL IS RIGHT! FLEISCHMANN'S IS RICH IN THE VITAMIN B COMPLEX AND, OF COURSE, YOU CAN'T LOOK OR FEEL YOUR BEST WITHOUT THOSE VITAMINS. IT'S CHEAP TOO
FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST IS ONE OF THE RICHEST NATURAL SOURCES OF THE AMAZING VITAMIN B COMPLEX... AND I TAKE IT THE NEW, DELICIOUS WAY... IN TOMATO JUICE!
MASH a cold cake of Fleischmann's Yeast in a dry glass with a fork, then add a little tomato juice, milk, or water and STIR till blended... then fill glass, stir again, and DRINK... twice a day. It's especially delicious in tomato juice.

UTILITIES PLAN HUGE BOOST IN POWER OUTPUT

Expect No 'Crises' Like TVA's.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Buffalo, N. J., June 2.—Moving to keep abreast of the nation's needs for electric power for its preparedness program, the utilities this year will add 2,260,000 kilowatts to their generating capacity at a cost of $731,000,000, the Edison Electric institute disclosed here today. In addition municipal and federal agencies will add 1,260,000 kilowatts, making a grand total of 3,520,000 kilowatts to be added this year to the nation's power plant.

Edward C. Eicher of SEC, who will address institute.

About 2,000 executives of member companies of the institute are in Buffalo for the annual convention of the organization. Committee meetings were held today in preparation for the general meetings which will extend thru Thursday.

Expect to Avoid "Crises."

While mutual problems of the industry's everyday business are being discussed, the theme of this year's session is preparedness to meet the arms demands. The privately operated utilities, because of past studies as to future needs, do not expect power crises to develop in their territories such as has occurred in the Tennessee Valley authority area, where low water has impaired electric power production.

The TVA engineers overestimated the amount of rainfall expected to fill the dams to keep their hydroelectric plants running, and this year the TVA has found it difficult to meet its power contracts resulting from overselling.

Officials of the Edison Electric institute estimate that 3,400,000 kilowatts will be added to the national power plant in 1942. One forecast that the cost to the private utilities for the 1942 expansion may be close to 1 billion dollars, setting an all-time record. And the industry is now studying the needs for 1943 and 1944.

SEC Chairman to Speak.

At the end of 1940 the generating capacity of all the plants in the country was 41,638,956 kilowatts, of which private utilities accounted for 34,398,576 kilowatts. The total installed generating capacity was about 30 per cent in excess of the individual peak loads of the various operating companies.

Considerable speculation was aroused by the unexpected announcement that Edward C. Eicher, chairman of the Securities and Exchange commission, will address the convention Thursday. It is reported that Eicher may clarify the relationship between the government and the utilities over the controversial death sentence legislation for holding companies.

Indicating the attitude of executives who are meeting here was the comment of Kinsey M. Robinson of Spokane, Wash., president of the Washington Water Power company.

"The utility industry's No. 1 job is to help on the national defense program," he said. "Every one in the industry is willing to help. Our hope is, however, that there will be a moratorium on some of the punitive measures which have been taken against the industry."

CHICAGO AREA'S CUSTOMS FEES UP HALF MILLION

Chicago area customs collections during May totaled $1,266,637, compared with $770,743 a year ago, Collector of Customs Joseph A. Ziemba announced yesterday. He attributed much of the increase to heavy importation of liquor in anticipation of tax increases. Trade with the British empire is as large as it was before the start of the war, he said.

Collections for the first five months of 1941 increased to $4,566,721, from $3,452,277 in the 1940 period.

Week's Steel Mill Rate Placed at 99.2 Per Cent

New York, June 2 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel institute estimated today that the nation's steel mills will operate this week at 99.2 percent of capacity, a gain of .6 point over last week. A month ago operations were at 96.8 per cent and a year ago at 80.3 per cent of capacity.

Demand for Accounting of Vast TVA Funds Put Up to Congress

TURNS AGAINST TVA

Knoxville, Tenn., June 2 [Special].—The Knoxville News-Sentinel, long a staunch supporter of most if not all Tennessee Valley authority policies, today strongly criticized the TVA's new power conservation policy as "weak and aimless." The newspaper editorially assailed the TVA's request for a 250 million dollar dam program "without making an honest effort to get needed power otherwise." This request was made to congress to meet a threat to the production of aluminum and other materials resulting from a lack of water.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—Controler General Lindsay C. Warren today asked congress to settle once and for all the vexatious question of whether the Tennessee Valley authority should submit its vast expenditures to an accounting by another government agency.

As soon as he took office, Warren wrote in letters to the speaker and Vice President, he conferred with TVA officials "in an earnest attempt to settle existing differences." In the midst of the negotiations, he wrote, the TVA submitted a memorandum challenging the jurisdiction of the general accounting office with the claim that the authority was wholly exempt from the provisions of the budget and accounting act and other statutes requiring an accounting of public funds.

Opposes TVA View.

In a lengthy decision rendered Dec. 21, 1940, Warren replied that he could subscribe to no such view and that he could not proceed officially on such a basis. Since then, he said, the TVA had appealed to the secretary of the treasury but that "neither the treasury department nor the attorney general has jurisdiction to decide or determine the matter so as to relieve me of official responsibility in the premises."

The controler general said he was faced with two choices—one, to permit the TVA indefinitely to continue to withdraw large sums from the treasury for which no accounting was rendered, or two, of holding that the fiscal officers of the authority are delinquent in the rendition of their accounts and thereupon to withhold approval of requisitions for further advances from the treasury.

Fears Curb on Operations.

Warren said he was loath to follow the latter course, at is would leave the authority without funds and would "jeopardize not only normal operations but also national defense activities."

The only solution, Warren declared, was for congress to clarify its intent and purpose. He submitted proposed alternate drafts of legislation which would uphold either the view of the general accounting office or of the TVA.

Utility Battles to Retain Its Midwest Units

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—The North American company, top holding company of a group of five utility operating systems, argued before the Securities and Exchange commission today that it should be permitted to retain control of three operating properties in the middle west.

Its contention was made at the opening of hearings on proposals by Ralph C. Binford, counsel for the SEC's public utilities division, to break up North American company's holdings under the so-called "death sentence" clause of the public utility holding company act.

May Block Dissolution Plan.

During the hearing the SEC ordered the company and its subholding company, North American Light and Power company, to show cause why the commission should not halt Light and Power stockholders from taking action Wednesday on a proposal to dissolve and liquidate their concern.

The SEC's notice said North American company held 85 per cent of Light and Power common stock and proposed to vote that stock to dissolve Light and Power. It asserted that the proposed dissolution might "hinder and obstruct" whatever final action the commission takes in the case.

Binford Urges One System.

Binford's proposal would limit North American's control to one operating utility. The company asked that it be allowed to retain control of the Union Electric company of Missouri and subsidiaries, the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company, and the Wisconsin-Michigan group of three utilities.

The holding company also asserted that it should be allowed to retain what it called its minority investments in Pacific Gas and Electric company, the Detroit Edison company, and certain other businesses incidental to the operation of the company.

OFFER FLINTKOTE SENIOR STOCK AT $100.50 A SHARE

An underwriting group headed by Lehman Brothers will offer to the public today 40,000 shares of $4.50 cumulative preferred stock, without par value, of the Flintkote company. Offering price will be $100.50 a share, plus accrued dividends from March 15, this year.

Of net proceeds of the sale, $2,250,000 will be used by Flintkote to pay off in full promissory notes issued last year in connection with plant expansion. The rest will be used for possible purchase of additional equipment and facilities, and for general corporate purposes.

LONDON, June 2 (AP).—All British financial and commodity exchanges were closed today in observance of Whitsuntide.

JUDGE REBUKES RAIL ATTORNEYS FOR DELAY IN REORGANIZATION

The memorandum was written in connection with Judge Barnes' order authorizing final allowances for compensation and expenses incurred in the reorganization.

Commenting on the delay since confirmation of the plan of reorganization on Jan. 10, 1940, Judge Barnes said:

"While the subject matter of the proceeding is a railroad, it is a small one. This proceeding should have been closed within six months after the date of confirmation."

He set June 16 for a final hearing on objections to the report of the trustees and indicated that he might issue a final decree and discharge the trustees at that time.

BUSINESS LOANS EXTEND ADVANCE THRU 5TH WEEK

The fifth straight weekly increase in bank loans to business was reported yesterday by the federal reserve board for the week ended May 28. EXPECT NATIONAL ACTION AGAINST OIL PRICE BOOSTS

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—Government action to control prices of gasoline and fuel oil in all parts of the country is being considered by defense officials, it was learned today.

Because of the varied price structure in the oil business it is considered unlikely that ceilings such as have been imposed on some commodities will be invoked even if action is found desirable. Instead, it was learned, companies may be required to submit their cost records to justify any increases.

Large companies operating in the mid-Atlantic and New England areas already have agreed to a request of Leon Henderson, price administrator, that they not raise prices without first consulting him.

WESTERN RAILS COUNTER UNION WAGE DEMANDS

Seek Modification of 'Feather Bed' Rules.

The western railroads replied yesterday to the demand of the five railroad operating brotherhoods for a 30 per cent wage increase. Denouncing the increase as unwarranted, the managements of the railroads announced that they would make demands of their own.

First, they will ask modification of the socalled "featherbed" rules under which workers are paid for doing work they do not perform or for work which is trivial. Second, they will resist the efforts of engineers and conductors to place additional men in Diesel-electric locomotives.

The managements' position was outlined in a statement signed by C. E. Johnston, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, with headquarters in Chicago.

Johnston said the average hourly wages the men are asking would be 38½ per cent higher than they received at the height of the country's prosperity in 1929. Measured by the cost of living—the purchasing power of their pay—he said, the men are asking wages 58 per cent higher than they received in 1929.

"The railways of the western territory have sent notices to the transportation brotherhoods proposing changes in the working rules that result in the large payments being made for 'feather bed' service," he declared. They have proposed to the locomotive engineers and firemen 11 changes in the rules and to the conductors 12."

Johnston said that as an example the railroads propose to eliminate "all restrictions upon start of yard service employés at any time or place necessary to meet the requirements of the service and all penalty payments in connection therewith." The railroad adjustment board [an organization with headquarters in Chicago to mediate disputes over rules] has approved workers' claims for substantial amounts because of complaints that an employé was started to work slightly earlier than the employés considered he should have been under existing agreements.

1½ Day's Pay for 15 Minutes.

For instance, Johnston said, a railroad was compelled to pay a penalty of 12 hours' wages for work on each day from 6:15 a. m. to 6:30 a. m. because the employé began work before 6:30 a. m. This penalty payment was in addition to the eight hours' regular wage that had to be paid for the 7 hours 45 minutes of work done from 6:30 a. m. to 2:15 p. m.

Another management proposal is the "elimination of all restrictions on road crews performing yard work and all penalty payments to either road or yard crews in connection with such performance."

"It will surprise many persons to learn," Johnston said, "that in numerous instances the railroad adjustment board has held that when a train crew has done even a trifling amount of switching, not only must all members be paid an extra day's work for doing this switching, but that a yard crew which did not work at all must be paid a day's wages."

Get 5 Years Pay for Idleness.

He cited an instance where in 1932 work had declined at a certain town to a point that only 3½ hours switching per day was necessary. From then to June, 1937, a road crew did the small amount of switching at the place. The board ruled last January that the railroad involved not only had to pay the road crews a day's wages at yard rates in addition to their regular road wages but it had to pay a yard crew a day's wages for each day that switching was performed during the five year period even tho it had done no work.

Johnston criticized the demand of the firemen that an additional man be put into each power unit in a Diesel-electric locomotive and of the enginemen for an additional man in the cab as "another effort to load down the railway pay roll with wages for employés that are not needed." Diesel-electric locomotives frequently are made up of a number of power units altho the units in effect constitute one locomotive. In some of the large four unit locomotives it would be necessary to have six firemen and engineers on board, with practically all the work handled by one engineer.

Defense Stamp and Bond Sale Data Promised

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. disclosed today that he will make a radio report Thursday night on sales of defense bonds and stamps during the first month of the nationwide campaign to finance the armament program. Morgenthau promised that all available information on the campaign to date will be released then. Up until now the treasury has declined to issue a report on regional sales of the bonds and stamps, asserting data were incomplete.

Morgenthau also told a press conference that it appears too late now to impose a general order freezing all foreign funds located in the United States. Morgenthau has long advocated such a step, particularly aimed at Germany and Italy.

Says "Barn Is Empty."

"The barn's empty; the horse is gone," Morgenthau replied today when asked about the possibility of a general freezing order. The implication was that Germany and Italy have already removed most of their assets in the United States, which were estimated at a combined total of 160 million dollars when last reported. American assets subject to axis control exceed 500 million dollars.

The treasury secretary would not comment on his recent trip aboard a "neutrality patrol" warship in the Atlantic, other than to say he wanted to see how the arms money was being spent. "Every dollar going into the fleet is well spent," he declared.

No Change in Tax Plans.

The upward revision in the 1942 budget will not change the treasury's plans for new taxes of 3½ billion dollars, said Morgenthau, adding that the treasury will be glad just to get that much. New borrowing will make up for the increased spending estimates.

"I don't think anybody yet has fully realized the job ahead of us," Morgenthau asserted, referring to arms production, expenditures, and everything connected with the program. He declined to give any estimate on lend-lease costs during the next year, saying that is up to Harry Hopkins, the lend-lease administrator.

OIL CONSPIRACY CASE ENDS WITH $20,000 IN FINES

Madison, Wis., June 2 (AP).—Two oil companies and five individuals were fined a total of $20,000 by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley today on charges that they conspired in 1935 and 1936 to fix retail gasoline prices at artificial high levels in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

16 week trial in 1937 and 1938, had been granted retrials and changed their pleas of not guilty to no defense.

Fines were imposed as folloks:

Standard Oil Company of Indiana, $5,000; Cities Service Oil company, $5,000; Alexander Fraser, president of Shell Oil company, $2,500; A. G. Maguire, vice president of the Wadhams division of Socony-Vacuum Oil company, $1,500; Edward J. Bullock, vice president of Standard Oil of Indiana, $2,500; Oscar J. Tuttle, sales executive of Cities Service, $2,000, and H. J. Kennedy of the Continental Oil company, $1,500.

Cases against H. E. Brandli and H. O. Frueauff, both of Cities Service, were dismissed. The court's action completed disposition of the government's case.

3 LOCAL TRANSIT SYSTEMS REPORT GAINS IN TRAFFIC

The Chicago Surface Lines yesterday reported a 2.86 per cent increase in May passenger traffic and an 0.7 per cent gain for the first five months of 1941. Passengers carried last month numbered 60,348,067, compared with 58,667,960 in May, 1940. The five month total rose to 295,643,357 from 293,587,841.

Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated] reported that its increase for May as compared with a year earlier was 2.55 per cent, indicating that the number of passengers rose to 12,779,451 from 12,461,691. The five month gain was 1.15 per cent, indicating 64,307,835 passengers against 63,576,703 a year ago.

Chicago Motor Coach company reported that its buses carried 5,370,144 passengers in May, or 5.4 per cent more than in May, 1940. For the first five months the number was 25,863,632, or 2.9 per cent higher than a year earlier.

70,000 Given Wage Boost by Chrysler

Detroit, Mich., June 2 (AP).—Wage increases and bonuses totaling approximately 15 million dollars for 70,000 Chrysler corporation workers were announced tonight at the conclusion of negotiations between representatives of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] and the corporation.

The new agreement calls for an 8 cent an hour increase and payment of a $45 bonus in December to all workers with a year's seniority. The contract will be retroactive to June 1.

Herman L. Weckler, Chrysler vice president, said that the union had agreed to a stipulation that neither the union nor the corporation would request any amendments in the agreement prior to November, 1942.

DAY'S STRIKE NEWS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Warehouse workers in the San Francisco bay area struck yesterday, and a two weeks old walkout at the Detroit Steel Products company spread to another plant to delay work on steel window and door sashes ordered for army training centers.

Coming on top of a Sunday strike by 2,200 truck drivers and helpers in the Pittsburgh area, the walkouts confronted government officials with an apparent new wave of labor disputes.

Asked to Return to Jobs.

Following an appeal by the defense mediation board to both management and labor at the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company in San Francisco to "show their patriotism" by immediate resumption of production, pending settlement of their dispute, the Bay Cities Metal Trades council tonight asked all its members to return to work. The council's action, however, does not end the AFL machinists' strike against Bethlehem. The board has called a hearing at Washington for June 9. The strike has tied up 500 million dollars of ship construction and repair work in 11 San Francisco shipyards and dry docks.

The first break developed in CIO sponsored strikes which have affected 20,000 men and production in the pacific northwest lumber industry. Union boom men in Tacoma, Wash., voted to return to work under a compromise granting a 7½ cents an hour wage increase, retroactive to April 1. The new scale will bring the minimum pay to $8.15 a day.

Forced Mills to Close.

While the boom men's union contains only 87 members, their strike forced the closing of mills and camps employing 4,000.

About 4,500 members of the CIO's International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union were involved in the San Francisco warehouse strike. They asked 10 cents increase in the 50 to 55 cents hourly received by women workers in 190 establishments. A management counter-offer of 5 cents was rejected.

Arsenal Adds Only 24 Regular Employes in May

Rock Island, Ill., June 2 [Special].—There are 8,717 employés at the Rock Island arsenal, not including 176 WPA workers, Brig. Gen. Norman F. Ramsey, commandant of the arsenal, reported today. The report shows a gain of only 24 regular workers during May, and a decrease of 265 WPA employés.

3 BIG PLANE MAKERS WILL CONCENTRATE ON SINGLE BOMBER TYPE

Seattle, Wash., June 2 (AP).—Three west coast aircraft manufacturers will pool their facilities for the production of a single type—the Boeing B17 bomber—the Boeing Aircraft company announced tonight.

The Douglas Aircraft company, Santa Monica, Cal., and the Vega Airplane company [Lockheed subsidiary] of Burbank, Cal., will work with Boeing in an unprecedented production scheme.

The company said that each of the factories would turn out completely assembled four engine bombers, identical to the point of interchangeability of parts, and that several other manufacturers would coöperate thru subcontracts.

The plan was worked out at the request of the war department to help meet the demand for four engined, long range bombers in vast numbers, the announcement said.

The Boeing company also announced immediate construction of a large addition which will quadruple present floor space of its plant in Wichita, Kas.

RETAILERS TOLD PRICE FIXING IS DOOMED TO FAIL

Former German Aid Cites Difficulties.

A nationwide program for fixing prices, wages, rents and interest rates could not be operated effectively under present business conditions in the United States, Dr. Julius Hirsch, one time head of German price control mechanism and a former reich secretary of economics, asserted yesterday.

Dr. Hirsch, who since 1933 has been a professor at the Copenhagen, Denmark, university of commerce, termed the system of general price freezing an impossibility for this country. He contrasted conditions in the United States with those in European countries which have turned to price fixing.

The economist spoke at the midyear convention of the National Retail Dry Goods association, which opened in the Stevens hotel. The meetings, which are expected to draw an attendance of 1,500, will continue thru Thursday.

Conditions Oppose Freezing.

Business conditions in the United States, he said, militate against general price freezing for these reasons:

1. "America has no established wage classes and tariffs that facilitate such systems as was the case in Germany, Scandinavia and England. Some of the new American industries are built up in areas where uniform wages and transport rates do not exist.

2. "America has not yet developed

STOCKS MAINTAIN BALANCE AGAINST WAR'S REVERSES

'Sold Out' Market Held Due for a Rally.

New York, June 2 (AP).—Stocks generally maintained their composure, and a number moved up in today's market, despite bearish developments on foreign war fronts. Loss of Crete to the Nazis and resumption of heavy bombing of England served to restrain many potential buyers, brokers said.

Dwindling of offerings in recent weeks and narrowing of trends strengthened the belief of some that the list had been "sold out" and was in a position to rally if given half a chance.

Altho minus signs were plentiful at the close, advances were i nthe majority. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks managed to emerge with a net upturn of .1 of a point at 39.7.

American Telephone Gains.

American Telephone got up 2⅛; Westinghouse, 1⅞, and Chesapeake & Ohio and Cerro de Pasco, 1 each. Consolidated Aircraft edged into new high ground for 1941 and fractions were tacked on United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Montgomery Ward, Eastman Kodak, New York Shipbuilding, Newport News Shipbuilding, and International Harvester.

Atlantic Refining and Pacific Gas dipped to new lows for the year or longer. In arrears also were General Motors, United Aircraft, Phelps Dodge, Texas corporation, Allied Chemical, and Southern Railway.

CHICAGO LIST LOWER.

Gains outnumbered losses in a narrow and dull market on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Only 12,000 shares changed hands. Commonwealth Edison company led the list with transfer of 1,100 shares.

Commonwealth Edison and Houdaille Hershey B each up ⅛ point from the New York close during the trading from 2 to 2:30 o'clock to 24⅞ and 10¼, respectively.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

A rise in wholesale markets for fresh pork stimulated buying of hogs at strong to 10 cents higher prices yesterday. Top loads advanced 5 cents to $9.60, only 5 cents below the 1941 peak and the highest June price in four years. A year ago the top was $5.50 per hundred pounds.

The market for cattle, in the doldrums for several weeks, came to life after the holiday. Some classes rallied from the 10 month lows established last week.

Lambs ruled strong to slightly higher, with $11.60 paid for the best of the new crop.

STAPLE MARKETS MOVE HIGHER ON SCARCITY FEARS

Cottonseed Oil and Hides Are Best Gainers.

Commodity futures markets came out of their extended holiday yesterday generally higher in contrast with last week's wariness following new federally decreed price ceilings and exchange regulations aimed to curb speculation. Traders attributed the buying revival to apprehension that armament production might tend toward growing scarcity of supplies.

Cottonseed oil closed with gains of 0.18 to 0.22 cent a pound at 10.57 cents bid for the July delivery. Hides advanced 0.09 to 0.17 cent to 14.68 cents a pound in the June position. Domestic sugar futures added 0.02 to 0.04 cent a pound.

Refiner Lifts Sugar Price.

National Sugar Refining company, New York, announced a 15 point advance in its list price to 5.05 cents a pound. Some business still will be considered for shipment from day-to-day on the basis of 4.95 cents, the company said.

Other final futures gains were Santos coffee, 0.13 to 0.16 cent; cocoa, 0.10 to 0.11 cent, and silk, 1½ to 3 cents.

Rubber futures went against the trend with a slump of 0.30 to 0.42 cent a pound, the July contract closing at 21.70 cents. Wool tops were unchanged to 0.3 cent a pound lower. There were no lead or tin futures sales. Prices follow:

SHOE RETAILERS TOLD TO EXPECT 30% SALES GAIN

Higher Prices and Another Peak Year Predicted.

Frank W. Cox, manager of the Stetson Shoe shop of Chicago, yesterday advised shoe retailers to prepare for a gain of 30 per cent in their business this year over last. He spoke at a luncheon in the Morrison hotel in connection with the Central States Shoe fair, which has attracted about 3,000 buyers to Chicago.

"Every retailer realizes price increases are inevitable," he said. "Consumers are expecting increases. The retailers feel that we are going to have another peak year, and should be prepared to meet the situation."

Lose Expert Workmen.

Cox asserted that manufacturers are encountering more problems in producing shoes than for many years. Armament industries are taking many expert workers from the shoe factories, and deliveries of raw materials are becoming more difficult, he said.

Retailers attending the fair from more than 10 states apparently were heeding his remarks because manufacturers reported that fall buying is heavy and earlier than usual.

Wholesale price advances of 5 to 20 cents a pair were in effect on the cheaper shoes. Highest grade shoes also were boosted, but the middle price classifications generally had not changed.

Buying also was reported brisk at the first June midseason market conducted by Chicago manufacturers and wholesalers in more than 10 years. Altho dress manufacturers had not scheduled their formal openings until Wednesday, buyers began placing orders yesterday.

New York, June 2 (AP).—The price of Kraft liner board, used in making corrugated shipping containers, will be advanced $5 a ton to $60 on July 1, major producers announced today.

DEPOSITORS HEED NICHOLS' CALL TO COME AND GET IT

100% Banker Returns Savings Funds.

Holders of savings accounts in the First National Bank of Englewood have nearly completed the withdrawal of their funds at the request of the bank, J. M. Nichols, president, reported yesterday. He said that only about $48,000, involving accounts awaiting settlement of inheritance taxes, remains in the savings department.

The banker, known as "100 per cent Nichols" because his bank for years has maintained liquid assets more than sufficient to pay off all depositors, first asked patrons to withdraw their savings accounts in a letter mailed April 23.

Owners Best Custodians.

Again, on May 7, he warned customers to call for their savings fund, saying in part: "The time is here when I believe you can best act as the custodian of your own funds."

Nichols' bank has not paid any interest on savings deposits since last December. Instead, it has been making a small charge to cover the cost of insuring the deposits with the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

Peak Above 4 Millions.

The bank had $2,018,000 of savings accounts on Jan. 2, 1941. In the early 1930s they had reached a high mark of $4,685,000.

Yesterday Nichols said concerning the decision to drop savings deposits: "From our point of view there is no chance of investing the money in the way we would like, safely and profitably, and we felt it was our duty to hand it back to the owners."

INT. HARVESTER NLRB ELECTION SET FOR JUNE 18

Union representation elections among 20,000 employés at six plants of the International Harvester company, will be held June 18, Russell R. Miller, election examiner for the National Labor Relations board, announced yesterday.

Miller set the date after a conference with company representatives and AFL and CIO union officials. The board has ruled that all production and maintenance employés on the pay roll of the company May 17, 1941, will be eligible to vote for either the AFL, CIO or neither.

The elections will be held at McCormick works and the West Pullman plant in Chicago, and at plants in East Moline, Rock Island, and Rock Falls, Ill., and Milwaukee, Wis.

Banishing Weeds.

June 2, 1941.

"THE township commissioner of noxious weeds has more power than any police officer in the state of Illinois." This statement was made recently by W. A. Moore, superintendent of the division of plant industry of the state department of agriculture, before a group of 150 farmers. The occasion of the meeting was a weed control demonstration held in Geneva.

Under the Illinois weed law each township has the power to appoint a commissioner of noxious weeds. The commissioner is responsible for the control and eradication of noxious weeds in his community. Listed by the law as noxious weeds are the Canada thistle, perennial sow thistle, field bindweed, leafy spurge, Russian knapweed, and hoary cress.

In his talk Moore sought to spur local weed commissioners to more active work. He reported that there are about 800 commissioners in the state. Only 50 per cent of these are carrying out their work and filing required reports of their work with the state department of agriculture, he said.

Fines Up to $300 Provided.

If the commissioner finds weeds on any plot of ground it is his duty to notify the owner of the land. The owner then is responsible for destroying the weeds. A refusal on his part to coöperate with the commissioner subjects him to a fine of not less than $10 and not more than $300.

If the owner does not eradicate the weeds the commissioner is empowered to seize his land and hold it until it is free of them. Moore said that two Illinois farms already have been seized.

If the commissioner goes into a farm and destroys the weeds he can charge the owner with the expense. Under the law he cannot spend more than $100 on any infested tract. If the owner refuses to pay, a judgment may be obtained against the property, and the land can be sold to satisfy the expenses.

The weed law has sharp teeth in it, Moore said, and it can be made extremely effective. "However," he added, "the job of weed commissioner in many cases has become a political appointment. Commissioners who do not know one weed from another are chosen. Others carry on their work from the town pump and seldom go out into their territory."

Under the law, commissioners are entitled to a maximum pay of $6 a day for their services. The average commissioner, Moore said, works about two and a half months out of the year, earning an average of $3.50 a day.

Incompetents Removed.

"We have succeeded in removing from office many of the commissioners who have failed to do their work, charging them with incompetency," Moore said, "but there still is room for a great deal of improvement. The commissioners should start their work early in the spring and continue until late in the fall. Any fines they collect should be placed in the township weed control fund. However, I have yet to see a single dollar in collected fines go into such a fund. Most of it goes to the local road commissioner's fund or to the town library."

Some of the commissioners are doing effective work, Moore reported, and in many townships farmers already have received cards from them stating that the noxious weeds must be eradicated before they go to seed. These notices will be followed by visits to the farms by the commissioners. If the weeds have not been removed, the commissioners can go into the farm and have the work done.

Moore asserted that Chicago is a great offender of the noxious weed law, and that Canada thistles grow wild on vacant lots, in subdivisions, and along roadsides. "Yet," he said, "the city has not appointed a single weed commissioner. We would like to have commissioners in the city. However, we are afraid the job might become only another soft touch for politicians."

WHEAT FUTURES SHARPLY HIGHER ON QUOTA ACTION

Activity in Market Lags After Opening Bulge.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

	Yesterday.	Wednesday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .96⅛	$ .94⅝	$ .83½
Corn	.73⅝	.73½	.62⅝
Oats	.36⅛	.36⅛	.33¼
Rye	.54⅛	.54⅛	.44½
Soy beans	1.35½	1.33½	.89½

Farmers' acceptance of government control of wheat marketing in Saturday's national referendum produced these results in the Chicago grain market yesterday:

Advances of 1⅛ to 1¾ cents a bushel in wheat futures; sympathetic but less pronounced increases in other commodities and grains; extremely cautious buying and selling operations on the part of professional traders, and an almost complete lack of public interest in the markets.

Buying Rush at Opening.

A rush to buy wheat futures contracts at the opening of trading lifted prices ¾ to 1⅜ cents a bushel, but the activity was short lived. By midsession the influence of the marketing quotas had worn off and traders attributed the maintenance of the gains to unwanted rains in the southwest and to mill buying. With the harvest underway, the wheat farmer desires as much dry weather as possible.

The first car of new wheat was received at Kansas City from Walters, Okla. The car graded No. 1 dark hard tough, weighing 61½ pounds to the bushel. The wheat sold at 95½ cents a bushel, or 8 cents higher than the July future.

Corn Loses Early Gains.

The lard market was firm, with stronger hog prices and a sharp upturn in cottonseed oil aiding in the advance. The lard purchases announced Saturday by the department of agriculture helped the trend.

Soy bean prices rose 1⅜ to 1⅞ cents a bushel, with strength in cottonseed oil sustaining the market. Illinois farm areas reported a substantial increase in acreages planted to soy beans this year with some clover and wheat fields being plowed up and replanted in beans.

NEW SHIPPING LANES.

What shifts in its routes did American Export Lines have to make as a result of the war? How many ships does it have in operation?—T. E. C.

Answer: Before June, 1940, when the neutrality act closed war zones to American ships, American Export Lines, Inc., operated ships on the trade routes from New York to ports on the Mediterranean and Black seas and on the Indian ocean, the last thru the Suez canal and the Red sea.

With these channels closed, the maritime company readjusted its schedules to alternative routes: New York to Lisbon, Portugal, via Bermuda, and New York to India, Burma and Ceylon by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

At the end of 1940, the company had a fleet of 27 vessels plying these routes and five additional ships were being constructed. Its subsidiary, American Export Airlines, Inc., is having three flying boats built for projected trans-Atlantic service by November.

Lehman Brothers, large New York investment banking firm, has handled the company's financing deals and on last Jan. 31 owned a block of 58,614 shares of a total 480,000 outstanding shares of $1 par common stock. American Export Lines also has outstanding 10,000 shares of 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value and funded debt of $9,892,000.

Increased passenger traffic on the Lisbon route and heavy cargo shipments resulted in a marked upturn in profits for the company in 1940. The management reported that 1940 traffic and profits were the best in the company's five year history.

Operating revenues in 1940 amounted to $19,520,680 and net income to $7,680,901, equal after preferred dividends to $15.96 a common share. Operating revenues in 1939 were $8,464,510 and net income $1,430,295, equal to $2.98 a common share.

First quater earnings this year were estimated by the company at more than $2,500,000 compared with $1,200,037 in the like 1940 period.

Regular dividends are being paid on the preferred stock. On the common stock the following cash payments were made: 1936, $1.10; 1937, $1.50; 1938, 92½ cents; 1939, 65 cents, and 1940, $1. A 25 cent quarterly dividend on the common was paid last March 14.

YIELD.

I understand there is a method of figuring out the average interest return from a bond. Do you know where I can get the formula?—H. B.

Answer: A formula for computing bond yields may be obtained by sending a stamped, addressed envelope to the Investors' Guide.

PREDICTS SUGAR PRICE WILL RISE AS WAR RESULT

Broker Expects Move to Be Gradual.

As the result of rising costs from a "war economy," sugar prices in this country will undergo a slow and gradual rise. But this commodity will not face the unstable conditions of the world war period when sugar prices skyrocketed to 25 cents a pound and then plunged to 5 cents.

This was the conclusion stated yesterday by Ody H. Lamborn, president of Lamborn & Co., Inc., New York sugar brokerage firm. He spoke at the opening of the four day 58th annual convention of the National Confectioners' association in the Palmer House.

Prices to Remain 'Modest.'

"We are not threatened with a condition such as existed during the first world war," Lamborn said. "Prices, in fact, will continue modest as compared with price levels then existing. But since we are in a war economy and costs are rising all around us, the only logical assumption can be that slowly but surely there will develop a trend toward higher prices of sugar."

The "runaway" sugar prices of the world war period, he observed, came after the destruction of factories had caused European beet sugar production to drop from approximately eight million tons to 2,600,000 tons. At the end of the war, he said, Europe engaged in a "mad scramble to obtain sugar supplies from the four corners of the earth."

Says Hoarding Caused Rise.

"The rest of the world did not have the capacity to produce and supply the vacuum quickly," Lamborn said. "Panic buying followed and hoarding was rampant."

Because of the quick capitulation of France and the Low Countries, he said, Europe at present has been spared the substantial destruction of its beet fields and factories.

With sugar sources adequate to supply the requirements of the western hemisphere, Lamborn said that a sugar shortage in this country would be unlikely unless hoarding creates a temporary scarcity."

TRADING IN SOY BEANS REACHES A NEW PEAK LEVEL

How the war has affected trading on the Chicago Board of Trade was shown yesterday in a compilation of sales during May. Sales of soy bean futures reached a new peak at 131,215,000 bushels, against 40,884,000 in January, and 9,768,000 in May, 1940.

Traders said the sharp reduction in imports of foreign oils and the rapid growth of the soy bean as a major industrial product, accounted for the gain.

Loss of export markets and the accumulation of vast surpluses accounted for the shrinkage in wheat, corn, oats, and rye trading, by comparison with May, 1940, figures. Approach of the new harvest and a better idea of the size of the 1941 crops, created more interest in these markets than in April.

UTILITIES ISSUES RISE, STEADYING N. Y. BOND PRICES

New York, June 2 (AP).—A few rising issues among utilities gave a steadying influence to the bond market today. Fractional gains and losses were about even at the close.

United States government loans generally ended unchanged from Saturday in over-the-counter dealings. Stock exchange prices on the federals, coming into line with the dealers' market, ranged 17-32 point higher to 2-32 lower.

International Mercantile Marine 6s, closing up 1¾ point at 83, were among the more active corporate issues following announcement of plans for meeting the issue at maturity on Oct. 1 with 50 per cent cash and 50 per cent new bonds.

Foreign dollar loans showed an upward trend with advances made by German unstamped 7s of '49, and issues of Cuba, Sao Paulo, Japan, and Denmark.

SUPREME COURT BROADENS U. S. RULE OF RIVERS

Justice W. O. Douglas delivers decision.

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—The Supreme court broadened the federal government's authority over the nation's waterways today in upholding the constitutionality of a $54,000,000 power and flood control dam across the Red river on the Oklahoma-Texas border.

A decision earlier in the term, involving the New river in Virginia, upheld federal jurisdiction over nonnavigable portions of a navigable stream.

"And we now add that the power of flood control extends to the tributaries of navigable streams," said today's unanimous decision delivered by Justice W. O. Douglas.

Based on Commerce Clause.

Gov. Leon C. Phillips of Oklahoma had been fighting the project in the courts for four years. He charged that the dam would inundate 100,000 acres of land in his state, including 3,800 acres of state lands used for a prison farm, highways and bridges; 15,000 acres of highly productive oil lands, and 50,000 acres underlaid with oil and gas, affecting four counties.

Bars Produce Mart Rebates.

In another decision, the court held that "the giving of any cash, rental credit, free or reduced rents to induce leasing of space' 'in a new produce market in Kansas City, Kas., violated federal legislation prohibiting rebates in connection with railroad transportation.

The court adjourned for the summer after ordering reargument Oct. 13 of litigation involving contempt of court convictions of Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader, and of the Los Angeles Times. The separate controversies presented the issue of whether publication of comment on court cases prior to a final settlement constituted contempt of court.

YOUNGSTOWN CIO WORKERS GET 1937 STRIKE PAY

Youngstown, O., June 2 (AP).—Two hundred fifty-eight Youngstown Sheet and Tube company employés who engaged in the 1937 CIO steel strike reached into their mail boxes today and found checks totaling $170,000 as full payment of their back wage claims.

The checks were mailed from the Cleveland National Labor Relations board office under an agreement reached March 30 by the company and the union. The agreement, which also called for reinstatement of 266 employés, more than half of whom already had returned to work, provided that nine workers receive $20,000 of the fund. For seven the money was in lieu of higher positions which the strikers claimed were due them, and for two it was in lieu of reinstatement.

LAKE MOVEMENT OF IRON ORE SETS ALL TIME RECORD

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP). — Ralph Budd, defense transportation commissioner, reported today that great lakes shipping during May carried the largest monthly volume of iron ore in lake history. The total was 11,081,199 long tons.

This brought total lake ore movement for the season to 18,035,000 long tons, compared with 7,743,000 during the corresponding 1940 period, Budd said.

CELANESE CORP. APRIL EARNINGS BREAK RECORDS

Vick Chemical Registers Moderate Increase.

Earnings of the Celanese corporation of America, a major producer of cellulose acetate yarn, were the highest in the company's history during April, Dr. Camille Dreyfus, president, announced yesterday in New York.

He placed the month's income at $1,200,000 before excess profits taxes, against $2,103,165 for the entire second quarter of last year.

April shipments were more than 65 per cent above total shipments for the first quarter of this year and the high rate continued in May, he said.

Vick Profits Increase.

The Vick Chemical company reported net income of $2,576,887, equal to $3.78 a share, for the nine months ended with March, against $2,546,686, or $3.66 a share, in the corresponding period a year earlier.

Net income of the Diamond Match company declined to $504,973, equal to 40 cents a share, in the March quarter from $513,820, or 41 cents a share a year ago.

Addressograph-Multigraph corporation and its Canadian subsidiary reported net income of $1,062,673, equal to $1.41 a share, in the nine months ended April 30, before provision for excess profits taxes. Earnings were $790,937, or $1.05 a share, in the corresponding period a year earlier.

Estimate Ship Line Profit.

John M. Franklin, president of International Mercantile Marine company told stockholders at the annual meeting in Hoboken, N. J., that the company for the six months ended June 30 would show earnings of about $2,100,000 exclusive of operation of its big liners, America, Manhattan, and Washington. The government has arranged to take over these vessels. In the 1940 report the company showed a deficit.

THREE MUNITIONS PLANTS ORDERED; COST 119 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., June 2 (AP).—Sites for three army munitions plants costing an estimated total of 119 million dollars were announced today by the war department.

Parsons, Kas., was chosen for a 35 million dollar plant to load artillery ammunition and bombs. A 45½ million dollar shell loading plant was assigned to Texarkana, Tex. Chattanooga, Tenn., was selected for a 39 million dollar plant to manufacture high explosive TNT.

Cost estimates in each instance include purchase of land, construction of buildings, and installation of equipment.

BOND TAPE TO GIVE BIDS.

The New York Stock exchange bond tape will carry occasional bids and offers on bonds, as is already done in stock quotations.

People and Events

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation yesterday announced the appointment of Peter V. Martin as superintendent of the Gary works blast furnaces. Martin, 39 years old, has been with the United States Steel corporation subsidiary for 26 years, beginning as a messenger. He succeeds the late W. H. Geesman.

Peter V. Martin.

The 16th annual field day of the Bond Traders' club of Chicago will be held June 14 at the Crystal Lake Country club. Activities will include golf, tennis, and other sports, followed by a banquet.

Norris & Kenly will move July 1 from present offices at 208 South La Salle street to the offices now occupied on the ground floor of the Rookery building by S. B. Chapin & Co., wrich is retiring from business as of June 30. Norris & Kenly is a member of the New York Stock exchange, Chicago Stock exchange, and Chicago Board of Trade, and associate member of the New York Curb exchange.

The middle western sales offices of the Philco Radio and Television corporation have been moved to permanent headquarters in the American Furniture mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, augmenting the national showroom opened last January. Celebrating the change, an open house for dealers in the Chicago area has been scheduled today thru Thursday.

RE-ELECT BETTS AS CHAIRMAN OF CHICAGO BOARD

Arthur M. Betts, senior partner of Alfred L. Baker & Co., yesterday was reëlected chairman of the board of governors of the Chicago Stock exchange for his fourth consecutive one year term.

Four new members were elected to the board for three year terms. They are Roy E. Bard, Sutro Brothers & Co.; George E. Barnes, Wayne Hummer & Co.; Joseph P. Brown and Reuben Thorson, Jackson & Curtis. Charles Swift, Henke & Co., was chosen for a one year term.

Four present members were reëlected governors to serve three years. They are John J. Bryant Jr., James H. Oliphant & Co.; John C. Stewart, Alfred E. Turner, and Hugh H. Wilson.

Leeds Mitchell, Winthrop, Mitchell & Co., was named chairman of the 1942 nominating committee, which will be comprised of William T. Bacon, Bacon, Whipple & Co.; John R. Burdick Jr.; Morton D. Cahn, and Joseph A. Rushton, Goodbody & Co.

EGG FUTURES SET PEAKS AS U. S. BUYS FOR BRITAIN

The June storage packed contract rose 0.60 cent a dozen to close at the day's high of 25 cents, peak since 1929. The October future reached 27.55 cents, highest for any refrigerator delivery since January, 1937, and top for the position in 10 years before ending at 27.50 cents for a net gain of 0.30 cent. Nearly 1,638,000 pounds of frozen eggs, 157,000 pounds of dried eggs, and 4,400 cases of shell eggs were purchased Saturday by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, presumably for Britain.

PUZZLE OF MONDAY, JUNE 2, SOLVED

Germany's Former Adviser Reveals Difficulties.

any administration acquainted with such difficult and manifold control functions as would be needed to make a general price freezing control effective."

Dr. Hirsch asserted that price freezing favors industries which have enjoyed larger sales volume thru turning out producers' and armament goods. But such a system, he said, would mean lower returns for higher costs per unit in consumers' good industries, which he said stand to lose in sales volume at this time.

Doubts General Order.

"I do not think that America will go the way of general price freezing," he declared, "and I do not think that America will be forced to go a long way with respect to the rationing of commodities.

"To be sure, an initial step in this process is already well known over here by the name of priorities. Where the supply of a commodity becomes more and more limited, as a rule that customer gets it who is willing to pay the highest price for it. But if a price limit is imposed, the commodity goes to the seller's best friends."

While Europe has faced the problem of "rationing the scarcity," Dr. Hirsch emphasized that "America's task still is to organize the abundance."

Advises Price Freedom.

Even in emergency situations "no economist with a sense of responsibility ever has deliberately abolished the functions of the free price," he said.

"Single price disruptions can disturb the whole national price level, which becomes unsupportable, psychologically as well as politically, for the sake of the population living on fixed incomes, the draftees and, in warring countries, the fighters."

Dr. Hirsch warned that price inflation would result in "enormous" increases in armament expenses, and issued the reminder that "price inflation in emergency periods is invariably followed by dangerous price deflation in the post-emergency period."

Jay Iglauer, chairman of the dry goods association's taxation committee and vice president of Halle Brothers company, Cleveland, O., urged that the government slash nonarmament expenditures.

Advocates Civilian Curb.

Stacy May, director of the bureau of research and statistics of the Office of Production Management, expressed the opinion that "we have been both too timid in diverting civilian machine facilities to armament production and in providing for the expansion of facilities for producing critical raw materials."

He declared the government "should be completely ruthless in cuting into civilian production at any point where men, materials or facilities are needed for our present defense program or for the much larger one I believe we should have."

A. of C. Creates Special Unit for Advice on Arms

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday announced the establishment of a special organization to aid Chicago companies in the "unprecedented emergencies" developing in the armament program. The announcement said the association is equipped to advise companies whether it would be advisable to seek armament business and to answer other questions relating to the preparedness efforts.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

The Canadian dollar yesterday rose ½ cent in the foreign exchange market, closing at 88¼ cents in terms of the United States dollar. The British pound eased ½ cent to $4.03½. The Argentine free peso gained .08 of a cent to set a new 1941 high. Other major world currencies were unchanged.

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP).—Call money: Steady, 1 per cent; prime commercial paper: ½ per cent. Time loans: Steady, 60-90 days, 1¼ per cent; 4-6 months, 1½ per cent. Bankers acceptances unchanged. 60-90 days, ½-7/16 per cent; 4 months, 7/16-½ per cent; 5-6 months, ⅝-9/16 per cent. Rediscount rate, New York Reserve bank, 1 per cent. Bar silver, 34¾c per ounce, unchanged.

CHICAGO MAY BUILDING VOLUME LARGEST SO FAR DURING THIS YEAR

Building construction during May was the largest of any month so far this year, Building Commissioner Richard Schmidt reported yesterday. A total of 608 permits was issued, for buildings valued at $7,382,651, compared with $5,599,096 for the same month last year, and with $4,312,133 for April, 1941.

Home building in Chicago last month reached the highest level in many years with permits issued for 499 single family dwellings, costing $2,659,691. In May of last year there were 289 permits and in April of this year the total was 359.

Chicago's May total of all types of building was boosted to its high level by the $2,000,000 permit issued for the big Studebaker aircraft engine parts factory.

Fewer Business Failures Reported for Last Week

New York, June 2 (AP).—Dun & Bradstreet reported today a total of 221 business failures in the week ended May 29, compared with 270 in the preceding week and 239 last year.

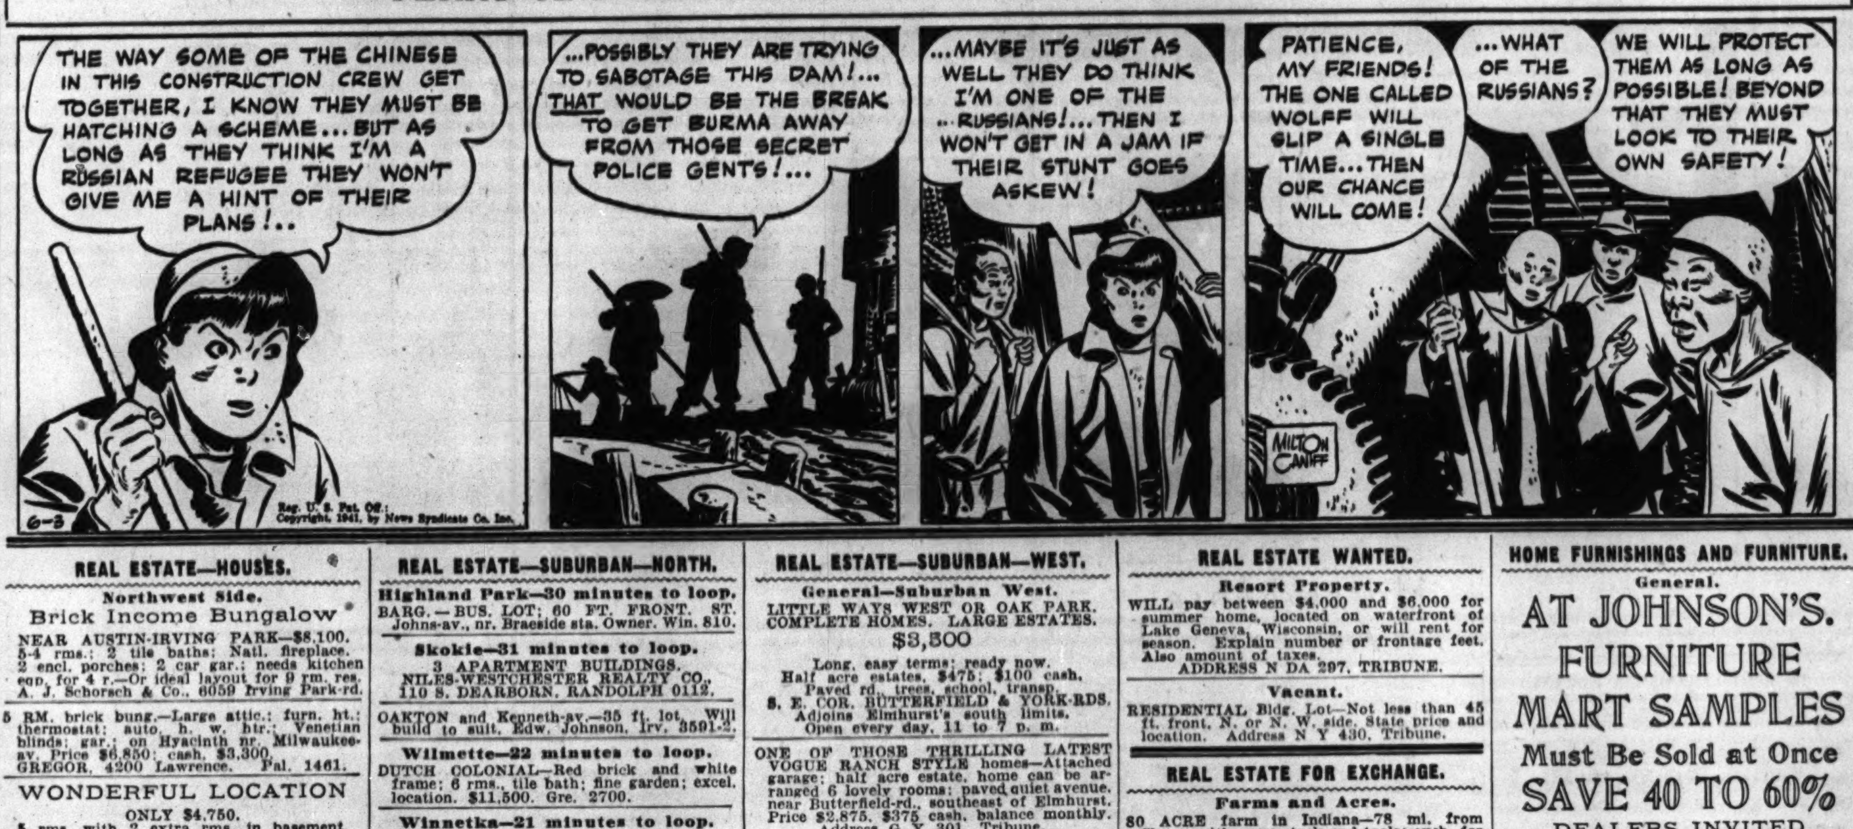
TERRY AND THE PIRATES—CHINESE GAMBLING GAME



THE WAY SOME OF THE CHINESE IN THIS CONSTRUCTION CREW GET TOGETHER, I KNOW THEY MUST BE HATCHING A SCHEME... BUT AS LONG AS THEY THINK I'M A RUSSIAN REFUGEE THEY WON'T GIVE ME A HINT OF THEIR PLANS!..
6-3
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright, 1941, by News Syndicate Co. Inc.
MILTON CANIFF
PATIENCE, MY FRIENDS! THE ONE CALLED WOLFF WILL SLIP A SINGLE TIME... THEN OUR CHANCE WILL COME!
...WHAT OF THE RUSSIANS?
